Illinois' yule travelers zeroed in on clear roads

by DIANE GRANAT

Holiday travelers in Illinois this weekend can expect cold weather and clear roads, but motorists to Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan have a good chance of seeing snow and slippery roads.

Christmas Day is the only day this weekend te National Weather Service predicts snow in the Chicago area. Flurries will leave the area by Sunday and near-zero temperatures are expected to rise to a high on Sunday and Monday in the 20s and a low in the teens.

The Illinois State Police report clear driving conditions on all main highways in the state, with some scattered slick spots. The police have issued a ban on house trailers on the tollroads because of high winds.

BLOWING SNOW in Wisconsin will leave most of the state with slippery roads. Some northern counties in Wisconsin will be covered with snow this weekend, the state police report.

Michigan roads also will be covered with snow with slippery conditions throughout the state. Slick spots resulting from blowing snow are predicted for northern Indiana, including roads leading from Chicago.

Motorists traveling to Iowa will find more pleasant weather than to the north and east. Iowa State Police said Thursday roads are clear throughout the state.

While the weather may present some problems to out-of-state travelers, traffic leaving the Chicago area probably won't be too bad, Robert Heck of the Chicago Motor Club, said.

"THE EXODUS will be spread out over a longer period because many people will get out of work Friday," Heck said. The traffic jams are more likely from 3 to 9 p.m. Sunday with many travelers returning to Chicago, he said.

The only road in this area for which the motor club predicts a big tie-up is the Kennedy Expressway leading to O'Hare Airport.

The gas supply should be good this year with prices averaging 63.5 cents a gallon for regular gasoline, 68.9 cents for premium and 66.5 cents for unleaded fuel, the motor club reports.

Between 20 and 30 per cent of the gas stations in Chicago and surrounding states will be open Christmas Day, with some closing early Christmas Eve, Heck said. Rest stops on the Illinois and Indiana tollroads will be open 24-hours-a-day over the weekend, he said.

Car care tips for cold weather

With temperatures expected to be near zero on Christmas Day, drivers may have some trouble getting their cars started before going to visit family and friends.

The Chicago Motor Club offers some hints to drivers to get their car started on cold, winter mornings:

- Before turning the ignition key on your car make sure all accessories are turned off. Then turn the key and depress the gas pedal to the floor once and lift it halfway.
- When trying to get the car going, don't grind the starter for more than 30 seconds at a time, the motor club warns. If you have trouble make repeated attempts, allow 30 to 40 seconds between tries.
- Once the car has started warm the engine at an idle. Racing a cold engine before the lubricants are flowing puts a severe strain on engine parts, the motor club says.
- Minimize starting problems in frigid weather by warming the car the night before. On Christmas Eve, warm the car for a few minutes to make sure you can leave Saturday morning.

OK, men. You're on!

The store clerks are ready for you. Don't worry if you don't know what to get the little woman for the big day Saturday. They're ready with suggestions to fit any pocket book.

You know who you are, the guys who have put off buying Christmas presents until today — the last minute. The store sales clerks say it's you more than the women who clammer in desperation to the stores on Christmas Eve.

"LAST MINUTE is all men," Eve Weiner, cosmetics department manager at The Crawford Dept. Store in Rolling Meadows, said Thursday. "We make recommendations. That's our job.

"If they don't know what they want, we ask them what price range they're interested in. If price is no object, we start with the best and work our way down."

"Today and tomorrow (Friday) is when all the men come in," Stan Herman, owner of Jeans and Jeans in Rolling Meadows, said. "I look forward to the men who will come in here at 5 p.m. tomorrow with a glazed look in their eyes, saying 'I'll take it. I don't care if it fits!' "

"It's the men, definitely," Steve Tompkins, operations manager at J. C. Penney's at Woodfield Shopping Center, said.

"OH, YES," a spokesman for Marshall Field's in Woodfield, said. "Tomorrow there will be even more men than today. They'll be solid around the cosmetic counter and the gift-wrapping counter."

He said the food and candy departments of the store expect a crunch today.

"We've been extremely busy in the cosmetics department, men's and women's accessories, particularly scarves, adult games and food and candy."

Of course, it won't be all men. The volume of business at stores today will swell in general with "frantic buying," as one store official put it.

"THERE ARE still people coming in doing their last-minute shopping," John P. Maloney, store manager at Sears in Woodfield, said. "There probably will be a lot here early in the day tomorrow, too, although after 3 p.m. I wouldn't expect many people."

"It will be busy tomorrow morning but I don't think there will be many people in the afternoon," Tompkins said.

"Everyday that gets closer to Christmas, we sell more gift certificates," Herman of Jeans and Jeans, said. "Invariably you get people who at the last minute think of someone they should get a gift for.'"

Why do they wait until the last minute, you ask?

"I'm just the kind of person that waits until the last minute for that friend I want to get something for but I don't know what," Jeanne Meyer of Rolling Meadows said as she sought her husband's opinion on a wallet. Is it like this every year, Mrs. Meyer?

"Always."

Ryan demands cab firm better service in 30 days

Arlington Heights officials have demanded that Arlington City Cab Co. improve service within 30 days. They will use a customer questionnaire to monitor changes.

If service is not improved, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said the company's license to operate could be revoked.

The 30-day deadline was set by Ryan after he received complaints from residents about rude drivers and read a Herald story detailing long response times.

The questionnaire, which Asst. Village Mgr. Frank Charlton is writing composes part of a village program to assess the taxicab company's operations.

Other means of measuring the quality of service haven't been determined, but Ryan said they may interview elderly taxicab customers.

IN A MEETING THIS week with taxicab company owner Robert Birks, Ryan said, "I made the position of the village quite clear. We want high quality service."

Within 30 days Ryan will receive a report from Charlton on the village's findings and from Birks on attempts to improve response time, driver courtesy and equipment quality.

Earlier, Ryan said if Birks refused to comply with village demands his company's license could be revoked and another firm would be given the franchise. Wednesday he said, "In all fairness to Mr. Birks, he indicated very much of a willingness to cooperate. I'm optimistic about getting the kind of cab service we want to have from him.

"THERE'S BEEN A recognition of some of the problems and that's always the first step toward solving them," Ryan said. "The 30-day period during which there must be improvements begins now. I want to give him enough time to have a chance to make some changes."

Birks was not available to answer questions about plans to improve service.

"We're interested in seeing the service improved," Ryan said. "It's easier to work with someone who already has the franchise than to give it to someone else. We're shooting to have the whole thing cleared up by mid-February.

"I think the village has a responsibility to check from time to time to see how the service is doing," he said. "It's something I plan to do in the future and probably something we should have done in the past."

Winds pushing oil slick closer to fishing grounds

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — Shifting winds Thursday nudged a 100-mile-long oil slick from the wave crushed Liberian tanker Argo Merchant closer to the valuable Georges Bank fishing grounds.

Chunks of tar-like, coagulated oil bobbed up and down in the midst of the monstrous slick which was formed by the smashing Tuesday of the 640-foot tanker in storm tossed seas. The tanker with its 7.6 million gallon cargo ran aground eight days ago on Nantucket Shoals.

Southwesterly winds crossed over the oil blackened shoals Thursday and kept the slick moving "in a roller coaster fashion," according to the Coast Guard.

A COAST GUARD spokesman said the winds shifted early Thursday and that they "would push anything on the surface of the water" to the north-northeast in the direction of the Georges Banks.

Navy divers set out Thursday to examine the ocean floor near the tanker to see if any of the thick industrial No. 6 oil had sunk to the bottom.

The Coast Guard Thursday attempted to sink a portion of the bow of the tanker after going aboard to determine if there was any oil still trapped inside.

Lt. Cmdr. Barry Chambers of the Coast Guard's anti-pollution Atlantic Strike Force Team said the ship's entire cargo had been dumped into the ocean and his men left hatches open in an effort to sink the bow.

"The hatches were empty. They contain no oil," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "They hope the hatches will fill with water and sink so that it will not be a hazard to shipping," the spokesman said.

A SPOKESMAN for the Northeast Fisheries Center, a branch of the National Marine Fisheries Service, said scientists aboard the research vessel Deleware II Thursday collected fish "from just outside" the spill area.

"They noticed in a few of the cod collected that the fish were not ready to spawn," said Jon Gibson. "We have not yet received word about species collected from inside the spill."

"The early life stages of fish are often the most sensitive to these kinds of things," he said.

He said scientists aboard the vessel skimmed about five gallons of "black tar" from the surface of the water.

THE MANAGER of Triship, the Greek agents of the Argo Merchant, said in Athens that the captain of the vessel was not at the helm when it ran aground. He also discounted reports the ship was deliberately beached.

"We hear all sorts of things when an accident like this happens but they are far from truth," Capt. Stelios Madias said.

The Coast Guard Wednesday disclosed it had been tipped by a man who said he was a crewman of the Argo Merchant that the tanker may have been run aground deliberately on orders from its owners. The Coast Guard turned the information over to the nation of Liberia, where the ship

Suburban digest

Suburb crime up 6% in Cook County

Major crime in suburban Cook County increased 6 per cent in the first nine months of 1976, the Chicago Crime Commission said Thursday. Commission officials blamed the over-all increase on a dramatic rise in property crimes. They noted auto thefts increased 25 per cent and thefts 11 per cent over 1975 figures. "These figures lend further authority to a recent commission study claiming over-all crime rates in suburban Cook County and the five collar counties of Lake, McHenry, Will, DuPage and Kane will surpass those of Chicago by 1980," an official said. Commission statistics show murders in suburban Cook County dropped by 30 per cent compared with the first nine months of 1975, robberies declined 16 per cent, aggravated assaults were down 7 per cent and burglaries down 8 per cent.

Charges pending in accident case

Rolling Meadows police are awaiting a report from the Cook County Medical Examiner before filing charges against a Hoffman Estates motorist who allegedly hit and killed a Mount Prospect resident. Police Thursday said they probably will press charges against Kenneth H. Kaiz, 37, of 314 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates, next week after they receive the medical examiner's report and are notified by the Cook County State's Attorney's office of charges to be filed. Kaiz allegedly was the driver of the car that struck and killed Michael J. White, 23 of 1831 Cree Ln., Mount Prospect, on Golf Road in Roling Meadows Wednesday night. Police, meanwhile, have charged Hugh McFadden, 33, of 135 Ellington Dr., Schaumburg, with failure to reduce speed to avoid hitting a Rolling Meadows policeman who was directing traffic near the scene 48 minutes after the accident. The Rolling Meadows policeman received only bruises when struck.

Roman coin found in Indian mound

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The discovery of a dime-sized piece of metal in an Indian mound is causing some consternation among anthropologists.

Dr. Jerry Epstein had just told an anthropology class there was ltle evidence to support theories of transoceanic contact in pre-Columbian times, when a student offered what may be evidence of such contact — the discovery of a Roman coin in an Indian mound.

The student put Epstein in contact with Walter L. Horton, who made the discovery near Roundrock, Tex.

THE COIN, minted in London in 313-314 A.D., is found so frequently in Europe it is not worth faking, said Dr. John Kroll, assistant professor of classics at the university.

It is inscribed on one side with the head of a young emperor wearing a laurel crown and the other side with the sun. It was worth only a nickel in its time and only about $10 today. But Epstein said, "For my purposes, it's invaluable."

Fifteen similar coins have been found in the United States, he said.

"But the trouble with these is they were never found under verifiable conditions by people who had archaeological training," Epstein said.

From information he obtained from Horton, Epstein said the Indian mound may be dated about 800 A.D., and he called the find "the best documented Roman coin found in America."

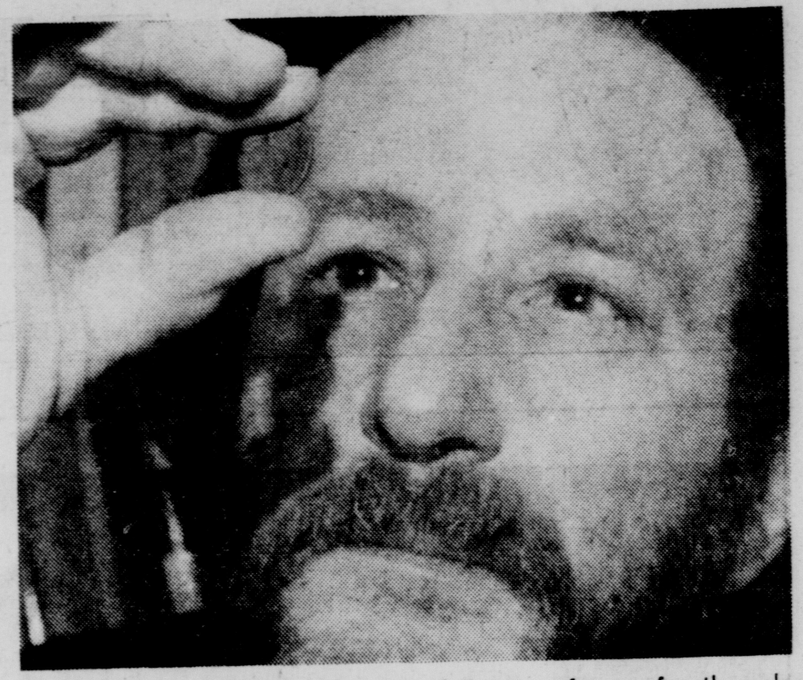
EPSTEIN THEORIZED that if someone did not bring them to North America, wrecked ships could have drifted across the ocean, carrying a treasury of coins.

"I can picture Indians gathering coins from the ship and passing them around, passing them from one person to another in trade," he said.

Another theory is that pioneer coin collectors lost the coins in Indian raids or traded them.

"There probably were such coin collectors in the United States even in Washington's day, and some early settlers may have dropped it accidentally or have given it to the Indians.

"The problem of working all this out is something we have to do yet," he said. "One must view these things with a certain amount of caution."



DR. JEREMIAH EPSTEIN, University of Texas professor of anthropology, peers at Roman coin minted in London in 313-314 A.D. The question in Epstein's mind is how this coin turned up in an Indian mound near Round Rock, Tex.

Counselors threatened with rape

ATLANTA (UPI) — The rape crisis center at Atlanta's Grady Hospital has been forced to move and has been placed under guard because of a sadistic rapist who sexually assaulted one counselor and sent a letter threatening others, police said Thursday.

The letter included the correct names of several other workers and warned that they were "next."

The attack led officials to move the rape crisis center from the 15th floor of Grady Memorial Hospital in downtown Atlanta to another undisclosed location in the building and to place it under guard.

"WE ARE HERE," a female employe of the center said Thursday. "We do have our service, but it is difficult to work — very, very difficult."

"The mood (of center employes) is definitely one of considerable concern. We have been very concerned for the safety of the employes," said Del Yoder, a hospital spokesman.

The center, which was started in late spring of 1974, provides a counseling service to rape victims.

The sexual assault occurred at the center Nov. 20 and was followed by a second attack outside the victim's home Dec. 11, police said. The woman managed to escape after the second attempt with no more than a cut face.

"The suspect apparently has a great deal of savvy about how the center works," Yoder said. "We are hopeful the police will catch him soon. He's obviously very dangerous."

LT. B. J. STECHER, head of Grady's security, said a man believed to be the rapist telephoned the crisis center the night before the assault and was abusive with staff members. The woman who was eventually attacked joined in one of the telephone conversations shortly after she came to work.

The next morning, the victim, working alone in the office, heard a knock on the locked door. When she asked who was there, a man said, "Security," and she opened the door.

A young man, wearing a red jacket, tee shirt, blue jeans and a zodiac necklace with the sign of the crab, grabbed her and threw her on to the office's bed where he raped her.

"She had scratches all over her face, arms and stomach," said Stecher.

Eight days later, the center received a brown manila envelope containing an article of clothing from the victim and a message stamped out in label-making tape: "— is dead," naming the rape victim. It continued, "Next are — , — — ," naming several other victims.

"We have no idea why he would assume the young woman was dead, when she obviously was not when he left the room," Stecher said.

West German admits kidnap, killing of boy

AUGSBURG, West Germany (UPI) — A debt-ridden interior decorator Thursday confessed to the kidnap-murder of the 6-year-old son of a truck driver, who planned to sell his house to meet the kidnaper's $84,388 ransom, police said.

Karl-Heinz Kraemer, the 32-year-old decorator, told police he forced young Eustachius Hell into a car Monday, and then killed and buried him in thick woods near Hell's home town of Paar, a village of 200, three miles southeast of Augsburg.

Police found Kraemer by tracking the rented automobile he used to abduct Hell. Police said Kraemer confessed to the murder and led police to the little boy's body at 3 a.m.

KRAEMER, WHO police said has a criminal record and is heavily in debt, hoped to meet his debts with the ransom he demanded in a telephone call to the boy's father after the murder.

Kraemer told the father he was holding the boy for ransom but broke off the call as soon as the father agreed to try to raise the money, police said. The truck driver from the village in southern West Germany planned to sell his house to pay the ransom.

Eight hundred Bavarian state police were mobilized to search for the boy, the latest in a series of kidnap victims, but a tip provided by a person who witnessed the kidnaping led to Kraemer's arrest.

The witness said he had seen a boy trying to run away from a car on the country road on which the boy had been walking home from school. He said he noted the license plate number but did not volunteer the information until police released the news of the boy's kidnaping.

Police, meanwhile, arrested a second suspect in Munich in the kidnaping of Richard Oetker, the son of a multimillionaire, released last week after the payment of the largest ransom ever paid in Germany, $8.77 million.

Oetker, whose leg and vertebra were broken, was electrically tortured by his abductors. He was the fourth major kidnaping victim in West Germany in several months.

Matching both sets of numbers wins $5,000. Matching both sets of numbers and the color wins $5,000 and entry into the Bonanza drawing. Matching the auto model name provides for chances to win an automobile.

Suburban digest

Suburb crime up 6% in Cook County

Major crime in suburban Cook County increased 6 per cent in the first nine months of 1976, the Chicago Crime Commission said Thursday. Commission officials blamed the over-all increase on a dramatic rise in property crimes. They noted auto thefts increased 25 per cent and thefts 11 per cent over 1975 figures. "These figures lend further authority to a recent commission study claiming over-all crime rates in suburban Cook County and the five collar counties of Lake, McHenry, Will, DuPage and Kane will surpass those of Chicago by 1980," an official said. Commission statistics show murders in suburban Cook County dropped by 30 per cent compared with the first nine months of 1975, robberies declined 16 per cent, aggravated assaults were down 7 per cent and burglaries down 8 per cent.

Charges pending in accident case

Rolling Meadows police are awaiting a report from the Cook County Medical Examiner before filing charges against a Hoffman Estates motorist who allegedly hit and killed a Mount Prospect resident. Police Thursday said they probably will press charges against Kenneth H. Kaiz, 37, of 314 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates, next week after they receive the medical examiner's report and are notified by the Cook County State's Attorney's office of charges to be filed. Kaiz allegedly was the driver of the car that struck and killed Michael J. White, 23 of 1831 Cree Ln., Mount Prospect, on Golf Road in Roling Meadows Wednesday night. Police, meanwhile, have charged Hugh McFadden, 33, of 135 Ellington Dr., Schaumburg, with failure to reduce speed to avoid hitting a Rolling Meadows policeman who was directing traffic near the scene 48 minutes after the accident. The Rolling Meadows policeman received only bruises when struck.

Roman coin found in Indian mound

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The discovery of a dime-sized piece of metal in an Indian mound is causing some consternation among anthropologists.

Dr. Jerry Epstein had just told an anthropology class there was little evidence to support theories of transoceanic contact in pre-Columbian times, when a student offered what may be evidence of such contact — the discovery of a Roman coin in an Indian mound.

The student put Epstein in contact with Walter L. Horton, who made the discovery near Roundrock, Tex.

THE COIN, minted in London in 313-314 A.D., is found so frequently in Europe it is not worth faking, said Dr. John Kroll, assistant professor of classics at the university.

It is inscribed on one side with the head of a young emperor wearing a laurel crown and the other side with the sun. It was worth only a nickel in its time and only about $10 today. But Epstein said, "For my purposes, it's invaluable."

Fifteen similar coins have been found in the United States, he said.

"But the trouble with these is they were never found under verifiable conditions by people who had archaeological training," Epstein said.

From information he obtained from Horton, Epstein said the Indian mound may be dated about 800 A.D., and he called the find "the best documented Roman coin found in America."

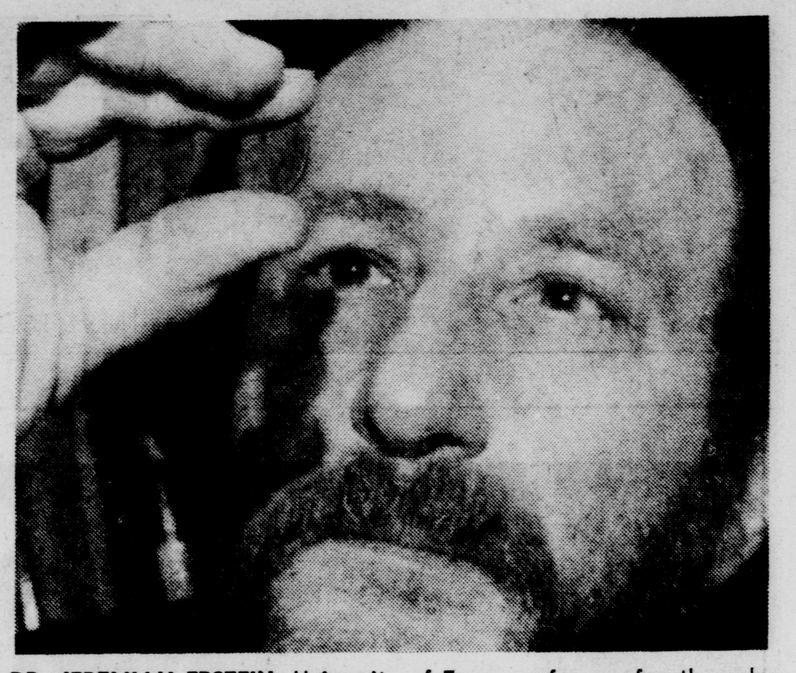
EPSTEIN THEORIZED that if someone did not bring them to North America, wrecked ships could have drifted across the ocean, carrying a treasury of coins.

"I can picture Indians gathering coins from the ship and passing them around, passing them from one person to another in trade," he said.

Another theory is that pioneer coin collectors lost the coins in Indian raids or traded them.

"There probably were such coin collectors in the United States even in Washington's day, and some early settlers may have dropped it accidentally or have given it to the Indians.

"The problem of working all this out is something we have to do yet," he said. "One must view these things with a certain amount of caution."



DR. JEREMIAH EPSTEIN, University of Texas professor of anthropology, peers at Roman coin minted in London in 313-314 A.D. The question in Epstein's mind is how this coin turned up in an Indian mound near Round Rock, Tex.

Counselors threatened with rape

ATLANTA (UPI) — The rape crisis center at Atlanta's Grady Hospital has been forced to move and has been placed under guard because of a sadistic rapist who sexually assaulted one counselor and sent a letter threatening others, police said Thursday.

The letter included the correct names of several other workers and warned that they were "next."

The attack led officials to move the rape crisis center from the 15th floor of Grady Memorial Hospital in downtown Atlanta to another undisclosed location in the building and to place it under guard.

"WE ARE HERE," a female employe of the center said Thursday. "We do have our service, but it is difficult to work — very, very difficult."

"The mood (of center employes) is definitely one of considerable concern. We have been very concerned for the safety of the employes," said Del Yoder, a hospital spokesman.

The center, which was started in late spring of 1974, provides a counseling service to rape victims.

The sexual assault occurred at the center Nov. 20 and was followed by a second attack outside the victim's home Dec. 11, police said. The woman managed to escape after the second attempt with no more than a cut face.

"The suspect apparently has a great deal of savvy about how the center works," Yoder said. "We are hopeful the police will catch him soon. He's obviously very dangerous."

LT. B. J. STECHER, head of Grady's security, said a man believed to be the rapist telephoned the crisis center the night before the assault and was abusive with staff members. The woman who was eventually attacked joined in one of the telephone conversations shortly after she came to work.

The next morning, the victim, working alone in the office, heard a knock on the locked door. When she asked who was there, a man said, "Security," and she opened the door.

A young man, wearing a red jacket, tee shirt, blue jeans and a zodiac necklace with the sign of the crab, grabbed her and threw her on to the office's bed where he raped her.

"She had scratches all over her face, arms and stomach," said Stecher.

Eight days later, the center received a brown manila envelope containing an article of clothing from the victim and a message stamped out in label-making tape: "— is dead," naming the rape victim. It continued, "Next are — , — — ," naming several other victims.

"We have no idea why he would assume the young woman was dead, when she obviously was not when he left the room," Stecher said.

It may take two hands to handle a Whopper, but three pair of hands were needed to move a 24-foot 'Submarine' Sandwich through Woodfield Shopping Center.

Gulp — a 24-ft. sandwich

What kind of Christmas does a delicatessen give a bank? Why, a 24-foot submarine sandwich, of course.

Employes of Slicer's Deli, Woodfield Shopping Center, Thursday launched the "sub" to sink all others and delivered the 288-inch product to Woodfield Bank.

Using six-foot loaves of French bread, four deli workers added six pounds of cheese and more than eight pounds of meat to build the "sub." After garnishing it with four pounds of lettuce, the production was passed on to other Slicer's employes who carried the sandwich on their shoulders to the bank.

"It was our own special way of saying Merry Christmas to the bank because it serves almost all of the stores in the shopping center," said Slicer's manager Lynne Knudsen.

Ms. Knudsen said the idea was suggested by a Slicer's employe who said he saw something similar while on vacation in another state.

"We have never heard of a 'sub' this large, but we are not out to set or break any official record. We just wanted to do something nice for the bank," she said.

She said the giant sub would feed about 50 and estimated its retail cost at "a minimum, bare minimum, of $50."

To make the sandwich at home, Mrs. Knudsen suggests using 24 feet of French bread, 2½ pounds of ham, two pounds each of bologna, smoked salami and Kosher salami, three pounds each of Swiss and American cheese and four pounds of lettuce.

And a box of bicarbonate of soda.

Carter picks 3 to complete cabinet

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) —President-elect Jimmy Carter, completing his cabinet, selected three familiar Washington figures — Joseph Califano, Jame Schlesinger and Theodore Sorensen — Thursday for high posts in his administration.

The appointments gave Carter a cabinet of nine men and two women and of 10 whites and one black. Seven of the 11 served in prior administrations or now serve in Congress.

Califano, 45, son of a Booklyn school teacher and architect of many of Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs, was tapped to run the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare — with 140,000 employes and a budget of $140 billion, the government's biggest agency.

SORENSEN, 48, speechwriter and intimate of President John F. Kennedy, was designated the new director of the Central Intelligence Agency — the fifth since 1973.

Schlesinger, 45, who was in the Nixon and Ford administrations as budget director, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, CIA director and secretary of defense, was named a White House assistant "for coordination of all energy efforts."

Schlesinger was expected to head a new Energy Dept. if Carter and Congress agree to create such an agency.

Carter announced the appointess at a news conference — his sixth in nine days — and said he would have no more public announcements until after Christmas, then wished the nation on behalf of "my wife and I, my three sons, my three daughters-in-law, Amy, my mother, my mother-in-law, and Billy" a merry, prosperous Christmas.

Sorensen, a New York lawyer for the last 11 years, came under questioning about his qualifications to direct the intelligence agency.

CARTER PRAISED him as one who knows "the inner workings of the decision-making process in the White House" and Sorensen said as a member in the Kenendy White House of the National Security Council "I was a consumer of the product of the CIA."

Reminded that the Bay of Pigs attack on Cuba occurred during his tenure in the Whie House, Sorensen said the CIA should retain the ability to carry out secret operations under "the most extreme circumstances." He also said the overall CIA budget total "could be made public."

Sorensen, a native of Nebraska, was ate and the White House, and when John Kennedy's alter ego in the Sen-Sen. Edward M. Kennedy faced the personal crisis of Chappaquiddick he helped Kennedy write the television speech explaining his actions in the aftermath of that fatal automobile accident.

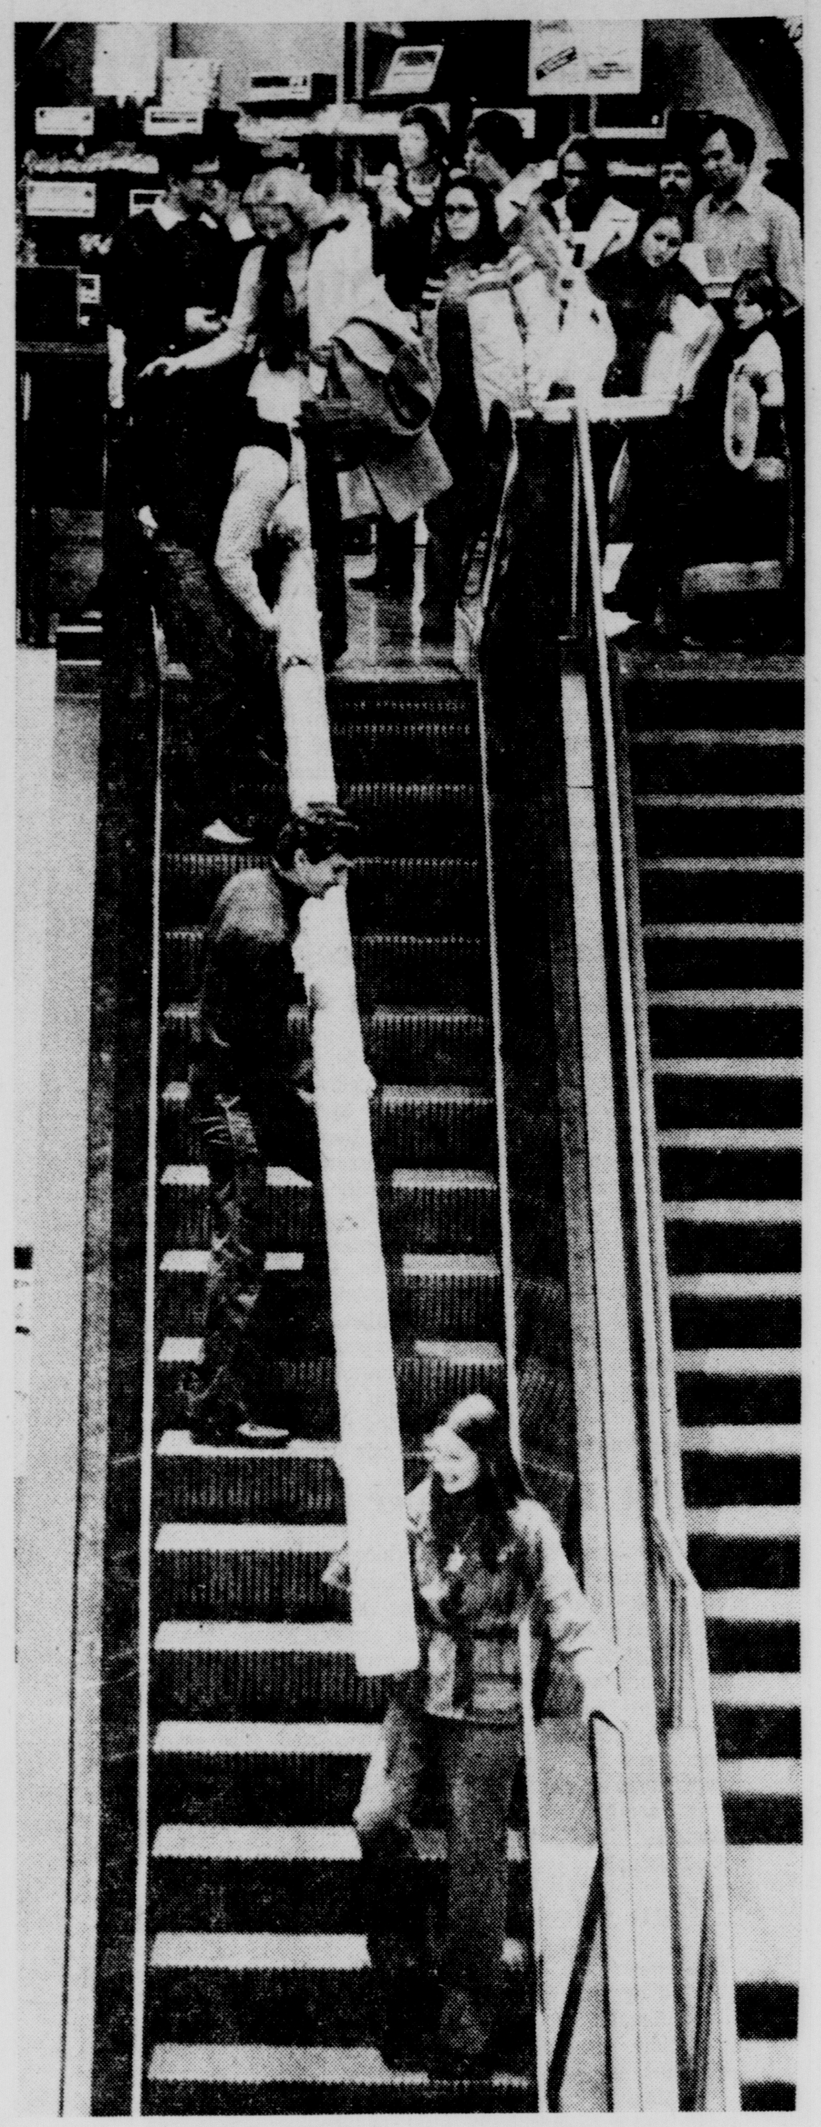
The pipe-smoking Schlesinger, an economist, said everyone has talked for years about the need to curtail the consumption of fuels and "we are going to do something about it."

CALIFANO, A Washington lawyer, said he hoped to cut deeply into the mass of regulations promulgated by HEW.

"I think health, education and welfare is the people's department in our government," he said. "I think the noblest work of a civilized society is caring for its people, educating its young, caring for the health of its people, treating its old and its poor with dignity and respect."

At the news conference, Carter also promised that Walter Mondale will be given a role larger than that ever held by any vice president.

"He will be kept completely conversant with all the problems that I face and will help me as a very close and intimate adviser," Carter said. He said Mondale would frequently represent him abroad.



All that Glitters could turn to gold, Prince discovers

• Advised by pop star Gary Glitter that "tight trousers and a hairy chest" led to stardom, Britain's Prince Charles unbuttoned his shirt and compared torsos with the singer at a charity dinner Wednesday night in London. "He was marvelous, tremendously witty," Glitter said. "I thought the event was going to be a bit stuffy, but it didn't turn out like that." Charles also enlivened the evening by dancing on top of the piano.

• About women: Liv Ullman was named best actress of the year by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in Hollywood. She was cited for her performance in Ingmar Bergman's "Face to Face." The board gave supporting role honors to Talia Shire for "Rocky."

• Melanie Winter of Burbank, Calif. is playing the "Girl from Venus" in "Hellzapoppin" now at the National Theater in Washington. She is just one of 16 tall showgirls dressed in glitter, feathers and skimpy costumes in the Broadway-bound show starring Jerry Lewis and Lynn Redgrave. "On a good day my measurements are 38-25-38," says 18-year-old Melanie, who stands "just a smidgen under six feet." Melanie arrived in New York last April and was down to her last $25 when she landed the part in the new musical.

• Reporters could lose their White House press room if Amy Carter has her way. In an informal chat with reporters this week, President-elect Jimmy Carter said, "Amy is after me to take the cover off the swimming pool, but I guess that's impossible." Richard Nixon had the indoor pool covered in 1970 to make room for a press center on the ground floor in the west wing. There is an outside pool on the south lawn built for President Ford.

Environmentalists watch for damage to fishing area

BOSTON (UPI) — Treasured Atlantic fishing grounds may take years to recover if the cargo of the shattered tanker Argo Merchant touches the ocean floor, scientists warned Thursday.

But experts said past oil spills in chilly waters indicate only a fraction of the Argo Merchant's 7.6 million gallon cargo of thick industrial oil may reach bottom.

"Some oil is going to get onto the bottom," said Robert Stewart, an oceanographic engineer and conducted a study of potential damage to Georges Bank during offshore oil exploration. "But at that depth, it's only microscopic amounts.

"Maybe 1 per cent of the oil will get down that far," the former instructor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said.

RESIDUE OF a 100,000-gallon oil spill near the beach of West Falmouth, Mass. in 1969 still can be found because it was blown into shallow water, Stewart said.

But little evidence can be found today of a large offshore spill from the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay, Nova Scotia, in 1970. The spill was blown out to sea much like the oil from the 640-foot tanker grounded on Nantucket shoals, Stewart said.

Oil at a depth of 300 feet was "just thousandths of an inch across," Stewart said, and small organisms can consume it.

SIMILAR DEPTHS are found near Georges Bank, a 10,000 square mile underwater plateau considered one of the richest fishing areas in the world.

While Stewart said it was unlikely oil would touch bottom, he and a colleague conceded it was difficult to pinpoint environmental damage in open ocean.

"It is virtually impossible to predict the impact of an oil spill when it affects a system only partially," wrote Steven F. Moore, a civil engineer teaching at MIT, in the February issue of Technology Review.

"In general, oil deposited in unconsolidated, fine sediments (such as Georges Bank) can remain chemically and or physically insulting to the environment for four to ten years," Moore said.

SHOULD THE 100-mile long oil spill reach the warm waters of the Gulf Stream beyond Georges Bank, Stewart said the congealed oil would spread and dissipate more quickly.

Massachusetts officials said there was no evidence oil had reached bottom at Georges Bank. Fishermen have avoided the area contaminated by the spill and dockside monitoring of catches have found no evidence of oil contamination.

On the seabird issue, meantime, officials said it may be days before birds soaked with oil come ashore, affording scientists an opportunity to assess the impact of the spill on wildlife.

was registered, for investigation.

The crewman whose name was used in the call to the Coast Guard left Nantucket four days after the ship became grounded.

The crewman, Mohammed Sabir, a native of Pakistan, stayed at the Breaks Motel on Nantucket Island until Saturday when he and fellow crewmembers boarded a chartered Allegheny Airlines Convair at Nantucket Airport and flew to an undisclosed location.

Ex-CIA agent held in spy attempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal sources said Thursday a former CIA agent arrested Wednesday offered the Soviet Union secret details of the agen cy's operations, including names of colleagues who might cooperate, for $200,000.

Edwin Gibbons Moore II, 56, was tracked down by 50 FBI agents and arrested outside his Maryland home while picking up a bogus payment of the first "installment."

Moore, who left the CIA in 1973, was arraigned before a federal magistrate in nearby Bethesda, Md., Wednesday night and held on bond of $150,000 on federal charges of espionage. He is believed to be the first present or former CIA agent in the United States so charged.

A CIA SPOKESMAN would disclose no details of Moore's past duties beyond saying that he retired in 1973 with a "physical disability."

FBI agents reconstructed Moore's attempted sell-out of secrets on a timetable that began Tuesday night.

A Soviet watchman at a Russian-leased apartment house in northwest Washington became alarmed when he noticed a plastic-covered manila envelope had been thrown over the security fence.

Thinking it might be a bomb, he alerted Lt. Charles Perkins of the Executive Protective Service, which guards foreign embassies, who was patrolling outside the fence.

Perkins called the bomb squad at Ft. McNair, which found the package contained secret papers obviously concerning the CIA. The FBI, which handles counter-espionage activities, was called in along with CIA officials.

FBI OFFICIALS said the package contained an unsigned note, written in English and addressed "For Resident Eyes Only." Intelligence officials explained that "Resident" refers to the senior Soviet intelligence official in a foreign city

The material found in the envelope, federal ofifcials said, included information on "the internal structure of the CIA," names and addresses of CIA employes including those who allegedly might prove cooperative with the Russians, and other classified information.

The note, officials said, said the documents were examples of what could be supplied the Russians in exchange for $200,000, and explained on a map how and where the money could be paid.

At this point, authorities said, they had no idea who might be involved in the plot.

It may take two hands to handle a Whopper, but three pair of hands were needed to move a 24-foot 'Submarine' Sandwich through Woodfield Shopping Center.

The pipe-smoking Schlesinger, an economist, said everyone has talked for years about the need to curtail the consumption of fuels and "we are going to do something about it."

CALIFANO, A Washington lawyer, said he hoped to cut deeply into the mass of regulations promulgated by HEW.

"I think health, education and welfare is the people's department in our government," he said. "I think the noblest work of a civilized society is caring for its people, educating its young, caring for the health of its people, treating its old and its poor with dignity and respect."

At the news conference, Carter also promised that Walter Mondale will be given a role larger than that ever held by any vice president.

"He will be kept completely conversant with all the problems that I face and will help me as a very close and intimate adviser," Carter said. He said Mondale would frequently represent him abroad.

All that Glitters could turn to gold, Prince discovers

• Advised by pop star Gary Glitter that "tight trousers and a hairy chest" led to stardom, Britain's Prince Charles unbuttoned his shirt and compared torsos with the singer at a charity dinner Wednesday night in London. "He was marvelous, tremendously witty," Glitter said. "I thought the event was going to be a bit stuffy, but it didn't turn out like that." Charles also enlivened the evening by dancing on top of the piano.

• About women: Liv Ullman was named best actress of the year by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in Hollywood. She was cited for her performance in Ingmar Bergman's "Face to Face." The board gave supporting role honors to Talia Shire for "Rocky."

• Melanie Winter of Burbank, Calif. is playing the "Girl from Venus" in "Hellzapoppin" now at the National Theater in Washington. She is just one of 16 tall showgirls dressed in glitter, feathers and skimpy costumes in the Broadway-bound show starring Jerry Lewis and Lynn Redgrave. "On a good day my measurements are 38-25-38," says 18-year-old Melanie, who stands "just a smidgen under six feet." Melanie arrived in New York last April and was down to her last $25 when she landed the part in the new musical.

• Reporters could lose their White House press room if Amy Carter has her way. In an informal chat with reporters this week, President-elect Jimmy Carter said, "Amy is after me to take the cover off the swimming pool, but I guess that's impossible." Richard Nixon had the indoor pool covered in 1970 to make room for a press center on the ground floor in the west wing. Environmentalists watch for damage to fishing area

BOSTON (UPI) — Treasured Atlantic fishing grounds may take years to recover if the cargo of the shattered tanker Argo Merchant touches the ocean floor, scientists warned Thursday.

But experts said past oil spills in chilly waters indicate only a fraction of the Argo Merchant's 7.6 million gallon cargo of thick industrial oil may reach bottom.

"Some oil is going to get onto the bottom," said Robert Stewart, an oceanographic engineer and conducted a study of potential damage to Georges Bank during offshore oil exploration. "But at that depth, it's only microscopic amounts.

"Maybe 1 per cent of the oil will get down that far," the former instructor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said.

RESIDUE OF a 100,000-gallon oil spill near the beach of West Falmouth, Mass. in 1969 still can be found because it was blown into shallow water, Stewart said.

But little evidence can be found today of a large offshore spill from the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay, Nova Scotia, in 1970. The spill was blown out to sea much like the oil from the 640-foot tanker grounded on Nantucket shoals, Stewart said.

Oil at a depth of 300 feet was "just thousandths of an inch across," Stewart said, and small organisms can consume it.

SIMILAR DEPTHS are found near Georges Bank, a 10,000 square mile underwater plateau considered one of the richest fishing areas in the world.

While Stewart said it was unlikely oil would touch bottom, he and a colleague conceded it was difficult to pinpoint environmental damage in open ocean.

"It is virtually impossible to predict the impact of an oil spill when it affects a system only partially," wrote Steven F. Moore, a civil engineer teaching at MIT, in the February issue of Technology Review.

"In general, oil deposited in unconsolidated, fine sediments (such as Georges Bank) can remain chemically and or physically insulting to the environment for four to ten years," Moore said.

SHOULD THE 100-mile long oil spill reach the warm waters of the Gulf Stream beyond Georges Bank, Stewart said the congealed oil would spread and dissipate more quickly.

Massachusetts officials said there was no evidence oil had reached bottom at Georges Bank. Fishermen have avoided the area contaminated by the spill and dockside monitoring of catches have found no evidence of oil contamination.

On the seabird issue, meantime, officials said it may be days before birds soaked with oil come ashore, affording scientists an opportunity to assess the impact of the spill on wildlife.

was registered, for investigation.

The crewman whose name was used in the call to the Coast Guard left Nantucket four days after the ship became grounded.

The crewman, Mohammed Sabir, a native of Pakistan, stayed at the Breaks Motel on Nantucket Island until Saturday when he and fellow crewmembers boarded a chartered Allegheny Airlines Convair at Nantucket Airport and flew to an undisclosed location.

Ex-CIA agent held in spy attempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal sources said Thursday a former CIA agent arrested Wednesday offered the Soviet Union secret details of the agen cy's operations, including names of colleagues who might cooperate, for $200,000.

Edwin Gibbons Moore II, 56, was tracked down by 50 FBI agents and arrested outside his Maryland home while picking up a bogus payment of the first "installment."

Moore, who left the CIA in 1973, was arraigned before a federal magistrate in nearby Bethesda, Md., Wednesday night and held on bond of $150,000 on federal charges of espionage. He is believed to be the first present or former CIA agent in the United States so charged.

A CIA SPOKESMAN would disclose no details of Moore's past duties beyond saying that he retired in 1973 with a "physical disability."

FBI agents reconstructed Moore's attempted sell-out of secrets on a timetable that began Tuesday night.

A Soviet watchman at a Russian-leased apartment house in northwest Washington became alarmed when he noticed a plastic-covered manila envelope had been thrown over the security fence.

Thinking it might be a bomb, he alerted Lt. Charles Perkins of the Executive Protective Service, which guards foreign embassies, who was patrolling outside the fence.

Perkins called the bomb squad at Ft. McNair, which found the package contained secret papers obviously concerning the CIA. The FBI, which handles counter-espionage activities, was called in along with CIA officials.

FBI OFFICIALS said the package contained an unsigned note, written in English and addressed "For Resident Eyes Only." Intelligence officials explained that "Resident" refers to the senior Soviet intelligence official in a foreign city

The material found in the envelope, federal ofifcials said, included information on "the internal structure of the CIA," names and addresses of CIA employes including those who allegedly might prove cooperative with the Russians, and other classified information.

The note, officials said, said the documents were examples of what could be supplied the Russians in exchange for $200,000, and explained on a map how and where the money could be paid.

At this point, authorities said, they had no idea who might be involved in the plot.

I'm mayor: Frost
No way: Sullivan

Chicago politicians Thursday got down to the predicted bare-knuckle brawling for the acting mayor job and the immediate succession to Richard J. Daley, buried Wednesday after 21 years at City Hall. It began with Ald. Wilson Frost, 50, a black and president pro tem of the city council, telling a news conference he had been acting mayor since Daley's death Monday afternoon, based on research done by Frost's attorneys. Backed by a coalition of 200 black leaders, Frost said he expected to be mayor until new elections are held within the next six months and that Daley had told him he wanted it that way.

Frank Sullivan, Daley's news secretary, followed Frost to the same news conference microphone at City Hall, and said Frost was not the acting mayor. He said the city council next Tuesday will select an acting mayor who will serve until the special election is held. Democratic insiders dismissed Frost's bid. They said a deal has been worked out so that Michael A. Bilandic, 53, the bachelor alderman from Daley's 11th ward, will become acting mayor, ambitious Ald. Edward R. Vrdolyak, 38, will be appointed chairman of the powerful city council finance committee, and Ald. Edward Burke, 32, another city council activist, will be appointed chairman of the council's building and zoning commission.

U.S. blamed for segregation

Two homeowners, one white and one black, and a fair housing group filed administrative complaints Thursday, charging that the government's mortgage programs are being used to resegregate a Chicago neighborhood in violation of federal civil rights laws. Attorneys for the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities sent the complaints to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and the Veterans Administration.

Under federal guidelines, HUD and the VA must respond within 30 days, after which the Leadership Council will have the option of filing a lawsuit. Research for the legal action was compiled by United Press International and the Leadership Council. UPI recently disclosed abuses by real estate agents who sell homes through the Federal Housing Administration and VA mortage insurance programs, including widespread "racial steering" in which black and white buyers are shown homes in separate areas.

The leadersip council complaint accuses the government agencies of "negatively administering the FHA and VA programs to frustrate the purposes of the 1968 fair housing law."

ACLU sues Kusper in ballot feud

The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit in U.S. District Court Thursday against the Cook County clerk, charging his refusal to count 4,800 absentee ballots delayed in reaching precinct polling places was unconstitutional. Stanley Kusper, the clerk, has ruled that state law prohibited the counting of the ballots. The suit charged they were kept in Kusper's office until 2 p.m. Nov. 2, Election Day, sent to a warehouse for counting, and not delivered to polling places until after they were closed. Also asked was a recount, and an injunction barring Kusper from destroying the ballots. Some of the elections, notably in the 10th Congressional District race between incumbent Abner Mikva, Democrat declared the winner, and Samuel Young, Republican, were close enough that additional ballots might have changed the outcome.

Mom sues state over son's death

The mother of a 15-year-old boy who died after his confinement in the Valley View Youth Center in St. Charles, Ill., has filed a $2.4 million damage suit against Illinois Dept. of Corrections and center officials. Also named in the suit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, were two doctors and two lawyers.

Mrs. Mary A. Norman charged there was "wilful" medical negligence and a conspiracy to withhold information from her in the death of her son, Keith Biggerstaff, on Dec. 24, 1974. The suit charged Valley View Supt. Samuel Sublett and doctors Marvin Ziporyn and Walter C. Miller with intentionally allowing a wrongful death. They also were accused of keeping the nature of the son's illness from Mrs. Norman.

Biggerstaff was named in a juvenile petition on June 25, 1974, and placed in Valley View where he was given doses of Dilantin, an anticonvulsant drug, to control a "behavioral problem," the suit said.

Lawyer jailed in forgery case

Evanston attorney Donald S. Frey was sentenced to 40 months in prison and fined $10,000 Thursday for his conviction on two counts of forgery in Cook County Circuit Court. Frey was convicted Nov. 19 of bilking Virginia Moore, Chicago, of more than $10,000 in life insurance due her upon the death of her husband. Frey had forged the woman's signature on a check and then produced a document indicating the woman had given the money to charity.

Judge Robert J. Collins rejected requests by 13 witnesses that Frey's sentencing be delayed, and Frey's request for either probation or a work-release sentence. Collins said the incident was "obviously not an isolated instance," referring to other indictments still pending for similar offenses. He also rejected requests that Frey be allowed to stay home over Christmas. "Six years ago, Mrs. Moore had her money taken away about Christmas time," Collins said.

Farmer might be 1st swine flu case

Doctors Thursday looked into the possibility that Illinois' first case of swine flu might have infected a 27-year-old Durand area farmer. The farmer, whose name was withheld, went to the Durand Health Center in Winnebago County Tuesday for an ailment other than the swine flu virus, Dr. Diane Masters of the center said.

She said the man, who worked around pigs, showed signs of being ill. She said he told her his pigs also were ill recently. Dr. Masters said blood samples and throat cultures taken from the man were sent to various testing laboratories for analysis to determine whether he had swine flu.

The farmer returned to his farm near Durand.

License plate deadline extended

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett Thursday extended the deadline for putting new license plates on autos from Dec. 31 to Feb. 15. "Many motorists have not yet purchased plates," Howlett said, "and the extension of the deadline is for their convenience. We realize that most households have to budget their time and money closely during this busy holiday season."

License plates are on sale at 432 banks and savings and loans throughout Illinois, at 700 currency exchanges in the Chicago area and at the secretary of state's offices in Springfield and Chicago, Howlett said. He said his office has distributed 112,299 more sets of aplates this year than at the same time last year.

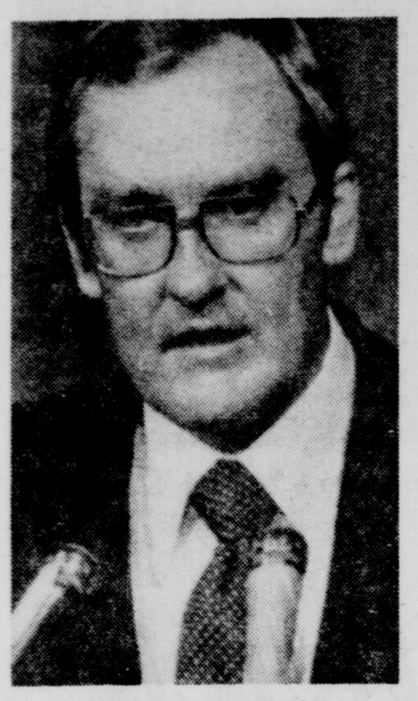
Governor's work keeps him busy

No mayoral guess: Thompson

by KURT BAER

Governor-elect James R. Thompson, once touted as a possible Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago, refused Thursday to speculate on whom his party might choose to run in a special mayoral election within the next six months.

Thompson told reporters that between now and his inauguration Jan. 10 his time will be devoted to preparing the state's 1977 budget, reviewing key issues such as school funding and making cabinet appointments.



JAMES R. THOMPSON

Only after these jobs are finished will he think about possible Republican mayoral candidates, he said.

"I KNOW WHAT THE political realities are in the Chicago city council," Thompson said. "There are 49 Democratic aldermen and one Republican. I don't think any comments from a Republican governor-elect would be particularly appreciated."

Thompson said his 1977 budget will propose new spending at a level below new revenue "so we can start putting some money back in the bank."

State Comptroller George W. Lindberg warned this week that the state's bank balance will be precariously low — $30 million to $40 million, less than one day's state spending — by the end of the fiscal year June 30.

Thompson accused out-going Gov. Daniel Walker of relying on camouflaged tax increase when the state holds up payment of its bills because of cash flow problems.

"Gov. Walker has taxed people and he has done it without due process," Thompson said.

"WHEN PEOPLE HAVE to go out and borrow money in order to run their business because the State of Illinois hasn't paid them what we owe, and when they have to pay interest on that money they borrow, it is a tax increase and a tax increase the General Assembly never enacted," he said.

Thompson said that among the problems he is studying is a dramatic increase in the state's bonded indebtedness which, he said, is "near its saturation point." The state's debt in bonds was $600 million in 1970, he said. Today it is $1.7 billion.

Despite the fact that Illinois has a triple A bond rating, the best rating possible, the state has not gotten as favorable an interest rate on its bonds as it deserves, he said.

Thompson also proposed a series of legislative and administrative changes aimed at reforming the operation and regulation of currency exchanges in Illinois.

Thompson said the changes are aimed at curbing abuses at currency exchanges that primarily serve poor and minority persons in the inner city, "persons with no reasonable access to other financial institutions."

The measures are aimed at increasing competition among currency exchanges, setting maximum and uniform check cashing fees and permitting mobile currency exchanges to visit public housing and senior citizen housing projects.

Retarded children visit Thompson office party

by KURT BAER

"I'd rather talk to them than some members of the General Assembly," said Governor-elect James R. Thompson as he welcomed three mentally retarded children to a small Christmas party on the 20th floor of the State of Illinois Building in Chicago Thursday.

The 6-foot-5-inch Thompson sat on the floor with Wayne Johnson, 5; Paul Mack, 9; and Valerie Helveman, 7, eating chocolate candy as news cameras clicked and whirred around them.

A teacher from the Misericordia school said the children had been "written off" as hopelessly retarded until they were taught to communicate using sign language.

Paul used his hands to tell Thompson he was going home for Christmas Eve, something that would not have been possible before.

The children and their teacher presented Thompson with a gift-wrapped painting one of their classmates had drawn. Thompson said he will hang it in the governor's office as a "reminder of the children at Misericordia."

Thompson gave each child a box of Christmas chocolates. "I know this is what I wanted as a child. I still do," said Thompson, who went from "Big Jim" to "Slim Jim" during his successful campaign for governor.

Thompson also gave each child an autographed photo of himself.

$2 billion in grants awarded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government approved 1,990 grants totaling nearly $2 billion Thursday to communities in every state for construction of schools, courthouses, libraries, sewer systems and similar facilities.

The money was appropriated by Congress to revive the economy, but officials in New England raised an immediate protest, charging they had been shortchanged.

Under the law, communities are required to start spending the money within 90 days of receiving it.

THE CITY COUNCIL in Lawrence, Mass., voted to seek a court order to block distribution of the funds on grounds older cities with high unemployment were discriminated against in favor of smaller, more affluent suburbs.

Mayor William C. Sullivan of Springfield, Mass., with a 13 per cent unemployment rate, charged "artificial" statistics were used to determine which applications to approve. His city received nothing.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., said he has asked for a detailed explanation of the funding decisions. "I intend to scrutinize the entire grant process," he said.

Under the law, the public works projects are financed completely by federal funds — no local funds are required, but localities must provide building sites.

THE ECONOMIC Development Administration, a Commerce Dept. agency, said contracts still must be approved individually, a process expected to start next week and to be completed in February.

But the communities notified Thursday that their applications had been selected, "subject to final clearance," could be 99.9 per cent certain of final approval, a spokesman said.

The law provided that 70 per cent of the $2 billion was to go to communities with an unemployment rate of 7.5 per cent in April, May and June, 1976, and 30 per cent to localities with less than 7.5 per cent unemployment.

One of the largest grants approved was $7,596,000 for construction of an elementary school in Newark, N.J.

Each state received at least $10 million.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., said he has asked for a detailed explanation of the funding decisions. "I intend to scrutinize the entire grant process," he said.

Under the law, the public works projects are financed completely by federal funds — no local funds are required, but localities must provide building sites.

THE ECONOMIC Development Administration, a Commerce Dept. agency, said contracts still must be approved individually, a process expected to start next week and to be completed in February.

But the communities notified Thursday that their applications had been selected, "subject to final clearance," could be 99.9 per cent certain of final approval, a spokesman said.

The law provided that 70 per cent of the $2 billion was to go to communities with an unemployment rate of 7.5 per cent in April, May and June, 1976, and 30 per cent to localities with less than 7.5 per cent unemployment.

One of the largest grants approved was $7,596,000 for construction of an elementary school in Newark, N.J.

Each state received at least $10 million.

Staff writer Diane Granat doesn't just write about education, she is involved in it. The problems she encounters in the school districts become her concerns; the progress made in local education is a source of satisfaction for her. For The Herald, Diane covers the elementary and high school districts in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Maine Township. She also reports on the State Board of Education as well as regional news in education.

While doing a feature about the problems of deaf parents unable to participate in board of education meetings without an interpreter, Diane became aware that the problem of communication lies as much with those who are able to hear as with those who cannot. Her desire to facilitate communication with the deaf led her to enroll in a sign language course in night school.

Silly, those 'haystacks' are for bikes

by JOHN N. FRANK

A bike rack is a bike rack is a bike rack . . . except at the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, Buffalo Grove.

"The normal bike rack is just an ugly monster sitting out there. It has no appeal," says Marvin Hyman, the developer of Plaza Verde.

Hyman decided when the shopping center was in its planning stages in 1974 that he didn't want "ugly monsters" spoiling the beauty of the center, he says.

HYMAN HAD SPENT numerous meetings with the village plan commission to assure them his center would be pleasant looking. "When you go to all that trouble you might as well go all the way," he says.

A business associate noticed bike racks in Vail, Colo., that looked more like metal sculptures than racks, Hyman says, so he wrote to Vail to find out where they had bought them.

"They said their source in Denver no longer made them, so I asked for some pictures," he says.

He took the pictures to a metal working firm, which copies the designs.

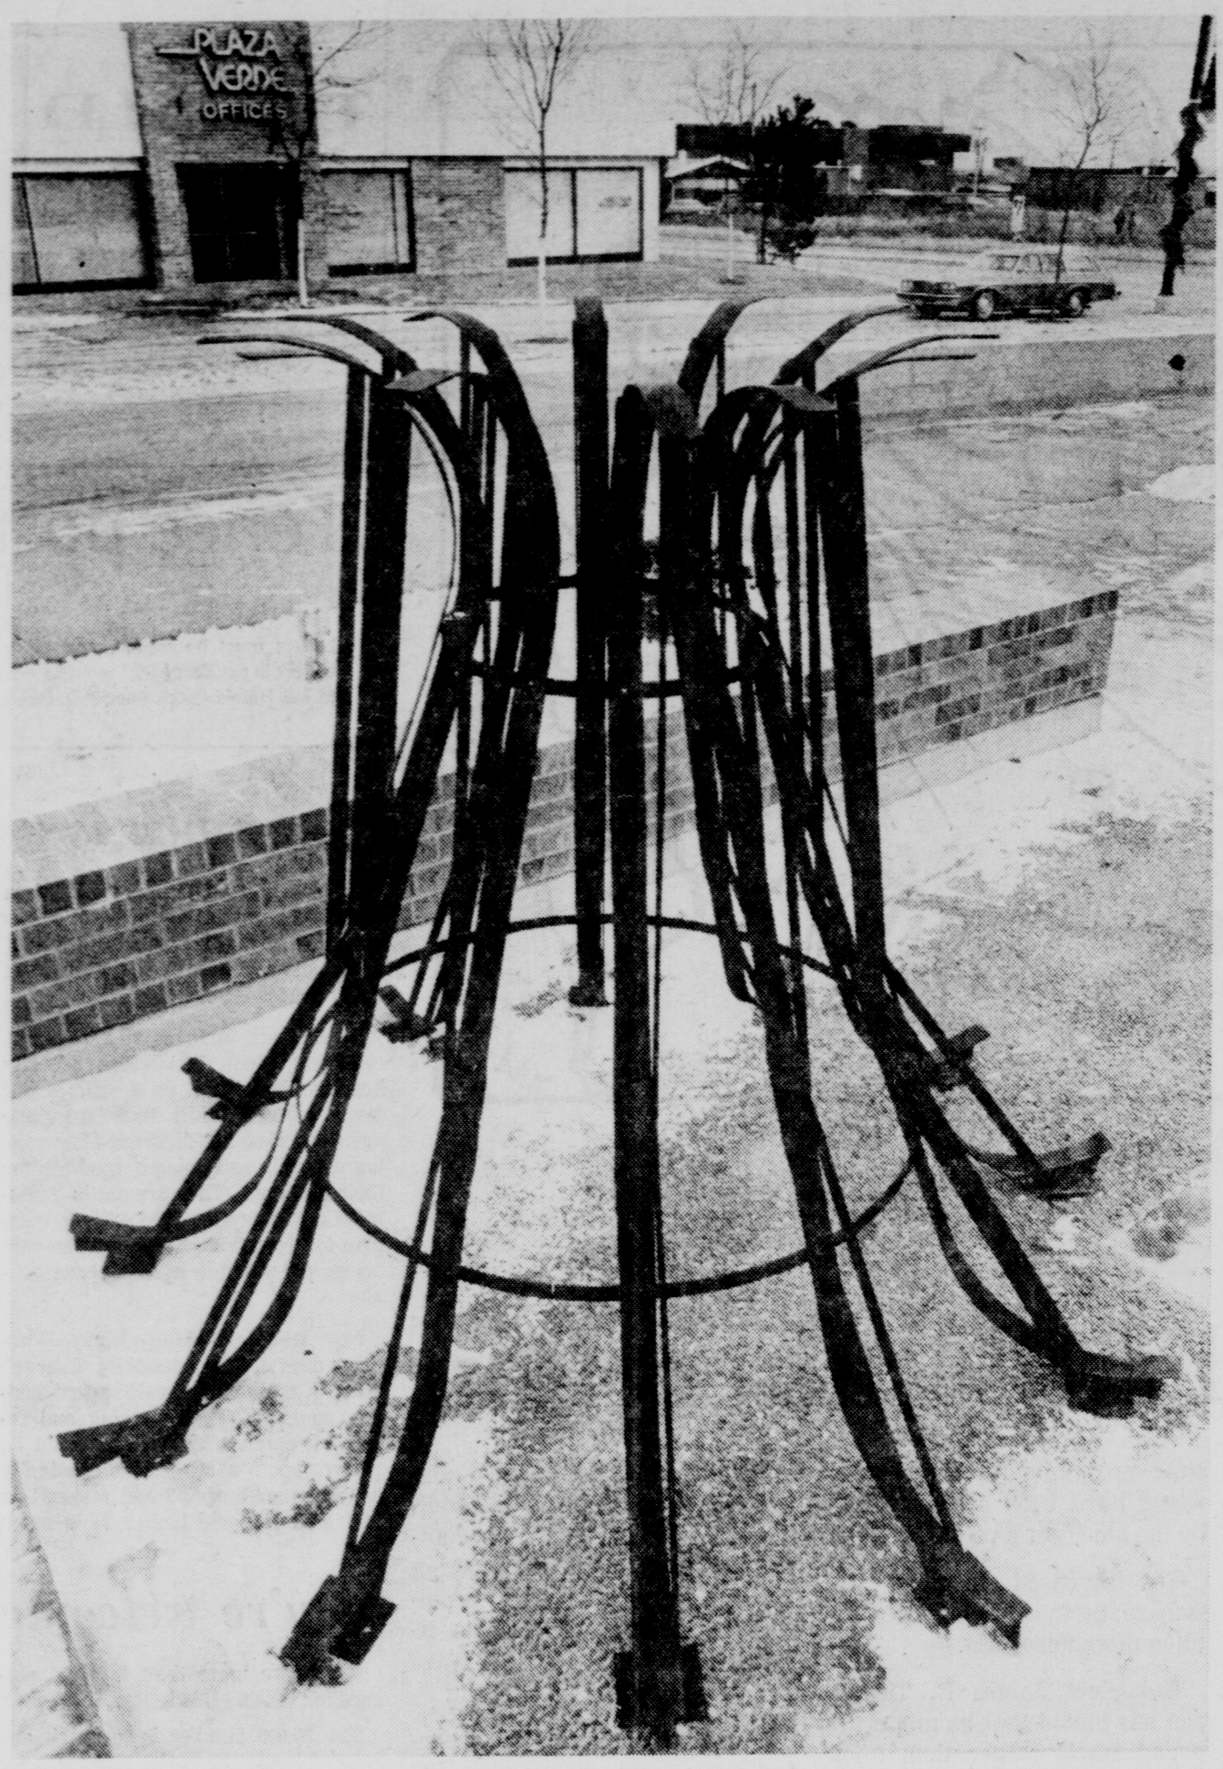
The new racks were installed last spring, but had to be removed because bikes tended to slide out of them, Hyman says.

THE TWO NEW versions, which look like haystacks, were installed last week, and Hyman says few persons realize what they are.

"People keep asking 'What are they?' ", he says.

Hyman could have bought regular metalic racks for about $100 each and avoided all the questions, but he says getting something that looked nice was more important than the money. The new racks cost $500 each.

"Word will get around and if people like them and if the kids like them we'll have more," he says.



SOME THINK it's modern art, others aren't quite sure what it is. Two of these futuristic bike racks have been installed at the Plaza Verde Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, Buffalo Grove. If people make use of them, more may be installed.

No quick CNW fare drop seen in RTA subsidy

by LYNN ASINOF

Chicago and North Western Ry. commuters are unlikely to see immediate fare reductions as a result of the railroad's new subsidy agreement with the Regional Transportation Authority.

Several RTA board members Thursday said they are in no hurry to lower North Western fares to conform with the regional fare structure used on other area railroads.

"It eventually could happen, but I would doubt there will be any great rush to do it," said RTA board member Richard Newland of Waukegan. "It would greatly increase the cost to the RTA, which we don't have the funds to meet."

Board member Patrick O'Malley of Chicago agreed, saying, "We couldn't justify losing any revenue right now." He said revenue problems must be solved before fares can be adjusted.

O'MALLEY SAID he would like to live with the new agreement for about six months before tackling the fare issue. "I think I would leave fares as they are for the time being on the North Western," he said, noting the agreement already has nullified a proposed 15 per cent fare hike for the railroad.

Fares on the North Western now are slightly higher than those on other railroads under the RTA's jurisdiction. The other railroads use a uniform fare system based on five-mile zones, and each charges the same fare.

Under the zone fare system used on other railroads, a monthly North Western train ticket from the Arlington Heights station to Chicago would cost $39.15 instead of the current $41.45. A ticket from the Des Plaines station would cost $35.10 instad of $36.30, and a Mount Prospect ticket would cost $35.10 instead of $39.55.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky said it is the board's intention to equalize rail fares, but said the matter needs more study. "I'd like to have lower fares, but I don't know whether we will be able to do that," he said.

Two board members, however, said they would like to see fares equalized as soon as possible. "If we are going to have a regional mass transit system we should have equalization across the board," said Gene Leonard of Oak Forest.

D. DANIEL BALDINO of Evanston said he also would like th eNorth Western to adopt the zone fare system.

RTA staff is not scheduled to begin studying the fare structure until early January. It then would take an estimated two months before any new fares could take effect.

Under the new subsidy agreement, the RTA has the power to establish student and senior citizen discount fares and to coordinate area bus and train schedules.

The agreement outlines a four-year subsidy for the railroad which totals $25.7 million, retroactive to fiscal 1976. The RTA board formally approved the subsidies Thursday and paid the North Western its first $6.7 million.

The board, however, will not act on an agreement to purchase the railroad's coaches and locomotives until January. The RTA and the railroad have agreed to a purchase price of $20.8 million, which is the book value of the equipment as of July 1, 1977.

EQUIPMENT WILL be leased back to the railroad at nominal fee. The railroad also will receive a $17 million grant for capital improvements, including track work and repairs to locomotives and coaches.

Only one board member, James Kemp of Chicago, opposed the equipment purchase. He said it will saddle the authority with a large debt. The RTA plans to use federal funds to purchase the equipment.

RTA to discuss regional gas tax

The Regional Transportation Authority will begin serious discussion of a regional gas tax in January at the prompting of board member Patrick O'Malley of Chicago.

"I think we have to begin to become realists on this board," O'Malley said Thursday, noting heavy budget demands in 1977. "We sit around here thinking Santa Claus is going to drop a bundle on us, and it is not going to happen."

O'Malley said he is not opposed to a differential gas tax which would be levied at different rates in various parts of the six-county RTA region.

"BUT IF WE DO go that route the City of Chicago ought to go for its full 5 per cent," he said.

O'Malley said a 5 per cent gas tax would amount to between $14 and $18 a year for the average driver. "That isn't anything you couldn't live with," he said.

Suburban directors are firmly opposed to an across-the-board gas tax, but most are willing to accept a differential tax which would have to be approved by the state legislature.

Board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston said he is convinced state legislators from the suburban areas will support a differential tax and said the RTA should push for legislative action.

NICHOLAS BOSEN, board member from Chicago, said funds may arrive too late if the RTA has to go through the legislature. "It could run until June before we get additional funding," he said.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky said staff reports indicate that "in May we will have a cash deficiency." He said it will take from 90 to 120 days from the time the board takes action for the RTA to begin receiving additional revenue.

O'Malley said he is afraid the RTA will be the last to impose a gas tax if it delays action.

"If we don't move in and make our position clear, we may find it difficult to enact this tax because of public reaction," he said.

The RTA now receives 3/32 of the state's portion of the sales tax collected in the six county area. By law, it has the power to enact a parking tax or an across-the-board gas tax.

Santa Claus to needy

Township gives Yule dinners

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Doris had figured that her Christmas dinner would be soup and sandwiches this year.

There would be no big family get-together. There would be no presents either.

She and her husband barely make ends meet. They're both getting old, and her husband recently had a leg amputated, a complication from his diabetes. They live in a mobile home in Elk Grove Village.

"It's just the two of us," Doris says, "but even so, it's difficult with rent coming due and nothing coming in."

HER CHRISTMAS received a brightener Thursday, however. She got a food basket from Elk Grove Township. It was complete with turkey and potatoes and stuffing and cranberries.

She was one of dozens of welfare and social security recipients to get the food baskets during a two-day period, according to Pauline Lucas of the township's general-assistance department.

"We're just trying as hard as we can that nobody goes without a Christmas dinner," Mrs. Lucas says, standing in the town hall.

Tables in the room were filled with wrapped packages and baskets of food.

IT IS THE SECOND year the township has been involved in playing Santa Claus to the needy. Last year, it all started when a VFW post asked if it could provide food baskets.

This year, the baskets included toys for children of all ages, and the donor groups multiplied as well.

The VFW sent more than 40 food baskets, a Boy Scout troop helped with toys, a liquor store took up a collection and sent seven canned hams as well as other food goods, a Citizens' Band radio club sent more wrapped toys, the Lions Club got involved and so did the Knights of Columbus and the Girl Scouts.

"They did a fantastic job. These organizations were totally unbelievable in the work they put in," Mrs. Lucas says. "Before, people would want to give at the Christmas season, but they didn't know where to go."

A 34-YEAR-OLD woman named Sue came in with her 3-year-old son. He is one of three boys she has. Their father doesn't live with them.

He left Sue with the three children, but he seldom bothers to send child support. Meanwhile, Sue has gone back to school so she can get a job that pays enough to support the family.

The boy rambled around the room singing Christmas carols while Mrs. Lucas pointed to a huge wrapped box containing a $40 stuffed animal. She told Sue to take it.

Sue picked up a couplé more presents. When asked, she told Mrs. Lucas she prefers ham to turkey.

Mrs. Lucas asked the youngster, "Are you going to have a merry Christmas this year?"

HE NODDED. "Santa Claus is coming."

Mrs. Lucas put the laundry basket full of food by the door, and Sue shook her head as she saw it. She's been using a box to carry laundry.

"Oh, and a laundry basket too," she exclaims. "That's all I wanted for Christmas was a laundry basket."

They began to leave and the boy pointed to the large package.

"What is that?" he asks.

Cops walk, talk program to begin

Arlington Heights police Sunday will start a "Walk and Talk" program, in which patrolmen will be ordered to patrol on foot for an hour during their eight-hour shifts.

Deputy Chief Paul Buckholz said patrolmen will talk with passersby and merchants.

"We want them to get out and meet the people," Buckholz said. "We're trying to improve communications between police and the people they serve."

Fifty patrol officers will walk the streets every day, Chief Robert P. Derks' order directs.

The exceptions to the order will be patrolmen serving on late-night and early-morning shifts, when most businesses are closed. Patrolmen will, however, be required to chat periodically with late-night service station attendants, fast-food clerks and restaurant keepers, he said.

The order is mandatory for patrolmen, optional for sergeants and other supervisory officers, Buckholz said. Most patrolmen in Arlington Heights have favored the directive, he said.

Post office again conquers Yule rush

The lines that never seemed to end are gone. Finally you can buy a stam or send a package without waiting a half hour.

The mail has gone through.

"The whole place is cleaned out," Donald Swanson, Arlington Heights postmaster, said at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Nary a card nor letter remained. The packages stacked to the ceiling most days were gone. The Arlington Heights Post Office, 909 W. Euclid Ave., had processed 13,113,000 pieces of mail since Dec. 1, Swanson said. Things finally had let up.

But no one was being sent home early.

"I wish I could, but we've got one more day left," Swanson said.

Ryan veto possible on water rate hike

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan is considering vetoing an ordinance raising water rates 42 per cent.

Ryan, who was the only board member to vote against the rate hike Monday, said he is doing more study on the subject and will decide "in a few days" whether to veto the rate hike.

"Right now I'm just reviewing my thinking on it. When I voted against it on Monday, I felt very strongly about it. I just didn't think that in this particular year that this kind of increase was necessary," Ryan said.

If Ryan does veto the rate hike, it will be presented to the village board again Jan. 3. If Ryan signs the ordinance, the new rate will become effective Jan. 1.

The water rate increase was recommended by the village administration and the village board's finance committee because the village's water system has operated at a deficit the past two years, despite considerable funding through receipts from the utility tax, which was repealed Monday.

Spears elected president of Rotary

Ron Spears, manager of B. C. Ziegler Co., has been elected president of the Rotary club of Arlington Heights for the 1977-78 club year.

Other officers include:

President-elect, Herman Olsen, owner of Suburban Rental Co.; second vice president, Charles Crompton, director of development, chemical group for Chemetron Corp.; treasurer, Gary Morton, data processing manager for Weber Marking; secretary, Art Perry, assistant suierintendent of planning and analysis for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Also director, Roy Lyngaas, vice president, Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan; director, Mike Silverman, partner in Heights Cleaners; director, Don Swanson, postmaster, Arlington Heights Post Office; director, Rev. Robert Gish, pastor, Southminster United Presbyterian Church.

How much is a housewife worth?

I just finished reading Barbara Ladd's column on housewives. It was very interesting. I cannot help feeling a bit disappointed in the outlook of many housewives.

First, I am in favor of housewives receiving credit for Social Security benefits. Second, it is a shame that many women fulfill their marriage vows and then are divorced after raising a family and doing a good job for their husbands. They are put in a situation and many lack the skills to compete for good jobs. These are the only points on which I agree in the article.

Now let's talk about money. What price does a good housewife deserve? What is the value of raising law-abiding, competent, hardworking and respectful children? What wage can be placed upon a wife who constantly supports her husband and makes him feel glad to come home? How much does a woman deserve for fixing 1,000 meals, doing 300 loads of washing and cleaning 1,500 rooms per year?

I guess we can conclude that a good housewife is priceless. She is far more valuable than gold and her work is stronger than steel; it can never be duplicated by any other means.

Well, what do you want? Ten-thousand or 20 thousand dollars per year. No, a real housewife wants one thing. That intangible thing called love. She wants a sincere thank you from her husband and children. Also, she likes to be treated with dignity and honor. She wants to be remembered on her birthday and anniversaries. She likes special attention from her husband and respect from her children. Yes, there is only one way to pay a priceless housewife and that is with priceless gifts, love, honor and respect.

You're welcome, glad we helped

There are more than 1,030,650 reasons for writing this letter.

The 30,000 number is for each and every Lion in the State. The 650 is for the number of Lions Clubs in Illinois participating in the 1976 Lions of Illinois Candy Day for the Blind.

The one million is for the money raised that day to help the legally blind and visually handicapped, through programs ranging from eye research to glaucoma screening to Leader Dogs for the Blind to social services and referral.

For each and every one of these reasons, we issue a heartfelt thank you to Paddock Publications for helping to make it possible. Without your support the people of Illinois would not know about our Oct. 8 fund-raiser and what it accomplishes. Without your support a little blind child might not be able to go to camp, a young adult might not be able to go to work, a grandmother might not have any contact with the outside world.

The money collected on Candy Day is still coming in to the foundation office. We already are reaching the million dollar mark and hopefully will surpass last year's donations.

The way we see it

Lawmakers used little discretion

Though the Illinois General Assembly has finished its handiwork, the tale of the fall veto session has only been partially written.

With the lawmakers finished for the year, state spending will increase $40 million between now and June 30, the end of the state's fiscal year. Total new spending authorized by the legislature adds up to more than $100 million.

The charge can be made that reckless spenders were at work in Springfield, but that approach would be simplistic.

An attempt to analyze the override votes of our legislators produced no discernible pattern. A few lawmakers said they supported more spending only for the most important issues.

That logic seemed to prevail both in Springfield and back home after the session was over. It produced a fluid coalition of lawmakers voting to spend money which the state reportedly does not have.

Lawmakers should have shown more discretion. Few state programs or departments would have been seriously hurt by the governor's vetoes.

The increased spending will only make the state's fiscal situation more uncertain.

Gov.-elect James R. Thompson has hinted that he might impound funds rather than allow the state to be spent into bankruptcy.

Despite the overall irresponsibility of the legislature, Thompson should move cautiously before taking such an extreme action.

Legislators who avoided the temptation to approve the additional spending should be commended. While reckless voting against programs is never a palatable approach; the state's financial condition should have been the impetus for restraint.

Those who ignored the warning signs and succumbed to the temptation to spend more cannot reverse what they have done. They can only be admonished and reminded that the new legislative session is not the time to continue the spending spree in Illinois.

The true spirit of Christmas still lies in giving

Twenty needy families in Chicago will have a Merry Christmas this year thanks to Gary and Annette Smith.

The young Buffalo Grove couple decided six years ago to share their Christmas with a family less fortunate than themselves.

The experience was so rewarding that it has become a tradition with the Smiths.

Working with St. Joseph's Church, a parish that covers the Cabrini Green housing development in Chicago's inner city, the Smiths each year collect clothes, toys and other gifts and play Santa Claus to inner city families.

This year the list of needy families grew to 20, and the Smiths put out a call for help in The Herald.

Presents came in by the truckloads as area residents heeded the Smith's message of sharing their Christmas with those less fortunate. Churches, schools, civic organizations, businesses and individuals all donated time and gifts.

The response was so overwhelming that the Smiths contacted St. Joseph's Church and got the names of two more needy families.

Thanks to people who cared, 97 children will find presents under their tree when they wake up Christmas morning.

It's heartening in these times when one hears so much about the commercialization of Christmas to realize there are still people who care and know the true meaning of Christmas.

Illegal aliens confound our laws

by TOM TIEDE
A commentary

WASHINGTON — A man I know is breaking several laws of this country. He is an illegal alien, a citizen of Mexico come to Washington where the pickings are better. He works in a service station, and as far as I can determine he is in violation of U.S. immigration, labor, public assistance and tax regulations.

Yet I do not turn him in. He is a splendid man, cheerful and bright, and he has shown me photographs of his family back home. I like him and feel for him. I know he's wrong, but I'm not able to do what's right; indeed, I'm not even sure what is right.

In this regard I am something of a microcosm of the national attitude toward illegal aliens. Most Americans are at least somewhat aware of their increasing presence, and also of the grief they engender. We know we can't afford to be benevolent. We know we must stop the madness. We even know how to do it. And still we do not act.

NOT THAT WE haven't agonized to a good extent. According to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, as many as a million foreigners, mostly from Mexico, are silently invading the nation annually. Ten million may be here now, more or less permanently. Many states and the federal government call the phenomenon a crisis.

Already the illegals account for perhaps three-million jobs that would otherwise be available to legitimate residents. Vernon Jervis of the Immigration Department says at least one million of the jobs are substantial. And the work is not the only thing lost; much of the $3 billion to $10 billion earned each year by illegals is untaxed and sent by the wage earners to be spent in their home nations.

AND, AS THINGS stand now, it can only get worse. For years immigration has admitted that its border patrol, though substantial, is unable to cope with the matter. Meanwhile, Mexico's population (now 60 million) is doubling every 20 years, pauperism there is common, the per capita GNP is a thin $740, space and resources are shrinking, and more and more peons are seeking relief in America.

Therefore the outlook is numbing. By 1980 there may be 15 million of them here, accounting for something ilke 6 per cent of the population. Combined earnings of the more fortunate among these may total as much as $50 million a day by some estimates. Others, less fortunate, will assuredly be causing havoc in the public hospitals, welfare agencies, jails and slums of a dozen or more affected states.

Also by then there may be additional misfortunes of a social nature. Last year disgusted farm workers in New Mexico set up a border patrol of their own, using violence, to flag the rush of illegals. Even now there are gangs of young bandits raping and robbing the legally defenseless aliens crossing the border into California. Authorities predict far more of this behavior as bitterness deepens.

BUT STILL, faced with this clear and present danger, America seems to be incapable of reacting quickly and effectively. Congress has wrestled with several bills — one of which would make the hiring of illegals a crime (as of now, it's not) — but to no good end. All the while, 3,000 more Mexicans arrive here every day.

The reason for our collective impotency is that we are in the grip of our own compassion. A law against hiring illegals, it's suggested, would be a burden on every Hispanic in the nation. The law might also place thousands of well-meaning employers in jeopardy. And then there are the illegals themselves; the U.S. Catholic Conference says we should grant the aliens already here a humane amnesty.

In the end, if there is to be an end to the invasion, someone will have to be hurt. Laws of such scope inevitably shatter the customs or conveniences of many. National identity papers? Greater regulation of business? More surveillance of one unfortunate minority? Then, too, if the cheap labor is one day kept out, every one of us may be stung by higher prices for our apples and lettuce.

What is right? Which answer is best? Don't ask me. I only know I enjoy my wetback gas attendant. I've no thought of busting him. Today I've given him a card for Christmas. Kindness is weak.

They have it but don't use it

A different kind of RTA problem

by DON OAKLEY

You can lead a commuter to public transportation, but you can't make him use it. The experience of one of the nation's most populous counties is a case in point.

Cuyahoga County, Ohio, of which Cleveland is the seat, has in at least one respect one of the best systems of public transportation in the country. Cleveland is, in fact, the only city in the world with a direct rapid transit connection between its airport and downtown.

A couple of years ago, county voters approved the establishment of a Regional Transit Authority (RTA) and an increase in the local sales tax which enabled bus and rapid transit fares to be cut to a maximum of 35 cents, including the airport run.

Yet a recent survey by researchers at Case Western Reserve University found that "despite an extensive, inexpensive and well-managed transit operation in Cuyahoga County, only a small percentage of travel is handled by RTA." Commuter traffic continues to be dominated by the private automobile.

The figures are 13 per cent of the county's working population using public transportaton vs. 87 per cent using private transportation.

One of the questions the researchers sought to answer was, under what conditions would people who now use private transportation switch to RTA?

Of those interviewed, 22 per cent said they would never use RTA, 40 per cent said they would use it only if their present mode of transportation was not available and another 6 per cent said they would use it if the cost of their present mode of travel rose much higher.

In other words, fully two-thirds of the commuters in this county indicated that it would take something like dynamite to blast them out of their automobiles. Similar sentiments can probably be found in every large metropolitan area.

This is the hard fact which those who champion public transportation in the interests of energy conservation, decreased pollution and congestion run up against. Soaring automobile prices and a 10 per cent or even 25 per cent increase in foreign oil are not likely to change this fact appreciably in the near future.

No recession, but jobless rate to rise

Inflation to ease slightly: report

PARIS (UPI) — The industrialized nations will escape recession in 1977 but inflation will ease only slightly and unemployment will go up, a major economic report said Thursday. It said news for the United States was now "slightly more cheerful."

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, which guides the economies of the rich countries, released its long-awaited forecast for the industrialized world for 1977.

The OECD issued an optimistic report in July but in October the slowdown of economic recovery brought gloomy unconfirmed reports that the organization's December report would forecast a recession for 1977.

THE NEW REPORT said "although the 1977 outlook is weaker than suggested last July, it does not add up to recession."

However, the report said recent economic developments "suggest a weaker picture after mid-1976 . . . with unemployment rising again. Inflation is now expected to slow down slightly."

At a news conference, John Fay of Britain, head of the economics and statistics department at OECD, said the forecasts were based on the assumption of an oil price increase of 4 to 5 per cent. He said it still was not clear where prices would go because two OPEC countries stuck to 5 per cent while the others asked 10 per cent.

"It depends for one thing on what the winter is like," he said.

FAY, WITH cautious optimism, said the newly forecast drop in the rich nations' growth for 1977 was only a "marginal deceleration."

"The most recent indications for the United States since our report was made are slightly more cheerful," he said.

The OECD report said the fate of the industrialized countries depends upon how big a push the three strongest members — the United States, Japan and West Germany — give to their economies in 1977.

"We have every indication that these countries — particularly the United States — are envisaging some changes in 1977. The American president-elect Carter has made that clear," he said.

The OECD report predicted the U.S. unemployment rate would drop from its present 7¾ per cent to 7½ per cent by the end of 1977. But the unemployment rate for the entire OECD area will be higher at the end of 1977 than at its peak in October 1975, the report said.

Compare to get best buy on cruise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

As the winter chills increase, so do the advertisements for cruises. Oceangoing vacations have increased vastly in popularity in recent years as more and more ships sail from more and more ports. Not long ago New York City was the principle port of embarkation for most cruises. But now Miami, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco also offer a wide selection of forays at sea. And competition has fostered the air-sea package, offering sizable air-fare discounts to Westerners who want to jet and sail from the East Coast, and vice versa.

Cruises range in duration from three-and four-day quickies to around-the-word junkets for those who have no budget to worry about. In order to get the best buy for your money, visit with a travel agent. His services will not cost you anything extra, and he's in the best position to advise you on what various ships offer for their respective rates.

Two seemingly identical cruises on different ships can have decidedly different costs for comparable rooms. The higher price may represent higher quality food, service, accommodations and entertainment, and you may prefer to spend the extra money. If you're not as finicky, you may prefer the cruise at the lower price.

ON ANY GIVEN ship there is a wide range of rooms from which to choose. Prices vary accordingly. Have your travel agent give you a deck plan of the ship. This can aid you considerably in choosing your accommodations.

Contrary to what many may think, the only difference between the higher priced rooms and the lower priced rooms is the room itself. All passengers enjoy all facilities of the ship equally.

As you study the deck plan you'll notice considerable price differences between outside rooms and inside rooms. The actual physical difference between such rooms usually is nothing more than the existence of a porthole. You can't open it, and you're rarely in your room except at night when you can't see anything out of it, so the extra price for it may be more of a luxury than you can justify. Note: Lower priced rooms are booked far in advance; if you want your best choice, plan early.

The room price is virtually your total cost for the cruise. It includes all shipboard facilities and meals, but it does not include the following:

- Tipping. Optional, and depending on service. A common range of recommended tipping is $1 to $1.50 per person per day to your room steward and the same to your dining room waiter. These people in turn take care of their assistants.
- Drinks and personal effects purchased on board.
- Land excursions and shopping. All ships offer land excursions in the various ports of call. The more adventurous and budget-minded may prefer to join with other passengers in renting a taxi, as opposed to the more organized bus tours run by the ship.

Unplug yourself from the real world and go to sea. It's unlike anything else.

Sikorsky to build Army helicopters

The Army Thursday awarded Sikorsky Aircraft Division a $3.4 billion contract to build utility helicopters, a decision that will mean at least 2,000 jobs for Connecticut and a loss of 600 jobs in Pennsylvania. Assistant Army Sec. Edward Miller said Sikorsky, of Stratford, Conn., a division of United Technologies Corp., was chosen over Boeing-Vertol Corp. of Ridley Township, Pa., to build 1,104 of the UTTAS (Utility Tactical Transport Aircraft System) helicopters over an eight-year period.

Miller said Sikorsky's prototype was chosen because its prototype was superior in cost and performance. Vertol's, he said, "was adversely affected by too heavy an aircraft and vibration." The good news was read to 6,100 Sikorsky employes over the public address system of the Stratford plant. President Gerald J. Tobias said Sikorsky "is proud to have been selected . . . The program is the most significant government program for helicopters in the last two decades."

Sikorsky spokesman Robert Carroll said this meant 2,000 new jobs. Rep. Robert H. Giaimo, D-Conn., predicted another 4,000 jobs will be created in a state with an 8.1 per cent unemployment rate. A Boeing-Vertol spokesman said 600 workers on the UTTAS project soon would be laid off. Those 2,000 jobs would have gone to Pennsylvania if Boeing had won. A number of workers believed the decision was political. "If Pennsylvania had gone for Ford, you can be damn sure we would have gotten the contract," said one, who refused to be identified.

First Federal opening Dec. 27

A new, full-service branch of First Federal of Chicago is scheduled to open next week at 790 Mall Dr. in Schaumburg, across from the Woodfield Mall. It will be the seventeenth Chicago-area location for First Federal, which has offices in Mount Prospect, Park Ridge and Niles.

The new branch will be in a temporary building that served as First Federal's Mount Prospect office for three years until a new building was completed in October.

A new building for the Schaumburg office still is being planned. The temporary office at Schaumburg features six teller stations, five financial counselor areas and a driveup facility.

Lobby hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Drive-up hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Four bank officials promoted

First National Bank of Des Plaines said the board of directors has elected four bank executives to new offices. Wilfred J. Strunk, formerly assistant vice president, has been promoted to vice president. Strunk has had 25 years' banking experience in the Northwest suburban area. A graduate of Northwestern University and Wright Junior College, he has taken many specialized banking courses at the American Institute of Banking and the University of Wisconsin.

Bruce Johnston and Gary Bogenberger, both formerly assistant cashiers, have been named assistant vice presidents. Johnston earned a bachelor of science degree in economics from Blackburn College, Carlinville, Ill., in 1968 and a masers degree in 1970 from Northern Illinois University. Since coming to the First National Bank of Des Plaines, he has completed a specialized banking course at the University of Wisconsin.

Bogenberger attended the University of Iowa and is studying finance at Northern Illinois University. He has been with the bank for 3½ years, working in trust, new accounts and loan departments.

Lyla Guthardt, an assistant vice president, has been named manager of the First National Bank Convenience Center. She has worked in the installment loan department for seven years. She has been with the bank for 14 years. She also has worked in Chicago banks.

Bus line seeks to cut ticket price

Continental Trailways Thursday said it had asked federal approval of a plan to reduce one-way, coast-to-coast bus fares for adults to $50 or less in order to compete with airlines. Under the proposal, children less than 12 would travel free. Dennis Barron, a Continental vice president, said the fare cuts would be in effect from Jan. 3 until March 31, subject to Interstate Commerce Commission approval.

Other special fares included the Jimmy Carter Inauguration Special, providing 50 per cent reductions on round trips to Washington from Jan. 16 to 24. "This is our biggest price cut to date, and it should improve our first quarter ridership, which is traditionally one of our slowest traffic periods," Barron said.

Status seekers try a Cartier car

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

It's one thing to wear a scarf or a tee shirt with a status signature or logo. But a car? Who's going to buy a car signed by Bill Blass, Givenchy, Pucci and Ralph Destino — especially, Ralph Destino?

Plenty of people with roughly $15,000 to spare, according to Ford Motor Company whose Designer Mark V series of Lincoln-Continentals accounts for 27 per cent of its business.

You have to do it right, of course. You don't splash the signature all over the hood or anything; you put it there on the back, large enough to impress but not obtrude.

And in the case of Ralph Destino, who so to speak led the pack in sales last year (followed by Blass, Givenchy and Pucci), you make sure he signs his company's name — Cartier.

DESTINO, PRESIDENT of the prestigious jewelry concern, explained in a recent phone interview what it takes to fashion a car.

"First of all, each of us was responsible for the basic color of the car and in that context, Lincoln-Mercury showed us an absoluttely immense range of colors."

But in the '77 model, his choice was narrowed down a bit because he was the last to get to Detroit and Blass had already picked blue and cream; Pucci, black and white, and Givenchy, "deep jade." So Destino, in keeping with Cartier's image as 'a classic, understated, old-world house," chose dove gray.

"We were then asked to determine the top of the car which could have been a uniform one-piece top, completely vinyl or steel, or a combination. We were given 20-25 roof designs and I chose a modified landau roof in which the front is dove gray steel and the back a different shade of gray in vinyl.

"And from there we went to the trim on the body, i.e., chrome strips, yes, no, how much, how little; paint stripes, yes, no, etc. . . ."

He said definitely "no" to chrome because "I was working to have a discreet car and the greater the chrome, the lesser the discretion."

But what could be more discreet than a horizontal, deep burgundy pencil stripe? Burgundy, after all, is Cartier's house color. And with the firm's interlocking logo C "in a deep burgundy again," placed just so, well, talk about class . . .

INSIDE, DESTINO, STILL working in complementary grays, decided on "gray leather cushioned seats as standard upholstery and, as an option — and I love this, I'm getting it — a gray flannel cloth."

He added gray touches to the sun visor and the arm rests; and then, since all Continentals "whether they're in the designer group or not, have Cartier clocks in them," smiled discreetly at his built-in edge on the competition.

The whole process took him six days, "two each on three trips to Detroit." And he assumes an appropriately conservative stance regarding his success.

"It's hard to determine if we outsold the others because of the enormous cachet the Cartier name enjoys or if that consumer who is Lincoln-Continental-minded felt the image they wanted to reflect coincides with ours."

So much for cars. Maybe next they will sign condominiums, or supermarkets, or what about a freeway with a burgundy stripe drawn down the middle?

Holiday trading pushes Dow up 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last-minute Christmas shopping pushed prices slightly higher over-all Thursday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange. But transportation issues skidded because of negative assessments.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly four points at the outset and off a point later, finished with a gain of 1.08 to 985.62. It closed at the highest level since it finished at 990.19 on Sept. 30. The Dow gained 6.56 points for the abbreviated week, including 6.15 Wednesday.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.05 to 56.49 and the average price of a common share increased 3 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, added 0.13 to 104.84.

HOWEVER, THE Dow Jones transportation average plunged 3.86 to 231.87 following published reports that analysts were skittish about rail stocks and that TWA is faced with serious problems.

Of the 1,948 issues crossing the tape, 782 declined, 723 advanced and 443 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 24,560,000 shares, down slightly from the 26,970,000 traded Wednesday. The market will be closed today.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of a common share rose 6 cents. Volume totaled 3,070,000 shares, compared with 3,170,000 traded Wednesday.

No recession, but jobless rate to rise

Inflation to ease slightly: report

PARIS (UPI) — The industrialized nations will escape recession in 1977 but inflation will ease only slightly and unemployment will go up, a major economic report said Thursday. It said news for the United States was now "slightly more cheerful."

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, which guides the economies of the rich countries, released its long-awaited forecast for the industrialized world for 1977.

The OECD issued an optimistic report in July but in October the slowdown of economic recovery brought gloomy unconfirmed reports that the organization's December report would forecast a recession for 1977.

THE NEW REPORT said "although the 1977 outlook is weaker than suggested last July, it does not add up to recession."

However, the report said recent economic developments "suggest a weaker picture after mid-1976 . . . with unemployment rising again. Inflation is now expected to slow down slightly."

At a news conference, John Fay of Britain, head of the economics and statistics department at OECD, said the forecasts were based on the assumption of an oil price increase of 4 to 5 per cent. He said it still was not clear where prices would go because two OPEC countries stuck to 5 per cent while the others asked 10 per cent.

"It depends for one thing on what the winter is like," he said.

FAY, WITH cautious optimism, said the newly forecast drop in the rich nations' growth for 1977 was only a "marginal deceleration."

"The most recent indications for the United States since our report was made are slightly more cheerful," he said.

The OECD report said the fate of the industrialized countries depends upon how big a push the three strongest members — the United States, Japan and West Germany — give to their economies in 1977.

"We have every indication that these countries — particularly the United States — are envisaging some changes in 1977. The American president-elect Carter has made that clear," he said.

The OECD report predicted the U.S. unemployment rate would drop from its present 7¾ per cent to 7½ per cent by the end of 1977. But the unemployment rate for the entire OECD area will be higher at the end of 1977 than at its peak in October 1975, the report said.

Compare to get best buy on cruise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

As the winter chills increase, so do the advertisements for cruises. Oceangoing vacations have increased vastly in popularity in recent years as more and more ships sail from more and more ports. Not long ago New York City was the principle port of embarkation for most cruises. But now Miami, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco also offer a wide selection of forays at sea. And competition has fostered the air-sea package, offering sizable air-fare discounts to Westerners who want to jet and sail from the East Coast, and vice versa.

Cruises range in duration from three-and four-day quickies to around-the-word junkets for those who have no budget to worry about. In order to get the best buy for your money, visit with a travel agent. His services will not cost you anything extra, and he's in the best position to advise you on what various ships offer for their respective rates.

Two seemingly identical cruises on different ships can have decidedly different costs for comparable rooms. The higher price may represent higher quality food, service, accommodations and entertainment, and you may prefer to spend the extra money. If you're not as finicky, you may prefer the cruise at the lower price.

ON ANY GIVEN ship there is a wide range of rooms from which to choose. Prices vary accordingly. Have your travel agent give you a deck plan of the ship. This can aid you considerably in choosing your accommodations.

Contrary to what many may think, the only difference between the higher priced rooms and the lower priced rooms is the room itself. All passengers enjoy all facilities of the ship equally.

As you study the deck plan you'll notice considerable price differences between outside rooms and inside rooms. The actual physical difference between such rooms usually is nothing more than the existence of a porthole. You can't open it, and you're rarely in your room except at night when you can't see anything out of it, so the extra price for it may be more of a luxury than you can justify. Note: Lower priced rooms are booked far in advance; if you want your best choice, plan early.

The room price is virtually your total cost for the cruise. It includes all shipboard facilities and meals, but it does not include the following:

- Tipping. Optional, and depending on service. A common range of recommended tipping is $1 to $1.50 per person per day to your room steward and the same to your dining room waiter. These people in turn take care of their assistants.
- Drinks and personal effects purchased on board.
- Land excursions and shopping. All ships offer land excursions in the various ports of call. The more adventurous and budget-minded may prefer to join with other passengers in renting a taxi, as opposed to the more organized bus tours run by the ship.

Unplug yourself from the real world and go to sea. It's unlike anything else.

Sikorsky to build Army helicopters

The Army Thursday awarded Sikorsky Aircraft Division a $3.4 billion contract to build utility helicopters, a decision that will mean at least 2,000 jobs for Connecticut and a loss of 600 jobs in Pennsylvania. Assistant Army Sec. Edward Miller said Sikorsky, of Stratford, Conn., a division of United Technologies Corp., was chosen over Boeing-Vertol Corp. of Ridley Township, Pa., to build 1,104 of the UTTAS (Utility Tactical Transport Aircraft System) helicopters over an eight-year period.

Miller said Sikorsky's prototype was chosen because its prototype was superior in cost and performance. Vertol's, he said, "was adversely affected by too heavy an aircraft and vibration." The good news was read to 6,100 Sikorsky employes over the public address system of the Stratford plant. President Gerald J. Tobias said Sikorsky "is proud to have been selected . . . The program is the most significant government program for helicopters in the last two decades."

Sikorsky spokesman Robert Carroll said this meant 2,000 new jobs. Rep. Robert H. Giaimo, D-Conn., predicted another 4,000 jobs will be created in a state with an 8.1 per cent unemployment rate. A Boeing-Vertol spokesman said 600 workers on the UTTAS project soon would be laid off. Those 2,000 jobs would have gone to Pennsylvania if Boeing had won. A number of workers believed the decision was political. "If Pennsylvania had gone for Ford, you can be damn sure we would have gotten the contract," said one, who refused to be identified.

TRUCKERS IN Chester, Pa., irate about the closing of ramps leading to the Commodore Barry Bridge from Interstate Highway I-95, blockaded the multi-lane highway Thursday morning causing a massive traffic backup and the re-routing of travelers in the area.

Jet's 'gotta go!' passenger gives up

A passenger, angered because all the rest rooms were occupied aboard a Delta Air Lines Boeing 727, yelled "I gotta go!" brandished a knife at a stewardess and threatened to "take over" the plane, police in Miami reported Thursday. However, the passenger, identified as William Edward White, 44, Union City, N.J., apparently made no attempt to enter the cockpit of the plane and surrendered without resistance when met by police at Miami International Airport.

The plane was en route from Newark, N.J., to Miami. White was placed in a holding cell at the Airport Security Office to undergo questioning by Dade County Public Safety police and FBI agents.

Levi praises Griffin Bell

Attorney General Edward Levi Thursday described Griffin Bell, his designated successor, as an "able and distinguished judge" and said he regards Bell's close friendship with Jimmy Carter as a plus. Levi, in a wide-ranging luncheon discussion with reporters, also said he thinks Bell's past membership in clubs which discriminate against minorities is less important than his 15-year record on the U.S. Court of Appeals.

"I think he's been an able and distinguished judge," Levi said. "My impression of that comes over years of casual reading of opinions, but also knowing how he is regarded by other judges."

Watergate bagman convicted

Watergate bagman — and gagman — Anthony Ulasewicz was convicted Thursday of two counts of filing false tax returns. The verdict in U.S. District Court came only one hour and 40 minutes after Judge Edward R. Neaher sent the case to the jury. The 57-year-old former New York City cop faces a sentence of six years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

He was charged with failing to report on his 1971 and 1972 tax returns $41,000 he earned as an operative for the Nixon White House. Ulasewicz brightened the usually somber Senate Watergate Committee hearings in 1973 with his tales of carrying bundles of hush money around in lunch bags. "If you carried around a strong box, you'd get in trouble," he said.

U.S. warned on canal issue

In a confidential letter to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Panama's strongman General Omar Torrijos warned that recent "rash accusations" by the United Sttes may threaten the security of the Panama Canal and negotiations on a new treaty. "I am writing you this letter to warn you that it is not with threats that you will gain our support and continued vigilance, which will ensure that the canal continues to operate efficiently and with the proper defense," said Torrijos in his Nov. '9 letter to Kissinger.

The note was made public Thursday by the Panamanian Embassy in Washington in the wake of published reports, quoting Defense and State department "secret cables," that recent terrorist activities in the U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Zone allegedly were carried out by members of Panama's National Guard.

Careful with CB antennas

Citing 92 deaths and 156 injuries, the Consumer Product Safety Commission Thursday issued a warning about the electrocution dangers of citizen band radio antennas. Most of the accidents, the agency said, involved the antennas coming into contact with power lines when they were being put up or taken down from mountings.

"Avoid putting up antennas anywhere in the vicinity of power lines. If this cannot be avoided, contact the power company in advance for further instructions," the agency said.

Grenade kills 3 in Beirut

An antitank grenade exploded Thursday outside the Beirut offices of the independent newspaper An Nahar, killing the man who carried it and a Syrian soldier. Three persons were wounded. The blast coincided with the convening of parliament in its first post-war session, at which Prime Minister Seli mAl Hoss asked the lawmakers for special powers to rule the country by decree for the next six months. Syrian troops of the Arab peacekeeping force were stationed at the An Nahar building, which they occupied last week as part of th drive to silence leftist and middle-of-the-road newspapers.

Japan's Fukuda set to reign

Takeo Fukuda, set to take over as prime minister Friday, said Thursday Japan's foreign policy will not change and agreed with President-elect Jimmy Carter on the need for an early summit meeting of non-Communist leaders. Fukuda, 71, replaces outgoing Prime Minister Takeo Miki and will have the job of leading Japan out of a business recession and reforming his scandal-tainted ruling Liberal Democratic party.

Committeemen seek more power

County leaders to meet Monday

by STEVE BROWN

Cook County's 30 Democratic township committeemen will meet Monday night in an effort to grab power within the party after the death of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The suburban committeemen, long outside the party's inner circle, have been talking informally since Daley died, but they were hesitant to make public statements until after Daley's funeral.

Niles Village Pres. Nicholas Blase, the Maine Township Democratic committeeman, released word of the meeting at the Ambassador West Hotel.

"IT WILL BE a private meeting for the committeemen from the suburbs to get together to see if we can come up with a unified position," he said.

Blase said it probably is unrealistic to expect the new county chairman to come from suburban ranks.

The election of the chairman will be conducted in January, using the traditional weighted vote based on the number of Democratic voters in the last primary election. This system traditionally has given the 50 Chicago ward committeemen the power to control the selection of party chairman.

Blase said many potential successors for Daley have been mentioned, but Cook County Board Pres. George W. Dunne seems to be conducting the most active campaign.

Dunne said Wednesday he would be available for the party leadership post if others wanted him. Privately, Dunne has been seeking support from a number of sources.

BLASE WAS hesitant about Dunne and other Democrats who have close ties with the late mayor.

"I think the suburban committeemen are going to want to sit down with all of the candidates and determine what their attitudes will be toward the suburbs," he said.

Other area committeemen also said they see Daley's death as an opportunity for the suburbs to attempt to get more power.

"I think we will have a strong say in who the next chairman will be," said Donald Norman, Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman. Norman said he has talked with most of the other township officials and a number of the city ward committeemen about the election of a new party chairman.

SCHAUMBURG Township's John Morrissey said he does not expect serious efforts to select a new chairman to begin until after Jan. 1.

Not only have the suburban committeemen been outside the power circle, some have been among Daley's major critics.

A club also was organized in Schaumburg Township after Morrissey's critics complained to Democratic officials about a lack of activity in the primary campaign.

More paralysis cases reported

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Center for Disease Control Thursday reported an increase in paralysis cases, about half of them involving persons who had received swine flu shots.

The center said no more deaths attributable to the rare Gullain-Barre paralysis syndrome had been reported, but the number of paralysis cases has risen from 172 to 223.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health Thursday said 10 cases of Guillain-Barre syndrome have been reported in the state. Three of the victims were vaccinated for swine flu, seven had not been vaccinated.

No deaths in Illinois from Guillain-Barre were reported, a department spokesman said.

Flu inoculations were halted throughout the nation last week when about 60 paralysis cases, six of them fatal, were reported among patients who had been vaccinated for swine flu.

SHOTS FOR other types of flu also were halted at that time, but health officials Thursday said they were considering resuming inoculations for flu strains other than the swine variety.

The latest figures showed that of 223 cases of paralysis, 110 of the patients had received their swine flu shots. Another 100 of the Guillain-Barre victims had not been vaccinated, and doctors could not determine if the other 13 had received shots.

The center said the spread of the rare paralysis is unprecedented and, unlike ailments that recur each flu season, there are no figures from past years to indicate what might be a predictable level of Guillain-Barre outbreaks during the winter flu season.

Of the seven Guillain-Barre victims who have died, six had been vaccinated against swine flu before the nationwide program was halted last Thursday.

In addition to the seven Guillain-Barre deaths, state health officers in Pennsylvania were investigating the death of an East Butler, Pa., man thought to be that state's first fatality attributable to the disease. The figures showed one case of paralysis in Pennsylvania, but no deaths.

The victim, Albert McIlwain, 65, had received a swine flu shot Oct. 26. He died Dec. 19 of respiratory complications thought caused by the paralysis syndrome.

TRUCKERS IN Chester, Pa., irate about the closing of ramps leading to the Commodore Barry Bridge from Interstate Highway I-95, blockaded the multi-lane highway Thursday morning causing a massive traffic backup and the re-routing of travelers in the area.

Jet's 'gotta go!' passenger gives up

A passenger, angered because all the rest rooms were occupied aboard a Delta Air Lines Boeing 727, yelled "I gotta go!" brandished a knife at a stewardess and threatened to "take over" the plane, police in Miami reported Thursday. However, the passenger, identified as William Edward White, 44, Union City, N.J., apparently made no attempt to enter the cockpit of the plane and surrendered without resistance when met by police at Miami International Airport.

The plane was en route from Newark, N.J., to Miami. White was placed in a holding cell at the Airport Security Office to undergo questioning by Dade County Public Safety police and FBI agents.

Levi praises Griffin Bell

Attorney General Edward Levi Thursday described Griffin Bell, his designated successor, as an "able and distinguished judge" and said he regards Bell's close friendship with Jimmy Carter as a plus. Levi, in a wide-ranging luncheon discussion with reporters, also said he thinks Bell's past membership in clubs which discriminate against minorities is less important than his 15-year record on the U.S. Court of Appeals.

"I think he's been an able and distinguished judge," Levi said. "My impression of that comes over years of casual reading of opinions, but also knowing how he is regarded by other judges."

Watergate bagman convicted

Watergate bagman — and gagman — Anthony Ulasewicz was convicted Thursday of two counts of filing false tax returns. The verdict in U.S. District Court came only one hour and 40 minutes after Judge Edward R. Neaher sent the case to the jury. The 57-year-old former New York City cop faces a sentence of six years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

He was charged with failing to report on his 1971 and 1972 tax returns $41,000 he earned as an operative for the Nixon White House. Ulasewicz brightened the usually somber Senate Watergate Committee hearings in 1973 with his tales of carrying bundles of hush money around in lunch bags. "If you carried around a strong box, you'd get in trouble," he said.

U.S. warned on canal issue

In a confidential letter to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Panama's strongman General Omar Torrijos warned that recent "rash accusations" by the United Sttes may threaten the security of the Panama Canal and negotiations on a new treaty. "I am writing you this letter to warn you that it is not with threats that you will gain our support and continued vigilance, which will ensure that the canal continues to operate efficiently and with the proper defense," said Torrijos in his Nov. '9 letter to Kissinger.

The note was made public Thursday by the Panamanian Embassy in Washington in the wake of published reports, quoting Defense and State department "secret cables," that recent terrorist activities in the U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Zone allegedly were carried out by members of Panama's National Guard.

Santa, the sports crowd is waiting

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house . . .

The jolly gentleman with the beard and funny red suit makes his visit tonight, and you can only wonder what he will bring.

I'm glad you asked.

Santa has some excellent ideas for the sports folks, and if Rudolph guides the way tonight, this is what they might find under the tree in the morning.

Chicago Black Hawks — A gift-wrapped Bobby Hull. Make him coach, player, president, usher, anything. Just bring him back to where he belongs, Santa, so the Stadium can rock again.

Chicago Cubs — A gift-wrapped Dave Kingman. With Kingman hitting in the cozy confines no records — or windows — would be safe.

Chicago White Sox — A gift-wrapped King Kong. Picture that. Somebody to cover some ground in the outfield and drive in a run now and then.

Chicago Bulls — Jerry West in the backcourt. Sure, he's retired and a coach but it sounds nice anyway. Let him coach — and play!

Chicago Sting — Pele. OK, Santa, the pressure is on.

Fran Tarkenton — The BIG ONE. Finally. I'd hate to see Fran — the best quarterback in the game and one of the classiest people in pro sports — end his career some day without being on one Super Bowl champion.

Pittsburgh Steelers — Just one more win. Stomp Oakland!

Oakland Raiders — One more loss. How can anybody really like this team?

Brian Allsmiller — Legs without pain so he can continue to display his superb basketball talent.

Jack Nicklaus — The Grand Slam of golf. Santa, let him get it over and done with.

Arnold Palmer — One more win. Please.

Dorothy Hamill — An expense-paid tour of The Herald sports department.

Gary Huff — An electric football game so he can play quarterback once in 1976.

Mrs. Woody Hayes — More speaking engagements. She has such a great opening line. "I always say I'm going to talk about sex and marriage, but being a football coach's wife I don't know about either."

Basketball — A new rule that elimates the offensive rebound basket. In other words, when a shot is missed, the offensive team may not put it back in the basket. They must play for clean possession and pass it to someone else before they take a shot. That would take away some of the advantage of the unusually tall man who can get the cheap basket without working too hard. Santa, this is a request from a 5-foot-9 sportswriter.

Pro football — The two-point conversion after touchdowns. Think how great it would be to second-guess the coaches on Monday mornings. "Da bum shoulda played it safe and keecked the extra point."

Jack Pardee — A tight end.

Jack Pardee — A big back.

Jack Pardee — Ron Jaworski.

Walter Payton — A whirlpool for his basement. He better relax now because he's going to be busy in 1977.

Joe DiMaggio — A cup of Sanka.

Dick Allen — A puppy so he can actually say he has a friend, somebody who listens to him.

Chicago TV sports — The return of Brent Musburger, or at least some compensation from New York for taking our best announcer.

Henny Youngman — A job as a Chicago sports announcer. This city's struggling teams deserve the master of the one-liner.

Don Rickles — A job as a Chicago sports announcer. Is any explanation needed, Santa?

Bill Veeck — Good health and a winner.

Curt Gowdy — A year free from sniping by the press. Gowdy, a fine sports announcer, has kept a good handle on himself and is still regarded by his cohorts as the same warm, sensitive, caring person today he was when he broke into the business. He doesn't deserve so many cheap shots from the critics.

New York Jets and Giants fans — A banner that proclaims, "We're No. 26" when unfurled.

Seattle, Buffalo fans — A banner that proclaims "We're No. 27."

Tampa Bay fans — A banner that proclaims "We're No. 28."

Bowie Kuhn — A Christmas card from Charlie Finley.

Charlie Finley — A Christmas card from Bowie Kuhn.

George Halas — A Christmas card from Dick Butkus.

Dick Butkus — A Christmas card from George Halas and a copy of the X-rays.

Harry Caray — A Bloody Mary.

". . . But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

Highland Park takes Prospect wrestling title

by KEITH REINHARD

The newcomers didn't waste much time establishing themselves at the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tourney.

Propelling five grapplers into the finals and claiming a pair of titles, Highland Park stalked off with championship honors at the 18th annual affair.

Added to the lineup when Rockford East was unable to participate, the Central Suburban League school edged out Downers Grove North, 111-103, for top honors while defending champ York fell off to third place at 97.

Forest View, while failing to claim any individual laurels, claimed fourth place at 56 followed by Maine South (53½), Maine North (48½), the host Knights (47½) and Niles North (43½).

PROSPECT WAS represented twice in the winner's circle with Todd Doney earning a narrow overtime verdict in the 155-pound showdown and Carl Schimmelman taking his second straight tournament title in a dramatic windup at 185.

Schimmelman was one of three matmen winning repeat crowns. Bill Porter of Niles West, who was named the meet's outstanding wrestler, was an impressive victor at 119 after taking the 112-pound championship hardware in 1975.

York's Jim Farina, up from 126 to 138, was the other repeater.

THE DAY'S HARD-LUCK story belonged to Forest View 98-pounder Mike Lucansky, who last year advanced all the way to the finals only to be dumped by Noel Carter of Downers Grove.

Lucansky scrapped his way to the finals again Thursday, only to have Jim Matson of Duke decision him in the title bout, 8-2.

The only other Falcon finalist met a similar fate. Lon Reitz at 185, upped his record to 14-0 while advancing to the championship round against Schimmelman. Reitz had edged the Prospect entry 5-4 in a dual meet earlier in the season but Schimmelman was out for revenge Thursday and jumped into a quick 5-0 opening round lead en route to a 9-4 romp.

DONEY TURNED back Steve Mikos of Maine South in the finals at 155. Mikos was penalized a point for stalling with 12 seconds remaining in regulation time to forge a 1-1 stalemate and send the match into overtime.

In the third extra round Doney broke the bout open and triumphed 4-1.

Porter won at 119 after his brother, Bob, had captured the 112-pound crown. He earned the blue ribbon by blanking last year's 98-pound champ

FOREST VIEW'S Mike Lucansky (right) appears to be riding herd over Jim Matson of York, but the 98-pound Falcon lost his title bout to Matson, 8-2, in the windup of the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tourney Thursday evening. Highland Park won the meet.

The only matching clothes they wear anymore are the uniforms of the Fremd High School gymnastics team and people, know them so well now they can no longer switch classes when it is convenient.

Followers of Mid-Suburban League gymnastics may get to know them better because they could be the first twins to finish first and second in the conference all-around race.

And the younger twin is a good bet to succeed Maine South's Craig Martin as the state all-around champion.

THEY ARE Dave and Doug Smidl and once Dave takes his glasses off they are a walking argument that it is time gymnasts began wearing numbers for identification.

"Once people get to know us," said Dave, who preceded his brother into the world by 10 minutes, "we're easy to tell apart.

"And since I wear glasses now we can't pull any of the stuff we used to."

There was a time not too long ago when Doug had an important test to study for. Dave had a study hall so, as Doug related, "Dave went to one of my classes while I went to his study hall to study for the test. It worked out pretty well."

"Everybody knew but the teacher," Dave said.

THEY BEGIN TO do that when they are together, anticipating each other's thoughts and extending them.

"If we finished one-two in the (conference) all-around that would be a scream," Dave said.

"Right now that's what we're working on, the conference meet," Doug continued.

"And the state meet, for you," Dave said.

"Yeah, the state meet, too." Doug concluded.

There is a good chance they will both be in the state meet come March.

DAVE'S STRONGEST events are still rings and side horse and Fremd coach Tom Potter thinks the elder Smidl has a good chance to qualify for the state finals on rings.

"But," Dave points out, "the rings are probably the hardest event to qualify on."

"There always seem to be good ring men around," his brother added.

"I remember an 8.25 didn't make it last year," Dave said, "and that's pretty good."

FOR DOUG, who has led the MSL all-arounders for the past two weeks with averages of 7.40 and 7.83, the road may be easier.

"Side horse is my strongest event," he said, "and that's usually an all-arounder's weakness."

Doug's side horse strength is evident in that he has had the best side horse score in the league the past three weeks and tied for fifth in the state last year.

Barrington lands top cage prospect

Barrington High School, which joins the Mid-Suburban League for 1977-78, has landed one of Rockford's most promising young basketball players.

Isaac Person, a 6-foot-5 sophomore who played for the Rockford East varsity in last year's regional tournament, has enrolled at Barrington and started classes.

Person's family will be moving to the Barrington School district Dec. 27. His parents will commute to the Belvidere Chrysler Plant, where both are employed.

Santa, the sports crowd is waiting

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house . . .

The jolly gentleman with the beard and funny red suit makes his visit tonight, and you can only wonder what he will bring.

I'm glad you asked.

Santa has some excellent ideas for the sports folks, and if Rudolph guides the way tonight, this is what they might find under the tree in the morning.

Chicago Black Hawks — A gift-wrapped Bobby Hull. Make him coach, player, president, usher, anything. Just bring him back to where he belongs, Santa, so the Stadium can rock again.

Chicago Cubs — A gift-wrapped Dave Kingman. With Kingman hitting in the cozy confines no records — or windows — would be safe.

Chicago White Sox — A gift-wrapped King Kong. Picture that. Somebody to cover some ground in the outfield and drive in a run now and then.

Chicago Bulls — Jerry West in the backcourt. Sure, he's retired and a coach but it sounds nice anyway. Let him coach — and play!

Chicago Sting — Pele. OK, Santa, the pressure is on.

Fran Tarkenton — The BIG ONE. Finally. I'd hate to see Fran — the best quarterback in the game and one of the classiest people in pro sports — end his career some day without being on one Super Bowl champion.

Pittsburgh Steelers — Just one more win. Stomp Oakland!

Oakland Raiders — One more loss. How can anybody really like this team?

Brian Allsmiller — Legs without pain so he can continue to display his superb basketball talent.

Jack Nicklaus — The Grand Slam of golf. Santa, let him get it over and done with.

Arnold Palmer — One more win. Please.

Dorothy Hamill — An expense-paid tour of The Herald sports department.

Gary Huff — An electric football game so he can play quarterback once in 1976.

Mrs. Woody Hayes — More speaking engagements. She has such a great opening line. "I always say I'm going to talk about sex and marriage, but being a football coach's wife I don't know about either."

Basketball — A new rule that elimates the offensive rebound basket. In other words, when a shot is missed, the offensive team may not put it back in the basket. They must play for clean possession and pass it to someone else before they take a shot. That would take away some of the advantage of the unusually tall man who can get the cheap basket without working too hard. Santa, this is a request from a 5-foot-9 sportswriter.

Pro football — The two-point conversion after touchdowns. Think how great it would be to second-guess the coaches on Monday mornings. "Da bum shoulda played it safe and keecked the extra point."

Jack Pardee — A tight end.

Jack Pardee — A big back.

Jack Pardee — Ron Jaworski.

Walter Payton — A whirlpool for his basement. He better relax now because he's going to be busy in 1977.

Joe DiMaggio — A cup of Sanka.

Dick Allen — A puppy so he can actually say he has a friend, somebody who listens to him.

Chicago TV sports — The return of Brent Musburger, or at least some compensation from New York for taking our best announcer.

Henny Youngman — A job as a Chicago sports announcer. This city's struggling teams deserve the master of the one-liner.

Don Rickles — A job as a Chicago sports announcer. Is any explanation needed, Santa?

Bill Veeck — Good health and a winner.

Curt Gowdy — A year free from sniping by the press. Gowdy, a fine sports announcer, has kept a good handle on himself and is still regarded by his cohorts as the same warm, sensitive, caring person today he was when he broke into the business. He doesn't deserve so many cheap shots from the critics.

New York Jets and Giants fans — A banner that proclaims, "We're No. 26" when unfurled.

Seattle, Buffalo fans — A banner that proclaims "We're No. 27."

Tampa Bay fans — A banner that proclaims "We're No. 28."

Bowie Kuhn — A Christmas card from Charlie Finley.

Charlie Finley — A Christmas card from Bowie Kuhn.

George Halas — A Christmas card from Dick Butkus.

Dick Butkus — A Christmas card from George Halas and a copy of the X-rays.

Harry Caray — A Bloody Mary.

". . . But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

Highland Park takes Prospect wrestling title

by KEITH REINHARD

The newcomers didn't waste much time establishing themselves at the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tourney.

Propelling five grapplers into the finals and claiming a pair of titles, Highland Park stalked off with championship honors at the 18th annual affair.

Added to the lineup when Rockford East was unable to participate, the Central Suburban League school edged out Downers Grove North, 111-103, for top honors while defending champ York fell off to third place at 97.

Forest View, while failing to claim any individual laurels, claimed fourth place at 56 followed by Maine South (53½), Maine North (48½), the host Knights (47½) and Niles North (43½).

PROSPECT WAS represented twice in the winner's circle with Todd Doney earning a narrow overtime verdict in the 155-pound showdown and Carl Schimmelman taking his second straight tournament title in a dramatic windup at 185.

Schimmelman was one of three matmen winning repeat crowns. Bill Porter of Niles West, who was named the meet's outstanding wrestler, was an impressive victor at 119 after taking the 112-pound championship hardware in 1975.

York's Jim Farina, up from 126 to 138, was the other repeater.

THE DAY'S HARD-LUCK story belonged to Forest View 98-pounder Mike Lucansky, who last year advanced all the way to the finals only to be dumped by Noel Carter of Downers Grove.

Lucansky scrapped his way to the finals again Thursday, only to have Jim Matson of Duke decision him in the title bout, 8-2.

The only other Falcon finalist met a similar fate. Lon Reitz at 185, upped his record to 14-0 while advancing to the championship round against Schimmelman. Reitz had edged the Prospect entry 5-4 in a dual meet earlier in the season but Schimmelman was out for revenge Thursday and jumped into a quick 5-0 opening round lead en route to a 9-4 romp.

DONEY TURNED back Steve Mikos of Maine South in the finals at 155. Mikos was penalized a point for stalling with 12 seconds remaining in regulation time to forge a 1-1 stalemate and send the match into overtime.

In the third extra round Doney broke the bout open and triumphed 4-1.

Porter won at 119 after his brother, Bob, had captured the 112-pound crown. He earned the blue ribbon by blanking last year's 98-pound champ

FOREST VIEW'S Mike Lucansky (right) appears to be riding herd over Jim Matson of York, but the 98-pound Falcon lost his title bout to Matson, 8-2, in the windup of the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tourney Thursday evening. Highland Park won the meet.

DOUG AND DAVE Smidl have been the impetus behind the Fremd Vikings' gymnastics success this year. Doug (left) is one of the top all-arounders in the state while Dave works all-around and is a strong contender to qualify for the state finals on rings.

Finley testifies in baseball suit

Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley Thursday said he offered slugger Reggie Jackson $1.5 million to sign a five-year contract but he refused and was later traded to the Baltimore Orioles.

Testifying in his $3.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Finley cited Jackson's case as one of the reasons why he decided to sell some of his star players.

Finley said he tried to sign Don Baylor, Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers, Bert Campaneris, Gene Tenace and Jackson before and during the 1976 season when their options were running out but they all refused. He said he offered them each at least a three year contract at $90,000 a year.

"I offered Reggie Jackson $1.5 million for a five-year contract," he said.

Finley said he finally sold Fingers and Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each and pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million just before the trading deadline last June 15 because he could not trade them and other clubs "knew they had me in a corner."

Finley filed his suit after Kuhn called off the sales in "the best interests of baseball."

Questioned by his lawyer, Neil Papiano, as to what his understanding of how trades should be made, Finley replied: "It was a very simple understanding, that if I cared to buy a ball player or trade a ball player, that that was my prerogative. And in the same respect, if I cared to sell a ball player, that also was my prerogative."

In his 17 years in baseball, Finley said, he had never heard of a commissioner disapproving of a sale.

Burroughs will be Brave after all

ATLANTA — Texas Rangers slugger Jeff Burroughs will apparently join the Atlanta Braves next season and drop his contention that he had a no-trade contract with the Rangers.

A Braves spokesman said that Atlanta owner Ted Turner, Rangers owner Brad Corbett and general manager Eddie Robinson, Burroughs and his attorney, Marvin Demoff, had a conference telephone call Thursday to straighten out one of the most confused baseball deals of the year."

"At this point the plans are for Burroughs and his fiance to come to Atlanta the first week in January for his first introduction to the city," said Bob Hope, public relations director of the Braves.

Hope said all of the men had "pretty much come to the agreement" that the trade involving Burroughs and five Braves players was valid.

Turner declined to say when Burroughs would be coming to Atlanta but he said "our position is that he's an Atlanta Brave and that's the way it stands now."

Burroughs had claimed he signed a no-trade contract with the Rangers last year.

Robinson had said Burroughs' pact did not include a no-cut clause and the Ranger slugger had no alternative but to move to Atlanta.

Earlier in the day, the situation had begun to take on the proportions of a confused soap opera with none of those involved apparently knowing what was going on.

New Jersey bids for All-Star game

The New Jersey Sports Authority has become the second bidder for the recently discontinued College All-Star game amid suggestions of possible changes in the game's format.

A spokesman for the Sports Authority said Thursday that chairman Sonny Werblin contacted National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle about sponsoring the game in New Jersey's Giants Stadium.

The game traditionally matches a squad of college football all-stars against the NFL Super Bowl champions and had been sponsored for 43 years by the Chicago Tribune, which Tuesday cited increased expenses and uncertainty over its ability to recruit personnel as reasons for withdrawing its backing of the game.

Among the alternatives proposed by the New Jersey Sports Authority are a rematch between the Super Bowl finalists or a game between two college all-star squads. The collegiate players have not beaten the NFL representative since 1963, with many scores being one-sided.

"To put it in a basically positive plane," the spokesman said, "we would be interested in reviving the game in any conceivable type, shape or form."

Sabres, Flyers gain victories

Rene Robert scored his 10th goal of the season on a 20-foot shot with 4:46 to play and Craig Ramsay added on insurance goal into an empty net in the final minute to give the Buffalo Sabres a 4-2 National Hockey League victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday night.

Robert, who has been in a scoring slump of late, put in the game-winner as the Sabres rallied from a 2-0 first period deficit. The victory was Buffalo's seventh straight and enlarged the Sabres' first place lead in the Adams Division to two points over the Boston Bruins.

DON SALESKI scored two goals in the second period to help the Philadelphia Flyers gain a 5-2 victory over the Washington Capitals Thursday night and move into undisputed possession of first place in the NHL Patrick Division.

Saleski gave Philadelphia its go-ahead goal at 10:47 of the second period after a pass from Orest Kindrachuk and then went on to make it 3-1.

Jim Nahrgang and Rick Wilson scored open net goals in the final minute of play to give the Detroit Red Wings a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

BILL LOCHEAD paced the Detroit offensive with a pair of goals and Walt McKechnie added another before Pittsburgh Coach Ken Schinkel pulled goalie Denis Herron twice to give the Penguins an extra forward advantage in the final minute.

Steve Vickers' in-close goal with 7:20 to play lifted the New York Rangers to a ruggedly fought 3-3 tie with the Boston Bruins.

The tie gave the Rangers a 7-2-8 record in their last 17 games but kept them in last place in the NHL Patrick Division.

Bulls hold off Atlanta rally, 101-95

Mickey Johnson scored 26 points to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 101-95 victory Thursday night over the Atlanta Hawks.

It was the Bulls' eighth victory in the last 10 games and was the fourth straight loss for the Hawks.

Ken Charles came off the Atlanta bench in the second quarter to score 10 points and added nine in the final quarter when he scored seven consecutive points to pull the Hawks to within two at 93-91. But the Bulls held on for the victory.

Artis Gilmore had 23 points for the Bulls and Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 22.

Johnson hit a key basket in the final minute to help preserve the win for the Bulls after they had gone nearly two minutes without scoring. Norm Van Lier added a pair of clutch free throws to seal the victory, the Bulls' seventh in a row at home.

The Bulls' next game is Christmas Day in Kansas City against the Kings.

Billy Knight converted a three-point play with 28 seconds remaining Thursday night to give Indiana a 96-94 victory over the New York Nets.

Knight scored seven points as the Pacers rallied from a 94-84 deficit with 1:59 to go. He finished with a game-high 32 points as the Pacers' ended a four-game losing streak.

John Williamson scored 28 points to lead New York and Rich Jones added 17.

Darnell Hillman picked up 19 points for Indiana and had 22 rebounds. Dan Roundfield scored 16 points for the Pacers.

Larry Kenon scored 26 points and San Antonio held off a last half surge by Washington to edge the Bullets, 118-116.

The Spurs led 66-49 at the half, but Elvin Hayes and Dave Bing led the Bullets to within two points three times in the last 1:17 of the game. Hayes missed a tap, which would have sent the game into overtime, at the final buzzer.

Allan Bristow had 19 points and Mark Olberding and George Gervin 15 each as San Antonio evened its record at 16-16.

Hayes led Washington with 32 points and 15 rebounds, while Bing scored 24 points and had nine assists.

The resurgent Milwaukee Bucks scored the last eight points of the game after Golden State had closed to within one to rack up their third victory in a row, 112-103.

Clifford Ray's rebound basket had pulled State to 104-103 but the Bucks' Bob Dandridge, who led his team's balanced attack with 22 points, socked in a jump shot and this was followed by a pair of free throws each by Swen Nater and Gary Brokaw, and a rebound stuff by Elmore Smith at the buzzer.

The Bucks led from the opening minute. In the first quarter, Nater scored eight points and hauled down seven rebounds to give Milwaukee a 28-23 lead. Junior Bridgeman scored eight and Brokaw seven in the second period to pace the Bucks to a 57-47 halftime lead.

Brian Winters scored 18 for Milwaukee, Nater 16, Bridgeman 14, and Brokaw 13. Gus Williams led Golden State with 26 and Rick Barry had 16.

Saleski gave Philadelphia its go-ahead goal at 10:47 of the second period after a pass from Orest Kindrachuk and then went on to make it 3-1.

Jim Nahrgang and Rick Wilson scored open net goals in the final minute of play to give the Detroit Red Wings a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

BILL LOCHEAD paced the Detroit offensive with a pair of goals and Walt McKechnie added another before Pittsburgh Coach Ken Schinkel pulled goalie Denis Herron twice to give the Penguins an extra forward advantage in the final minute.

Steve Vickers' in-close goal with 7:20 to play lifted the New York Rangers to a ruggedly fought 3-3 tie with the Boston Bruins.

The tie gave the Rangers a 7-2-8 record in their last 17 games but kept them in last place in the NHL Patrick Division.

Bulls hold off Atlanta rally, 101-95

Mickey Johnson scored 26 points to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 101-95 victory Thursday night over the Atlanta Hawks.

It was the Bulls' eighth victory in the last 10 games and was the fourth straight loss for the Hawks.

Ken Charles came off the Atlanta bench in the second quarter to score 10 points and added nine in the final quarter when he scored seven consecutive points to pull the Hawks to within two at 93-91. But the Bulls held on for the victory.

Artis Gilmore had 23 points for the Bulls and Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 22.

Johnson hit a key basket in the final minute to help preserve the win for the Bulls after they had gone nearly two minutes without scoring. Norm Van Lier added a pair of clutch free throws to seal the victory, the Bulls' seventh in a row at home.

The Bulls' next game is Christmas Day in Kansas City against the Kings.

Billy Knight converted a three-point play with 28 seconds remaining Thursday night to give Indiana a 96-94 victory over the New York Nets.

Knight scored seven points as the Pacers rallied from a 94-84 deficit with 1:59 to go. He finished with a game-high 32 points as the Pacers' ended a four-game losing streak.

John Williamson scored 28 points to lead New York and Rich Jones added 17.

Darnell Hillman picked up 19 points for Indiana and had 22 rebounds. Dan Roundfield scored 16 points for the Pacers.

Larry Kenon scored 26 points and San Antonio held off a last half surge by Washington to edge the Bullets, 118-116.

The Spurs led 66-49 at the half, but Elvin Hayes and Dave Bing led the Bullets to within two points three times in the last 1:17 of the game. Hayes missed a tap, which would have sent the game into overtime, at the final buzzer.

Allan Bristow had 19 points and Mark Olberding and George Gervin 15 each as San Antonio evened its record at 16-16.

Hayes led Washington with 32 points and 15 rebounds, while Bing scored 24 points and had nine assists.

The resurgent Milwaukee Bucks scored the last eight points of the game after Golden State had closed to within one to rack up their third victory in a row, 112-103.

Clifford Ray's rebound basket had pulled State to 104-103 but the Bucks' Bob Dandridge, who led his team's balanced attack with 22 points, socked in a jump shot and this was followed by a pair of free throws each by Swen Nater and Gary Brokaw, and a rebound stuff by Elmore Smith at the buzzer.

The Bucks led from the opening minute. In the first quarter, Nater scored eight points and hauled down seven rebounds to give Milwaukee a 28-23 lead. Junior Bridgeman scored eight and Brokaw seven in the second period to pace the Bucks to a 57-47 halftime lead.

Brian Winters scored 18 for Milwaukee, Nater 16, Bridgeman 14, and Brokaw 13. Gus Williams led Golden State with 26 and Rick Barry had 16.

Football played big role

John Wayne—American Emblem

Jim Murray

He's one of the oldest living ex-Trojans.

He never made it to the pros — but he's more famous than O. J. Simpson, Mike Garrett, Orv Mohler and Erny Pinckert, who did.

He never made the 1930 All-American team — until 1960 when he was the unanimous choice of the Hollywood Publicists Guild.

He never made the Rose Bowl — except as Grand Marshal of the Rose Parade.

HE'S BEEN LIVING under an assumed name all these years — probably because he didn't want his Sigma Chi fraternity brothers to know what he did for a living, mainly kiss horses at a fadeout.

He's an American Emblem. A tale wrapped around the flagpole. John Wayne. Syllables that rank in American lore with "Semper Fidelis" and "E Pluribus Unum" or "Tippecanoe" or "Iwo Jima." He's as American as the Flag. As patriotic as a Sousa march. As right wing as Wall Street. He ranks with Buffalo Bill or Old Hickory or the Alamo in the annals of the West.

I went down to see this old-time extackle the other day. He's due to emcee the pro football award portions of the extravaganza, "Super Night At The Super Bowl," on CBS TV live from the Rose Bowl on Super Bowl eve, Jan. 8.

I PUT ON my Green Beret, Reagan button, stuck an American flag in my lapel and fastened my "America: Love It Or Leave It" bumper sticker alongside the "When Guns Are Outlawed, Only Outlaws Will Have Guns" one and rolled down to see the only reigning American Duke, the nearest thing to royalty this country has.

Somehow, you're always surprised when you see John Wayne and find out he's only 6½ or 7 feet tall and weighs only 250 pounds. Somehow, you always expect King Kong in a Legionnaire's hat. Also, you're surprised he lives in a house. I always thought John Wayne lived in a Fort. Or a covered wagon. Or a submarine. And that he kept a pet eagle.

Duke Wayne has a "spread" of two chihuahuas and he lives on a beach, of all things. I did notice the street numbers were all in American flags but I guess I missed roll call. There were a couple of cars parked in the driveway which also surprised me. I always thought Duke went everywhere by tank.

THERE WASN'T a bugler in sight. With Wayne, even his eyes are red, white and blue, but he didn't have any grenades hanging off his belt and if he had any Gatling guns around, they were hidden. The house was full of kids and grandkids coming home from school and climbing on his knee.

Here is a guy who has won every war we've ever been in — or ever won, anyway. If it were not for John Wayne, we'd all be speaking Indian, or eating with chopsticks, or Pennsylvania Avenue would have an umlaut on it.

The real Duke Wayne owes everything he has to football — even his nickname. His real handle is "Marion" (Morrison) but he dropped that one day in practice when he was getting knocked around more than usual and, as he ended up on his backside, a Trojan coach pointed a finger at him and barked, "What's your name, sonny?" And the future John Wayne answered "Marion." And the coach's lip curled and he said, "Well, that figures." Wayne promptly adopted the nickname "Duke" after a dog he owned at the time.

JOHN WAYNE

In those days, the late great director, John Ford, was in the habit of hiring the USC football squad for his cavalry pictures. Once, he hired the whole team as "extras" on a film he was making at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. The Navy team that year thought it was good; so Director Ford innocently suggested a scrimmage with his Hollywood "actors." The Academy agreed with alacrity. It was the biggest naval disaster since the Maine. "Russ Saunders rushed for a touchdown the first two times he carried the ball," roars Duke. "Well, why not? He had done the same thing against Notre Dame the week before."

Wayne went to SC on a football scholarship. In a sense, he went to Hollywood on one, too, although his first starring part was opposite a broom. "I was a 'grip,'" he recalls. "Around the rest of the country, you call that 'janitor.'" But he persevered. "Will Rogers told me to keep working and never mind the artistic level of the pictures. 'They ain't going to make Hamlet on horseback,' he told me."

WAYNE SAYS he played on a high school team so tough he was the only one on it that could talk. Half of them became SC Trojans, he says, and the other half became the Dillinger gang.

But the great turning point in his life came when he graduated. John Wayne could have gone, of all places, to Yale! But he opted for the Naval Academy. Even then, he felt more comfortable around people who had braid in their caps or guns in their belts. He flunked the Academy test on an essay on, of all things, the Flag!

The mind boggles at the thought of John Wayne at Yale. Just think, he might have become law secretary to Alger Hiss, a Roosevelt court appointee, certainly a Democrat. Geronimo would still be running around loose on the screen, Hollywood would be taken over by the Kremlin and the Marines would be bogged down in Guadalcanal leaving Warner Bros. stuck with all that stock footage and no ending. The guys in the white hats would be lying all over the OK Corral or Fort Apache.

ACTUALLY, John Wayne transcends political labels. There isn't a political hopeful alive who wants to tangle with the guy who kept the Burma Road open or won the West and died in the Alamo. Even Lyndon Johnson called him up to wish him happy birthday while Duke was campaigning against him. Europeans can't understand why we have so much unrest in the streets while we have John Wayne around.

I asked this larger-than-life American and ex-football player if he thought football a worthy preparation for the rest of life. "Do you give a boy chores?" he asked. "Do you know a better way to learn to respect someone than to have him across the line of scrimmage from you? Do you think the color of your skin or the amount of your father's property or your social position helps you there?"

Did he then have any advice for the football players he was going to help honor at "Super Night At The Super Bowl"? "From what I see, the country could use a few heroes," the Duke said. "Even your sports pages are full of guys who refuse to report, who make loud demands on everyone, get busted or jump out of the bushes at little girls or do the damndest things you ever heard of star athletes doing. I don't know where kids are going to turn for heroes. Every cop or sheriff on the screen is the heavy. The unwashed guy on the motorcycle with the funny cigarette is the hero even though he hasn't done one constructive thing in his life except throw catsup at waitresses. You can always tell the bad guy in the movie. He's the one who works for a living.

"WHY, THE BAD GUYS in our pictures were a whole lot more decent than the heroes in some of them today. We cared about the country. We didn't want kids to say 'If that bum can make a million dollars what am I going to school for?' Also we didn't make movies where you had to take your clothes off to keep everyone's interest. If you stick to what you believe in, you never have to take your clothes off to make a living. In my day, we had a name for people like that — and it wasn't 'star.' I think every guy who makes a porno movie should be made to take his own granddaughter to it."

YOU argue with him.

Lake Park beats Lions; Saxons win consolation

Lake Park turned on the defense in the fourth quarter, holding St. Viator to nine points over the final eight minutes, and dumped the Lions into the consolation bracket at the Luther North Basketball Tourney by a 59-52 score Thursday night.

Despite 17 points each by Lion teammates Paul Wiloff and Paul Rogozinski, coach Ron Cregier's team saw its record fall to 7-5. The Viator loss sets up a 2:30 p.m. meeting with Niles North when this eight-day tournament resumes next Monday.

TIED AT 43-43 going into the fourth quarter, the Lancers of Lake Park took advantage of their free-throw accuracy, dropping in 10 of 16 bonus shots in the last period. Led by Joe Mikes, who was four-for-six, Lake Park finished at 15-for-23 from the line.

The foul situation had Viator senior Steve Notaro riding the bench for a good portion of the second half. Notaro eventually fouled out of the game after scoring just six points.

The Lions were head by four points late in the third quarter before Lake Park, led by seniors Mike Loescher and Dan Barnes, bailed out the victory and a semi-final bid against Notre Dame on Monday.

Loescher finished with 15 points, Barnes had 13, and Mikes, a little 5-7 guard, scored 12.

SAXONS BEAT STEINMETZ

Schaumburg junior John Chmiel scored 25 points in a part-time role as the Saxons held on for a 51-49 victory over Steinmetz in the consolation bracket of the Luther North Basketball Tourney Thursday afternoon.

Chmiel, recovering from a blister-induced case of blood poisoning in his right foot, was playing at half-efficiency but still maintained his 22.5 scoring average. The 6-7 center pumped in three baskets down the tense fourth-quarter stretch when Schaumburg fought off a late rally by the Silver Streaks.

AFTER THE SAXONS opened up a 12-point lead in the third period, Steinmetz chipped away at the free throw line, hitting 21-of-29 for the game. The Streaks pulled to within four late in the fourth quarter, but Chmiel's baskets and a pair of buckets by reserve forward George Tuzil kept the Saxons ahead. Three free throws by sophomore guard Gary Deigan were vital, too.

A last-second basket by Steinmetz cut the final margin to two. Steinmetz, which had led early, dropped its second in a row at Luther North.

John Moran had 11 points and Jack Breen seven for Schaumburg, 3-7, which plays Monday at 6 p.m. against Prosser.

ISU stunned! New football coach resigns

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI)—Walter A. "Wally" Moore, who told reporters Wednesday he "couldn't wait to start" as the new head football coach at Illinois State University, abruptly resigned Thursday for personal reasons.

Moore, assistant athletic director at Indiana University, stunned ISU officials by telling ISU Athletic Director Warren Schmakel he could not take the Illinois job because of "extreme personal problems."

"He thought he had the blessings of everyone including his family," said Roger Cushman, the ISU sports information director, "but he found out that was not so."

Moore, an assistant to Ara Parseghian at Notre Dame for nine years before going to Indiana after the 1974 season, was named ISU head football coach Wednesday and was introduced at a news conference.

"I ACCEPT this position with the greatest anticipation and great expectations of the future of football at Illinois State," Moore said.

The new coach described in some detail how last year he had left coaching to take the administrative job at Indiana and how helpless he felt when he watched Notre Dame or Indiana lose. "I can't wait to get started," he said.

Moore then had lunch with a small boosters group at a restaurant called Central Station and spent Wednesday afternoon interviewing members of the coaching staff of Gerry Hart, who resigned as head coach after a 5-6 season last year.

CUSHMAN SAID Moore went into Schmakel's office about 8 a.m. Thursday and told him of his decision. "He said everyone here has been so good in offering him this opportunity, but he decided at this time to solve the personal problems (and) he was not going to accept the job . . .," Cushman said.

Officials said Moore was chosen from six finalists among more than 80 applications. Schmakel said one of the five remaining was Bill Lewis of Arkansas and he had already taken a job at Wyoming.

Schmakel said he planned to consult with the screening committee.

Even then, he felt more comfortable around people who had braid in their caps or guns in their belts. He flunked the Academy test on an essay on, of all things, the Flag!

The mind boggles at the thought of John Wayne at Yale. Just think, he might have become law secretary to Alger Hiss, a Roosevelt court appointee, certainly a Democrat. Geronimo would still be running around loose on the screen, Hollywood would be taken over by the Kremlin and the Marines would be bogged down in Guadalcanal leaving Warner Bros. stuck with all that stock footage and no ending. The guys in the white hats would be lying all over the OK Corral or Fort Apache.

ACTUALLY, John Wayne transcends political labels. There isn't a political hopeful alive who wants to tangle with the guy who kept the Burma Road open or won the West and died in the Alamo. Even Lyndon Johnson called him up to wish him happy birthday while Duke was campaigning against him. Europeans can't understand why we have so much unrest in the streets while we have John Wayne around.

I asked this larger-than-life American and ex-football player if he thought football a worthy preparation for the rest of life. "Do you give a boy chores?" he asked. "Do you know a better way to learn to respect someone than to have him across the line of scrimmage from you? Do you think the color of your skin or the amount of your father's property or your social position helps you there?"

Did he then have any advice for the football players he was going to help honor at "Super Night At The Super Bowl"? "From what I see, the country could use a few heroes," the Duke said. "Even your sports pages are full of guys who refuse to report, who make loud demands on everyone, get busted or jump out of the bushes at little girls or do the damndest things you ever heard of star athletes doing. I don't know where kids are going to turn for heroes. Every cop or sheriff on the screen is the heavy. The unwashed guy on the motorcycle with the funny cigarette is the hero even though he hasn't done one constructive thing in his life except throw catsup at waitresses. You can always tell the bad guy in the movie. He's the one who works for a living.

"WHY, THE BAD GUYS in our pictures were a whole lot more decent than the heroes in some of them today. We cared about the country. We didn't want kids to say 'If that bum can make a million dollars what am I going to school for?' Also we didn't make movies where you had to take your clothes off to keep everyone's interest. If you stick to what you believe in, you never have to take your clothes off to make a living. In my day, we had a name for people like that — and it wasn't 'star.' I think every guy who makes a porno movie should be made to take his own granddaughter to it."

YOU argue with him.

Lake Park beats Lions; Saxons win consolation

Lake Park turned on the defense in the fourth quarter, holding St. Viator to nine points over the final eight minutes, and dumped the Lions into the consolation bracket at the Luther North Basketball Tourney by a 59-52 score Thursday night.

Despite 17 points each by Lion teammates Paul Wiloff and Paul Rogozinski, coach Ron Cregier's team saw its record fall to 7-5. The Viator loss sets up a 2:30 p.m. meeting with Niles North when this eight-day tournament resumes next Monday.

TIED AT 43-43 going into the fourth quarter, the Lancers of Lake Park took advantage of their free-throw accuracy, dropping in 10 of 16 bonus shots in the last period. Led by Joe Mikes, who was four-for-six, Lake Park finished at 15-for-23 from the line.

The foul situation had Viator senior Steve Notaro riding the bench for a good portion of the second half. Notaro eventually fouled out of the game after scoring just six points.

The Lions were head by four points late in the third quarter before Lake Park, led by seniors Mike Loescher and Dan Barnes, bailed out the victory and a semi-final bid against Notre Dame on Monday.

Loescher finished with 15 points, Barnes had 13, and Mikes, a little 5-7 guard, scored 12.

SAXONS BEAT STEINMETZ

Schaumburg junior John Chmiel scored 25 points in a part-time role as the Saxons held on for a 51-49 victory over Steinmetz in the consolation bracket of the Luther North Basketball Tourney Thursday afternoon.

Chmiel, recovering from a blister-induced case of blood poisoning in his right foot, was playing at half-efficiency but still maintained his 22.5 scoring average. The 6-7 center pumped in three baskets down the tense fourth-quarter stretch when Schaumburg fought off a late rally by the Silver Streaks.

AFTER THE SAXONS opened up a 12-point lead in the third period, Steinmetz chipped away at the free throw line, hitting 21-of-29 for the game. The Streaks pulled to within four late in the fourth quarter, but Chmiel's baskets and a pair of buckets by reserve forward George Tuzil kept the Saxons ahead. Three free throws by sophomore guard Gary Deigan were vital, too.

A last-second basket by Steinmetz cut the final margin to two. Steinmetz, which had led early, dropped its second in a row at Luther North.

John Moran had 11 points and Jack Breen seven for Schaumburg, 3-7, which plays Monday at 6 p.m. against Prosser.

ISU stunned! New football coach resigns

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI)—Walter A. "Wally" Moore, who told reporters Wednesday he "couldn't wait to start" as the new head football coach at Illinois State University, abruptly resigned Thursday for personal reasons.

Moore, assistant athletic director at Indiana University, stunned ISU officials by telling ISU Athletic Director Warren Schmakel he could not take the Illinois job because of "extreme personal problems."

"He thought he had the blessings of everyone including his family," said Roger Cushman, the ISU sports information director, "but he found out that was not so."

Moore, an assistant to Ara Parseghian at Notre Dame for nine years before going to Indiana after the 1974 season, was named ISU head football coach Wednesday and was introduced at a news conference.

"I ACCEPT this position with the greatest anticipation and great expectations of the future of football at Illinois State," Moore said.

The new coach described in some detail how last year he had left coaching to take the administrative job at Indiana and how helpless he felt when he watched Notre Dame or Indiana lose. "I can't wait to get started," he said.

Moore then had lunch with a small boosters group at a restaurant called Central Station and spent Wednesday afternoon interviewing members of the coaching staff of Gerry Hart, who resigned as head coach after a 5-6 season last year.

CUSHMAN SAID Moore went into Schmakel's office about 8 a.m. Thursday and told him of his decision. "He said everyone here has been so good in offering him this opportunity, but he decided at this time to solve the personal problems (and) he was not going to accept the job . . .," Cushman said.

Officials said Moore was chosen from six finalists among more than 80 applications. Schmakel said one of the five remaining was Bill Lewis of Arkansas and he had already taken a job at Wyoming.

Schmakel said he planned to consult with the screening committee.

—Palatine High School graduate Andy Knotek has been named co-winner of the most valuable offensive lineman award on the football team at Millikin University in Decatur.

The senior P.E. major caught 26 passes for 319 yards as a starting end, was a key player on most specialty teams and shared the punting duties.

—It's been a banner year for Larry Friedrichs, a 6-1, 228-pound junior offensive guard from Northern Arizona University.

The Arlington Heights athlete was named first team All-Big Sky Conference, second team All-American college division by Associated Press, and he won the John Yost Award, symbolic of NAU's top lineman, for the second consecutive year.

—Barbara Koehn, a graduate of Forest View High School, is a member of the Western Illinois University women's swimming team.

Do they ever hit the ball?

No major leaguer has ever struck out six times in a nine-inning game, but Elrod Hendricks of the Cubs, in a game played Sept. 16, 1972, drew walks on six consecutive trips to the plate.

The nightmare

Impact dims, meaning well known of 'Slush Fund'

Loren Tate

University of Illinois athletes were victims, and in all probability the least blameworthy, in a system that is not quite honest.—The late Avery Brundage, 1967.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—At first few knew what it meant.

Slush Fund.

It had an ugly connotation. And there it was in the headlines a decade ago.

Now, on the 10th anniversary of Illinois' most traumatic athletic experience, the impact has dimmed but the meaning is well known.

It was the turning point.

Since that fateful December in 1966, the Illini have sought to rediscover the happy period that preceded it . . . with all too little success.

The earthquake hit with shocking suddenness. It was an 8.6 on the Richter scale. An entire community was numbed.

ONE DAY Pete Elliott was a blond, almost boyish 41, the Robert Redford of the nation's coaches. On Jan. 1, 1964 he had guided Illinois to victory in the Rose Bowl, and his top star of the 1964-65 period, Dick Butkus, was the premier gridder of his time.

Pete was stepping up now into the directorship, turning over the head football reins to a handsome, aggressive aide, Bill Taylor . . . the Gary Moeller of the day.

Harry Combes' basketball team was a Big Ten co-favorite and a contender for national honors. The Illini had already beaten Kentucky amid the racial slurs in Lexington and were just beginning to click. A popular former Illini star who led Champaign's Maroons to the state title, Combes would make his title run the next two winters with juniors Rich Jones and Ron Dunlap and sophs Dave Scholz and Steve Kuberski, and then retire a hero in his own community.

BUT NONE of those expectations developed. All disintegrated in one fateful move.

Elliott was driving out of the Assembly Hall parking lot that day when he called grimly from his car window: "Hold off on the photographer tonight. Don't do anything until you hear from me."

Inside the giant building, a grown man was seen sobbing.

Something was terribly, terribly wrong.

Gradually, and it took days, the facts seeped out.

Mel Brewer, a longtime football aide under Ray Eliot and a former Illini lineman, had gained a strong administrative foothold as assistant director during Doug Mills' waning years. Brewer had Mills' support for the top position when Mills retired, but Doug had lost clout during those last rocky years and the UI athletic board voted for the younger, more dynamic Elliott.

BREWER, WHO HAD kept books on an illegal $21,000 fund to help UI athletes over the 1962-66 period, turned over the records to President David D. Henry . . . and all hell broke loose.

In Chicago, Bill Reed later revealed the order of events. The late Big Ten commissioner was advised by telephone of "possible violations'" by the UI's acting athletic director, Les Bryan, on Dec. 13.

Any thoughts Illini officials might have had of covering up and "cleaning their own dirty linen" were squelched out of concern that an emotionally disturbed Brewer might take his information to the news media. As keeper of the records, Brewer knew every angle of the payoff operation and, having resigned on the spot, was unpredictable to say the least.

UI administrators weren't even clear as to Brewer's intentions. Had his sole desire been to halt the improper payments, he could easily have accomplished that from within. But his references to Elliott as "that Michigan man" gave rise to a more sinister motive, that of destroying the man he disliked even at the expense of close friend Combes.

ON DEC. 16, Pres. Henry called Reed to inform that an investigation had revealed "certain irregularities in financial assistance to athletes in football and basketball."

A Dec. 22 meeting of involved parties led to the Dec. 23 UI decision to declare ineligible the 6-9, 222-pound Dunlap, 6-7, 206-pound Jones and 6-7, 207-pound Kuberski just ahead of a Chicago Stadium contest with California. None of the three stars ever played for Illinois again.

Actually, 14 athletes were ruled ineligible pending their appeals, and head coaches Combes and Elliott were placed on probation for two years and denied personal-contact efforts in recruiting for one year. Pres. Henry had hoped his action would suffice in the case of the coaches but the following March brought quite another development, their enforced resignations in the face of the UI's possible expulsion from the conference. Six of the 14 athletes escaped unscathed; the others were barred.

THE CONTINUING publicity and sanctions imposed by the Big Ten and NCAA left a black mark on the Illini that extended for years. Recruiting broke down at a critical time in the financial history of UI athletics, and the entire program suffered.

Even now, a decade later, many current problems can be traced to that traumatic time.

Smidl twins star in gym circles

five all-around events will be complete.

ALL THAT will remain to be added is a little polish.

The Smidls' lives in gymnastics began in seventh grade in Oak Park. Their father got them started in the park district and following a move to Palatine, and a freshman flirtation with the Fremd cross country team, it has been gymnastics ever since.

"The running helped us," Dave said, "especially on free ex. You need that stamina in just about every sport you compete in."

"But we gave up cross country because gymnastics was taking up too much time," Doug said.

NOW, WHATEVER free time they have is spent checking out the competition.

They showed up at the Maine East Invitational last Saturday to watch some friends, Jeff Martin of Mundelein and Troy Chovan of Oak Park, compete.

Chovan and Martin had been on hand before when Doug and Dave both outpointed Rolling Meadows' highly regarded all-arounder, Mike Illingworth, in a dual meet.

ASIDE FROM THAT they work on their own art three and fours hours a day.

"When we practice," Doug said, "we get on each other just about all the time."

"Like I'll say, 'Hey, Doug, that's bad form'," Dave said.

"We're just like two extra coaches to each other," Doug added.

A S THE gymnastics season extends to the culmination of the state meet, and the attendant pressure of fans and college recruiters, the Smidls are confident they will be ready.

"When you're out doing your routine," Doug said, "you don't notice anything else."

"It would be hard following a stud," Dave said.

"But if we hit our routines," Doug concluded, "there is nothing else that matters. We've done everything we can."

Doug is familiar with, as Dave says, "the bright lights," and handled himself well in last year's televised state finals.

"BUT I GOT cut (out of the telecast)," Doug said. "There was a three-way tie for fifth and a two-way tie for third so they only showed first, second and the two kids that tied for third.

"They would have had to show all three kids in fifth place and that was too many.

"The level of gymnastics seems to be down this year," Doug continued, "but I think when March rolls around it'll be good again."

"There are a lot of good all-arounders," Dave said.

"Right," Doug said. "(Ron) Ortman (of Addison Trail), Chovan and Martin. They're tough.

"BUT WE HAVE confidence in ourselves. We're not afraid to go out there. We either get all the credit or all the criticism."

By March, the state will know the accomplishments of the Smidl brothers. And the Smidl brothers will have a pretty good idea of where they will go to college come their 18th birthday.

Whichhappens to fall on June 9. Under the sign of Gemini. Castor and Pollux. Dave and Doug Smidl. The Twins.

Remember Bob Ferguson, Ohio State fullback?

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — A little more than a year ago, former Ohio State University All-America fullback Bob Ferguson was struggling merely to survive.

Ferguson, a native of Troy, Ohio, was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage on Oct. 28, and was in critical condition for nearly a month in Howard University Hospital in Washington, D.C.

On Dec. 19, 1975, OSU Coach Woody Hayes, former OSU teammates and friends gave a fund raising banquet for Ferguson and raised $10,000 to help him start his life over again.

FERGUSON LAST March was given a job as a counselor with the Ohio Youth Commission.

The youngsters who Ferguson is in contact with have been committed by the courts to the state for various problems, ranging from actual criminal acts to truancy.

"I truly like it," said Ferguson. "I enjoy working with kids. I have even had a couple of kids go to college. Some are getting jobs and living independently. It is nice being able to see them return to a home setting.

"I would imagine my own experiences I have had in life help," said Ferguson. "I can relate to problems at home and in the community. Some of the problems I have had myself. I have met and dealt with this type."

PAT COMER and Ellen Hagerman, two of Ferguson's associates at the Bethesda Group Home here, attribute his success to his tough approach to the youngsters.

"We kid him about being the big, bad youth counselor," said Mrs. Comer. "They respect him because he is authorative. They wouldn't respect him if he wasn't all law and order.

"He played football and the fact that he is big and strong helps a lot," she said. "His background in part has helped prepare him a lot because you have to learn discipline.

"I LIKE BOB Ferguson and respect Bob Ferguson," said Miss Hagerman. "He gives of himself which is so important. He's tough and at the beginning they resent him. I just tell them 'If you can't make it with Bob you aren't going to make it outside."

"He has to keep that role to be successful," she said. "They don't hassle him, I'll tell you that."

Not only has Ferguson's professional life enjoyed a comeback, but his personal life as well. Since the first of last year, Ferguson has seen his wife and children in Columbus every weekend.

The Fergusons recently purchased a home in Columbus and his wife Diana and four children will be moving in this week.

"WITHIN THE next few months I hope to get a transfer to Columbus and will be working there and living there" said Ferguson. "A transfer to Columbus would give me a chance to be reunited with my family."

Ferguson has three boys, Robert Jr. 14, Rodney, 12 and a daughter Robin, 11.

Pate next golf superstar

Jerry Pate emerged as the next pro golf superstar with his stunning showing in the 1976 season. The rookie pro used the U.S. Open as the stage for his first victory and went on to also win the Canadian Open. He finished 10th in winnings with $153,102.

CAR CORNER
with George Orth & Roger Nick
Pioneered by European manufacturers, the air-cooled engine has proven to be a reliable and inexpensive alternative to the water-cooled engine in some small cars and sport models. In an air-cooled system, air enters the compartment through ducts in a shroud covering the engine. A fan sends air across the top of the engine. The air passes through a series of cooling fans into the engine block around each cylinder head. The engine heat is picked up by the passing air, and the fan then vents the hot air through ducts at the bottom of the engine.

—Former Prospect High School cager Paul Withey is averaging 6.0 points and 3.0 rebounds per game as a sophomore at Northern Michigan University.

The 6-9 Withey's best game was a 14 point, eight rebound performance against Milton (Wisc.) College.

—Palatine High School graduate Andy Knotek has been named co-winner of the most valuable offensive lineman award on the football team at Millikin University in Decatur.

The senior P.E. major caught 26 passes for 319 yards as a starting end, was a key player on most specialty teams and shared the punting duties.

—It's been a banner year for Larry Friedrichs, a 6-1, 228-pound junior offensive guard from Northern Arizona University.

The Arlington Heights athlete was named first team All-Big Sky Conference, second team All-American college division by Associated Press, and he won the John Yost Award, symbolic of NAU's top lineman, for the second consecutive year.

—Barbara Koehn, a graduate of Forest View High School, is a member of the Western Illinois University women's swimming team.

Do they ever hit the ball?

No major leaguer has ever struck out six times in a nine-inning game, but Elrod Hendricks of the Cubs, in a game played Sept. 16, 1972, drew walks on six consecutive trips to the plate.

The nightmare

Impact dims, meaning well known of 'Slush Fund'

University of Illinois athletes were victims, and in all probability the least blameworthy, in a system that is not quite honest.—The late Avery Brundage, 1967.

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—At first few knew what it meant.

Slush Fund.

It had an ugly connotation. And there it was in the headlines a decade ago.

Now, on the 10th anniversary of Illinois' most traumatic athletic experience, the impact has dimmed but the meaning is well known.

It was the turning point.

Since that fateful December in 1966, the Illini have sought to rediscover the happy period that preceded it . . . with all too little success.

The earthquake hit with shocking suddenness. It was an 8.6 on the Richter scale. An entire community was numbed.

ONE DAY Pete Elliott was a blond, almost boyish 41, the Robert Redford of the nation's coaches. On Jan. 1, 1964 he had guided Illinois to victory in the Rose Bowl, and his top star of the 1964-65 period, Dick Butkus, was the premier gridder of his time.

Pete was stepping up now into the directorship, turning over the head football reins to a handsome, aggressive aide, Bill Taylor . . . the Gary Moeller of the day.

Harry Combes' basketball team was a Big Ten co-favorite and a contender for national honors. The Illini had already beaten Kentucky amid the racial slurs in Lexington and were just beginning to click. A popular former Illini star who led Champaign's Maroons to the state title, Combes would make his title run the next two winters with juniors Rich Jones and Ron Dunlap and sophs Dave Scholz and Steve Kuberski, and then retire a hero in his own community.

BUT NONE of those expectations developed. All disintegrated in one fateful move.

Elliott was driving out of the Assembly Hall parking lot that day when he called grimly from his car window: "Hold off on the photographer tonight. Don't do anything until you hear from me."

Inside the giant building, a grown man was seen sobbing.

Something was terribly, terribly wrong.

Gradually, and it took days, the facts seeped out.

Mel Brewer, a longtime football aide under Ray Eliot and a former Illini lineman, had gained a strong administrative foothold as assistant director during Doug Mills' waning years. Brewer had Mills' support for the top position when Mills retired, but Doug had lost clout during those last rocky years and the UI athletic board voted for the younger, more dynamic Elliott.

BREWER, WHO HAD kept books on an illegal $21,000 fund to help UI athletes over the 1962-66 period, turned over the records to President David D. Henry . . . and all hell broke loose.

In Chicago, Bill Reed later revealed the order of events. The late Big Ten commissioner was advised by telephone of "possible violations"' by the UI's acting athletic director, Les Bryan, on Dec. 13.

Any thoughts Illini officials might have had of covering up and "cleaning their own dirty linen" were squelched out of concern that an emotionally disturbed Brewer might take his information to the news media. As keeper of the records, Brewer knew every angle of the payoff operation and, having resigned on the spot, was unpredictable to say the least.

UI administrators weren't even clear as to Brewer's intentions. Had his sole desire been to halt the improper payments, he could easily have accomplished that from within. But his references to Elliott as "that Michigan man" gave rise to a more sinister motive, that of destroying the man he disliked even at the expense of close friend Combes.

ON DEC. 16, Pres. Henry called Reed to inform that an investigation had revealed "certain irregularities in financial assistance to athletes in football and basketball."

A Dec. 22 meeting of involved parties led to the Dec. 23 UI decision to declare ineligible the 6-9, 222-pound Dunlap, 6-7, 206-pound Jones and 6-7, 207-pound Kuberski just ahead of a Chicago Stadium contest with California. None of the three stars ever played for Illinois again.

Actually, 14 athletes were ruled ineligible pending their appeals, and head coaches Combes and Elliott were placed on probation for two years and denied personal-contact efforts in recruiting for one year. Pres. Henry had hoped his action would suffice in the case of the coaches but the following March brought quite another development, their enforced resignations in the face of the UI's possible expulsion from the conference. Six of the 14 athletes escaped unscathed; the others were barred.

THE CONTINUING publicity and sanctions imposed by the Big Ten and NCAA left a black mark on the Illini that extended for years. Recruiting broke down at a critical time in the financial history of UI athletics, and the entire program suffered.

Even now, a decade later, many current problems can be traced to that traumatic time.

five all-around events will be complete.

ALL THAT will remain to be added is a little polish.

The Smidls' lives in gymnastics began in seventh grade in Oak Park. Their father got them started in the park district and following a move to Palatine, and a freshman flirtation with the Fremd cross country team, it has been gymnastics ever since.

"The running helped us," Dave said, "especially on free ex. You need that stamina in just about every sport you compete in."

"But we gave up cross country because gymnastics was taking up too much time," Doug said.

NOW, WHATEVER free time they have is spent checking out the competition.

They showed up at the Maine East Invitational last Saturday to watch some friends, Jeff Martin of Mundelein and Troy Chovan of Oak Park, compete.

Chovan and Martin had been on hand before when Doug and Dave both outpointed Rolling Meadows' highly regarded all-arounder, Mike Illingworth, in a dual meet.

ASIDE FROM THAT they work on their own art three and fours hours a day.

"When we practice," Doug said, "we get on each other just about all the time."

"Like I'll say, 'Hey, Doug, that's bad form'," Dave said.

"We're just like two extra coaches to each other," Doug added.

A S THE gymnastics season extends to the culmination of the state meet, and the attendant pressure of fans and college recruiters, the Smidls are confident they will be ready.

"When you're out doing your routine," Doug said, "you don't notice anything else."

"It would be hard following a stud," Dave said.

"But if we hit our routines," Doug concluded, "there is nothing else that matters. We've done everything we can."

Doug is familiar with, as Dave says, "the bright lights," and handled himself well in last year's televised state finals.

"BUT I GOT cut (out of the telecast)," Doug said. "There was a three-way tie for fifth and a two-way tie for third so they only showed first, second and the two kids that tied for third.

"They would have had to show all three kids in fifth place and that was too many.

"The level of gymnastics seems to be down this year," Doug continued, "but I think when March rolls around it'll be good again."

"There are a lot of good all-arounders," Dave said.

"Right," Doug said. "(Ron) Ortman (of Addison Trail), Chovan and Martin. They're tough.

"BUT WE HAVE confidence in ourselves. We're not afraid to go out there. We either get all the credit or all the criticism."

By March, the state will know the accomplishments of the Smidl brothers. And the Smidl brothers will have a pretty good idea of where they will go to college come their 18th birthday.

Whichhappens to fall on June 9. Under the sign of Gemini. Castor and Pollux. Dave and Doug Smidl. The Twins.

Remember Bob Ferguson, Ohio State fullback?

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — A little more than a year ago, former Ohio State University All-America fullback Bob Ferguson was struggling merely to survive.

Ferguson, a native of Troy, Ohio, was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage on Oct. 28, and was in critical condition for nearly a month in Howard University Hospital in Washington, D.C.

On Dec. 19, 1975, OSU Coach Woody Hayes, former OSU teammates and friends gave a fund raising banquet for Ferguson and raised $10,000 to help him start his life over again.

FERGUSON LAST March was given a job as a counselor with the Ohio Youth Commission.

The youngsters who Ferguson is in contact with have been committed by the courts to the state for various problems, ranging from actual criminal acts to truancy.

"I truly like it," said Ferguson. "I enjoy working with kids. I have even had a couple of kids go to college. Some are getting jobs and living independently. It is nice being able to see them return to a home setting.

"I would imagine my own experiences I have had in life help," said Ferguson. "I can relate to problems at home and in the community. Some of the problems I have had myself. I have met and dealt with this type."

PAT COMER and Ellen Hagerman, two of Ferguson's associates at the Bethesda Group Home here, attribute his success to his tough approach to the youngsters.

"We kid him about being the big, bad youth counselor," said Mrs. Comer. "They respect him because he is authorative. They wouldn't respect him if he wasn't all law and order.

"He played football and the fact that he is big and strong helps a lot," she said. "His background in part has helped prepare him a lot because you have to learn discipline.

"I LIKE BOB Ferguson and respect Bob Ferguson," said Miss Hagerman. "He gives of himself which is so important. He's tough and at the beginning they resent him. I just tell them 'If you can't make it with Bob you aren't going to make it outside."

"He has to keep that role to be successful," she said. "They don't hassle him, I'll tell you that."

Not only has Ferguson's professional life enjoyed a comeback, but his personal life as well. Since the first of last year, Ferguson has seen his wife and children in Columbus every weekend.

The Fergusons recently purchased a home in Columbus and his wife Diana and four children will be moving in this week.

"WITHIN THE next few months I hope to get a transfer to Columbus and will be working there and living there" said Ferguson. "A transfer to Columbus would give me a chance to be reunited with my family."

Ferguson has three boys, Robert Jr. 14, Rodney, 12 and a daughter Robin, 11.

Pate next golf superstar

Jerry Pate emerged as the next pro golf superstar with his stunning showing in the 1976 season. The rookie pro used the U.S. Open as the stage for his first victory and went on to also win the Canadian Open. He finished 10th in winnings with $153,102.

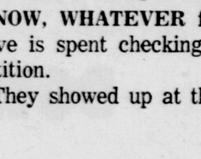
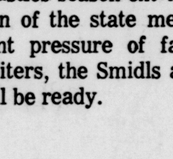
CAR CORNER




with George Orth & Roger Nick

Pioneered by European manufacturers, the air-cooled engine has proven to be a reliable and inexpensive alternative to the water-cooled engine in some small cars and sport models. In an air-cooled system, air enters the compartment through ducts in a shroud covering the engine. A fan sends air across the top of the engine. The air passes through a series of cooling fans into the engine block around each cylinder head. The engine heat is picked up by the passing air, and the fan then vents the hot air through ducts at the bottom of the engine.

Service Managers George Orth and Roger Nick, and the entire staff at RAY OLDSMOBILE, 501 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, wish all our friends and neighbors a very MERRY CHRISTMAS! May your Holidays be filled with Joy and Peace . . . Bring your car to RAY OLDS for prompt, expert service. We have 20 technicians on hand at all times to make sure our customers get personalized attention. As the largest OLDS dealer in Illinois, we are also #1 in service! Ask Andy

HOW CAN YOU TELL COUNTERFEIT MONEY?

Detecting counterfeit bills can be difficult. After all, how many of us really scrutinize the bills that pass through our hands as we go about our daily exchanges? The federal government, realizing that professionally trained personnel were needed to cope with counterfeiting, created a special branch of the U.S. Treasury Dept. Established July 5, 1865, the U.S. Secret Service began broad-ranged programs to educate bankers, retailers and others associated with large sums of money.

Over the years, agents of the Secret Service have concluded that the best detector of counterfeit money is the properly trained human eye and acutely sensitive fingertips. Experts tell us the paper itself is difficult to duplicate because of its uniquely flexibile and fibrous characteristics.

Bank personnel, suspicious of a bill, will study the portrait on the face of the note, since this is the portion most difficult to reproduce. Genuine portraits, such as Lincoln's on the $5 bill, or Grant's on the $50 bill, are lifelike and distinct. The shading which characterizes the facial features consists of numerous delicately executed dots and dashes, and the eyes are clear and expressive. On most counterfeit bills the portraits are defective — eyes are dull, shading is blotchy, and the background is flecked and fuzzy.

Close scrutiny of Federal Reserve notes will reveal a minutely detailed design, particularly at the borders. The plates from which good bills are printed represent the combined efforts of many craftsmen, all masters of their particular artistic contribution. The border pattern, an intricate lacelike net work of fine white lines, is produced by a machine called a geometric lathe. On most bogus notes this design is either too light or too dark because of inferior etching or inaccurate spacing.

Serial numbers are also tip-offs. Because numbering blocks for the distinctive type style used for serial numbering are available only at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, counterfeiters are forced to use numbers unlike the genuine. If the counterfeiters have tried to copy the style, irregularities are evident, such as in the spacing or alignment.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Sometimes a really bad break can turn out to be a blessing.

South rose with dummy's ace of spades; studied the possibilities of the hand and decided his best chance for success was a trump finesse. He played dummy's queen of trumps and East showed out.

Should he settle for down one? He really went into executive session for a while and finally saw that with a lot of luck he might still make his slam. He would risk a two or three trick set in the process but South felt that a slim chance was better than none.

He rose with his ace of hearts, cashed his ace of diamonds, led his other diamonds, thought once more and finally played dummy's 10.

When it held he discarded his losing spade on the king of diamonds and his losing club on the queen. Then it was a simple matter to go back to trumps; knock out West's king and make the slam.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Why did South finesse that ten of diamonds? Because he could only make the contract if West had to follow to four diamond leads. If West did hold four or five diamonds the odds were that he would hold the jack and South went with the odds.

A Washington reader wants to know the correct opening bid with:

Space A, J, x, x. Heart A, J, x, x. Diamond A. Club Q, x, x, x.

The correct opening bid is one club. You should never open notrump with a singleton and it is best to open one club, rather than a heart or a spade with this type hand.

Bicentennial CBS reruns on tonight

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charles Kuralt brings to television a feeling for the history of the United States and the essence of its character — or that part of its character most Americans prefer to dwell on — which makes his Bicentennial pieces a delight.

CBS has collected about a dozen of the 50 Bicentennial reports Kuralt did between July 4, 1975 and July 4, 1976 — one for every state — into an hour-long anthology of "On The Road with Charles Kuralt," which it will show today from 9 to 10 p.m.

"I don't know who's going to be watching then," Kuralt said later, "but maybe I'll be surprised."

CERTAINLY IT'S WORTH an hour away from tree decorating, wassail drinking or package wrapping to go from a red-nosed Washington crossing the Delaware to surprise an army of hungover Hessians, to colonial Rhode Island, where Roger Williams' doctrine of "freedom of conscience" drew the biggest collection of disreputable and disrespectful screwballs in the 13 colonies, to Wyoming where 300,000 pioneers suffered along the Oregon Trail.

One of the best vignettes was the one in which Kuralt visited Montana's Little Big Horn, site of Custer's last stand, which Kuralt calls "the saddest place I know."

He tells of how the Indians wiped out Custer and his men, and how the Army returned to force the Indians into starvation on the reservations, and he concludes:

"That's why this is the saddest place. For Custer and the 7th Cavalry, courage only led to defeat. For Crazy Horse and the Sioux, victory only led to Wounded Knee.

"Come here sometime, and you'll see. There is melancholy in the wind and sorrow in the grass, and the river weeps."

American frontiersman Kit Carson was born Dec. 24, 1809.

On this day in history:

• In 1814, a peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain was signed, ending the War of 1812.

• In 1865, six men, most of them veterans of the Confederate Army, organized a secret fraternal society in Pulaski, Tenn., known as the Ku Klux Klan.

• In 1942, Adm. Jean Louis Darlan, the French administrator or North Africa, was assassinated as a sympathizer of the French Vichy regime.

• In 1949, the Christmas song "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer," first swept the United States.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Yellowish eyes sign of jaundice

Recently a friend mentioned that if the whites of a person's eyes were becoming yellowish, it was a sign of cancer in the system. Is that true or false?

A friend of mine seems to have this condition. What can I do about it? She is a wonderful friendly person and so thoughtful and helpful to any and all of her friends. I would dislike alarming her if it is true, but perhaps a column in the newspaper might warn her.

You are very kind and thoughtful too. When the whites of the eyes develop a yellowish color, it is a sign of jaundice. The jaundice can be from anemia — such as that caused by pernicious anemia with vitamin B-12 deficiencies, liver disease or gall stones. It can be caused by cancer if a cancer involves the liver or blocks the drainage of bile.

Because of the many different things that can cause the yellowish discoloration there is no way one can determine the cause without a careful examination. Almost all of the causes are important, however, even though it is usually not cancer. For that reason your friend should see a doctor as soon as possible.

For a discussion of how the liver can cause jaundice I am sending you The Health Letter, number 7-8, Living With Your Liver. Others who want information on the liver can send 50 cents, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

I'm sure you have discussed cystocoele before, but I missed it. Now I have been informed I have one. Can you please tell me about this?

There are three problems that women have that are all really ruptures (hernias) into the vagina.

The vagina is a muscular tube. Immediately in front of the muscular tube is the bladder. When the muscular wall separating the bladder and the vagina stretches or tears, a portion of the bladder literally herniates into the vagina. This is called a cystocoele.

The rectum is directly behind the muscular vaginal tube. When it herniates into the vaginal opening, it is called a rectocoele. If the muscular support around the uterus stretches or tears to allow the uterus at the end of the vaginal canal to herniate into the vagina, it is called a prolapse.

All three of these problems are entirely comparable to the stretching and tearing of the muscular wall of the lower abdomen that allows an inguinal hernia to occur in the groin.

Some people are content to live with these problems if the herniation is slight, just as a person may decide to live with an inguinal hernia, but the only effective way to really cure the condition is to repair the torn, stretched or otherwise damaged muscles and tendons involved.

A cystocoele may permit urine to be trapped in the bladder and interfere with normal bladder emptying. This can lead to bladder infections and problems in controlling urination. Each case is individual and mild cases can be tolerated for sometime, but eventually surgical correction is usually requred.

Candle wax problem common at holidays

Dear Dorothy: I've spilled white candle wax on a tablecloth. Laundering it hasn't removed the stain, and I'd appreciate any help you might offer. —Udelle Solomon

This is a problem that comes up often — and it's bound to arise with many others during the holiday season. First scrape off all the excess wax with a dull knife. Then put white blotters, paper towels or tissue under and over the stain — and press with a warm iron, changing the blotters or paper as they get dirty. Any remaining spot can be treated with cleaning fluid and then the whole thing laundered. In your case, having already laundered the cloth, skip the scraping step and try the warm iron with paper towels method to get out the excess grease. If necessary use a cleaning solvent and relaunder. Candle wax on carpeting is handled in the same general way, except you do not put anything under the carpet. In other words, scrape, put paper toweling on top, use the iron and finish, if needed, with a cleaning solvent.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip. I made a pot of turkey soup using the carcass and the usual vegetables, but I was most unhappy with the result. The soup simply had no oomph. Checked the spices I use and decided cumin had the right fragrance. Sure did. The soup turned out fine. —Phyllis Munter

Dear Dorothy: Perhaps my way of cleaning Venetian blinds will help those who seem to find it a dreadful problem. I make up large mittens from old terry towels. I put them on, dip into a warm detergent solution, squeeze well and then wipe a slat at a time. The blinds come clean swiftly without too much effort. — Janice Hunt

DYAN CANNON ADMITS, "I love my work. It's the thing I love most in life except my daughter." The actress / singer / dancer and now movie director opens next Thursday in "Two for the See Saw" with Don Murray at Arlington Park Theatre. It's the first time she's played in the Chicago area in 10 years.

Cannon: Doing what she wants when she wants

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Many people try to make you believe they're on top of the world, taking the bull by the horns, loving every minute of life.

Dyan Cannon is just such a person. Only it's genuine. It's spontaneous. She radiates the kind of self-satisfaction that would make the most cynical of persons cringe and melt. They wouldn't be able to stand the heat.

It hasn't always been that way for the actress-nightclub entertainer who has encountered her share of stormy relationships and career jolts. But she's discovered something all of a sudden that she likes very much — namely herself.

And that's why she's coming to Chicago next week to star with Don Murray in "Two for the Seesaw" at Arlington Park Theatre.

"I'm doing it because I love the play and I've never done it before," said Ms. Cannon Sunday morning after having appeared the night before at a benefit performance with Bob Hope.

BUT IF IT had been a long, taxing evening, it didn't show. Dyan was relaxed, noticeably conscious of the Lake Michigan view her hotel suite afforded and even more striking and vibrant in person than her publicity stills indicate. Not many actresses can say the same. She talks as if she really does have it all together.

"There are certain rules people adhere to. Things you can do, things you can't, things you could if . . .

"It's all very limiting. If you're acting, you're not supposed to direct. If you're in a play, you're not supposed to do a movie. Nuts to all that. I'm going to do it all," she said about her new carefree philosophy on life.

And though Dyan Cannon's face hasn't been plastered all over the movie screen of late, she has been busier than ever. One of her greatest achievements is "Number One," a film which she wrote, produced and directed herself.

So well received, heralding her as a forerunner of a new breed of female directors, the movie will be eventually mass distributed, to preview in Chicago during her run at Arlington Park.

"NUMBER ONE" is the outgrowth of a $1,000 grant awarded her by the American Film Institute. Not only did Dyan Cannon do an outstanding job. One widely-read movie critic likened her to the celebrated French filmmaker, Francois Truffaut, calling them both "revolutionary filmmakers."

"Can you believe that?" she laughed. "I just loved it."

"Number One" and Truffaut's new movie, "Small Change," do have a lot in common.

They are both non-violent and capture the world of kids, naturally with no pretense.

Dyan Cannon describes her movie "as a day in the lives of children aged 5 and 6 as they are affected by the adult world around them.

"It was a good thing they gave me only $1,000 or I probably would have gone to somebody to write it," said Ms. Cannon, who has tinkered in writing all her life, mostly poetry that one publisher once labeled too raw. "But now it's really in," she added.

"It shoots down all the fables of Hollywood that it takes three months and $3 million to make a movie," continued Ms. Cannon about "Number One."

"I SHOT IT in six days though I spent months working with the children to make them feel relaxed and comfortable."

Dyan spent another three and a half months day and night tightly editing the film on equipment donated by Warner Brothers. Everybody chipped in. Nobody got paid. Ordinarily, Dyan admits, the movie would have cost half a million.

Instant success has not gone to her head, though she isn't about to shrug it off either. Female directors are receiving a lot of press. And Dyan Cannon is right on top of the list.

She's ready to direct again, this time a movie in which she can also star.

"Sure, I'm going to do it all," she said. "I'm not going to be held back. I've got five projects I'm working on right now. Last year I had trouble just looking for one.

"I'm going to do whatever I feel like, when I feel like it. If people ask me why I'm in Chicago, I'll answer because I want to be.

"If they ask — what will you get out of it? I'll say, good feelings. That's my life now. I no longer have any ulterior motives."

For Dyan Cannon, a career doesn't exist unless you do feel good about it.

"FOR SURE, I'M the happiest I've ever been in my life. I understand what's happening. I used to think happiness came from out there, from circumstances one couldn't control. But I am responsible for those circumstances.

"I'm enjoying this new phase, this completeness as a woman. Right now, there is absolutely no man in my life. Oh," she laughed, "of course there are men around me — my attorney, my agent. But you know what I mean.

"My daughter (10-year-old Jennifer) and I chopped down our own Christmas tree. We never had so much fun. I wouldn't want to do it all the time. But I really enjoyed it."

Dyan is not waiting for things to happen to her. She is reaching out.

'Nickelodeon' more 'slopstick' than slapstick

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(A review)

Regardless of the calibre of his performance, Burt Reynolds almost always comes out of his movies unscathed. He has a natural, endearing sort of wit that appeals to people.

But he comes off as a complete bore in Peter Bogdanovich's new film, "Nickelodeon," which no doubt will turn out to be one of the biggest disappointments of the holiday season film package.

It's not just Burt. It's Stella Stevens, Brian Keith and Ryan O'Neal too. Tatum O'Neal is cast as the little girl toughie she's been playing all along, the kind of role that's wearing pretty thin but still seems to do very well at the box office. I'm not sure why.

ABOUT THE ONLY bright spot in this dull comedy is Karen Hitchcock in her film debut. And it might be her inexperience that pays off. Karen plays a sweet, nearsighed, fledgling actress. Because she can't see, she's always tripping over things, usually setting off a bundle of trouble.

It's not that the idea behind "Nickelodeon" is so bad. It's actually a good idea. But more than just the surface of the silent film era should have been scratched to tackle it as a theme.

Set in 1910-15, the movie pits the little guys, the independent filmmakers, against the big guys, the Patents Company trust, who are trying to run the little guys out of business.

RYAN O'NEAL IS A bungling young lawyer who, just by coincidence after he makes a fool of himself in court, becomes a screenwriter and subsequently a director though he knows absolutely nothing about the business.

Burt Reynolds is a flamboyant, Florida alligator man who comes to New York, only to get caught in a revolving door which leads him on the road to becoming a movie star.

In one scene Reynolds is dressed up in a powdered wig, satin knickers, brocade jacket and ruffled shirt. He's supposed to be miscast and he's supposed to be funny. No doubt about the miscasting. The scene, however, makes more than a comic fool out of him. Only on Halloween would it be acceptable.

THE PIONEER DAYS of filmmaking make a good subject for a movie. Even some of the scenes in "Nickelodeon" that show the crew trying to make a movie in the crudest of surroundings with a minimum of equipment aand props are entertaining if you can stay awake.

The slapstick is supposed to help, but it's ill-timed and messy, more "slopstick" than real laughs.

"Nickelodeon" is the third teaming of filmmaker Bogdanovich and Ryan O'Neal, following "Paper Moon" and "What's Up Doc?" Only this attempt doesn't even come close to either one.

And that's too bad because O'Neal is launching another offspring, his 11-year-old son, Griffin, who makes his acting debut as a bicycle-riding film messenger. You may not even notice him at first. I hope he won't be like his sister, threatening to retire all the time.

"NICKELODEON" opens today, It's rated PG.

RYAN O'NEAL and daughter Tatum compare film notes in Peter Bogdanovich's "Nickelodeon," a spoof that highlights the early days of silent films.

"THE NUTCRACKER" is full of children, magical characters and sumptuous sets. More importantly, the ballet features Chicago dancers instead of imported talent, making it a good way to judge the state of the dance in the Windy City.

Local dancers get top billing in this year's 'Nutcracker'

by LYNN ASINOF
(A review)

"The Nutcracker" isn't just a ballet. It's a fantasy. Those who come to see it want to be enchanted. They want to feel like children.

Dance is only a small part of this magical fairytale ballet. There are giant mice, dancing snowflakes, waltzing flowers and a 40-foot Christmas tree. There is the Sugar Plum Fairy who lives in a kingdom of marzipan, hot chocolate and bonbons. And there is music.

The ballet is better when the dancing is good, but it can get by on just its scenery, costumes and staging. That's a good thing, because there is little virtuoso dancing in the current Chicago production at the Arie Crown Theatre through Jan. 2.

ONE REASON is that this year the production is not importing big stars from name companies to attract an audience. Svea Eklof of the North Carolina Dance Theatre and Sean Lavery will both make brief visits. But the emphasis this year is on resident talent instead of the imported variety.

That in itself is a bit of a miracle in a city that didn't have a real ballet company until three years ago. The use of local dancers for major roles in "The Nutcracker" is a sign that the city is able to stand on its own two feet in the dance world.

THIS YEAR'S production of "The Nutcracker" is not the most exciting ever staged, but the city can claim the production as all its own.

There is, for example, Cynthia Ann Roses, who is rising rapidly through the ranks of the Chicago Ballet. This year she is dancing her first principal roles and looking quite good. As the Sugar Plum Fairy, she has both purity and freshness. While she could use more style, it is clear that will come with experience.

Newcomer Gregory Bagley as Hot Chocolate showed clean, accurate footwork and a good stage presence, while Ricardo Moyano added pizazz to the Russian dance with his dramatic jumps and turns.

PERHAPS THE most polished dancer of the performance was Barbara Pontecorvo. As the American Beuty Rose, she showed her ability to phrase movements, providing both style and finished lines.

Most of the dancers handling solo work were technically proficient with nice leg extensions and clean footwork, but most looked unfinished. They have not yet learned to use their eyes, a tilt of the head, or a flick or the wrist to make their movements meaningful.

These rough edges can be smoothed only with experience, and unfortunately there are too few opportunities for dancers to gain stage experience in Chicago. The only professional ballet company in the city, the Chicago Ballet has to content itself with a tiny chamber theater. Teenage dancers have only dancing school recitals until "The Nutcracker" arrives.

SOME PEOPLE say "The Nutcracker" is a Christmas present to the people of Chicago, and no one will deny it is a holiday tradition. But it also provides a good look at the state of the dance in the Windy City.

This year it's nice to know it is standing on its own two feet.

DYAN CANNON ADMITS, "I love my work. It's the thing I love most in life except my daughter." The actress / singer / dancer and now movie director opens next Thursday in "Two for the See Saw" with Don Murray at Arlington Park Theatre. It's the first time she's played in the Chicago area in 10 years.

Zany or aesthetic, 1977 calendars are hot item

Aesthetic to zany is the best description for 1977's wall and desk calendars.

Once the New Year's greeting-type advertisement of banks, businesses and funeral homes, calendars now are hot year-end items in museum gift shops, Christmas boutiques, department stores and art shops.

The publishing industry predicts annual sales approacahing $271 million, up from $225 million last year.

Religion remains a popular subject, but pinup girls are not. Competition from flesh magazines has supplanted them, according to a UPI survey. The Ridge Tool Company of Elyria, Ohio, is one of the few manufacturing businesses remaining true to the girlie calendar concept.

AMERICAN SCENERY, nature and wildlife scenes are this year's prime category, reflecting the nation's continuing concern with environment and ecology. Funny cartoons, flowers, folk art, sports figures, Hummel-type children, pets and museum masterpieces are prominent market items. Hallmark's "Historic Billboards" calendar is one of the more attractive follow-ups to last year's predominant Bicentennial theme.

brought to him or if an actress waited for a role to be given to her?

"Ellen Burstyn found Alice (the lead role in 'Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore'). She created the role for herself" said Ms. Cannon.

Yet, over-all, she admits, "Roles for women are so limiting. I just got tired of it. Don't get me wrong. I love being sexy. That's just an awareness of life and I tend to have that forever.

"AND IT'S NOT men's fault. Women have accepted the misconception of a woman's place. It's here or there. Well, I think it's wherever it feels best.

"Women are never shown full-bodied like a Butch Cassidy," she continued about female roles. "They're either a wife, a mother or a prostitute. But one at a time — never together. They never picture a woman as a mother, lover, wife, skier — everything that she is.

"I think it's time we showed some of the life in women — men, too.

"I'm tired of watching the macho men, too proud to cry or show their feelings. I want to see real men, not just the detectives chasing killers but the man who comes home to his family and holds a child on his lap," she continued, adding how she walked out of a screening of "Taxi Driver" because the violence made her sick.

She likes "Two for the Seesaw" because she plays the part of a woman trying to make it with a man — "What everyone still wants the most and what is still the hardest to attain.

"I used to think it was like an apple or an orange. Cut either one in half and put the halves together and you have a whole.

"But that's not so with people.

"It takes a whole here and a whole there. I talked about it for years. I never felt it until now."

Children offered acting classes

A few openings remain in both the teenage and children's sessions of Des Plaines Theatre Guild's Children's Theatre acting workshops beginning Jan. 8.

Registration will be held that date from 12:30 p.m. until the first class begins at 1:30. The workshops meet every Saturday for 12 weeks from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines, culminating with shows by both age groups March 26 and 27.

Children ages 6 thru 11 will be directed by Mackey Cohen of Niles, and those ages 12 through high school will meet with Joel Cohen. The fee is $10 per child, and $5 for each additional child from the same family.

Acting classes for adults also begin in January under the direction of Raoul Johnson and Ron Nicholas. Schedule for the 10-week session will be announced following a survey of those registering their interest by calling the Guild answering service, 296-1211, between noon and 8 p.m. daily.

Woodstock gets theater company

Woodstock Performing Company is opening its first season of productions as a professional resident performing company in historic Woodstock, Ill.

The opening play will take place in the renewed and renovated Old Courthouse, where amid lovely new shops and boutiques the original courtroom still exists. In this authentic setting the audience becomes part of a totally different theatrical experience.

The first production, "The Trial of a Judge," opens Feb. 22, 1977. Performances are Tuesday through Sunday, and prices begin at $4.50. A dinner-theater combination will be available. Information is available at 815/338-7484.

Zany or aesthetic, 1977 calendars are hot item

Aesthetic to zany is the best description for 1977's wall and desk calendars.

Once the New Year's greeting-type advertisement of banks, businesses and funeral homes, calendars now are hot year-end items in museum gift shops, Christmas boutiques, department stores and art shops.

The publishing industry predicts annual sales approacahing $271 million, up from $225 million last year.

Religion remains a popular subject, but pinup girls are not. Competition from flesh magazines has supplanted them, according to a UPI survey. The Ridge Tool Company of Elyria, Ohio, is one of the few manufacturing businesses remaining true to the girlie calendar concept.

AMERICAN SCENERY, nature and wildlife scenes are this year's prime category, reflecting the nation's continuing concern with environment and ecology. Funny cartoons, flowers, folk art, sports figures, Hummel-type children, pets and museum masterpieces are prominent market items. Hallmark's "Historic Billboards" calendar is one of the more attractive follow-ups to last year's predominant Bicentennial theme.

Among the most unusual issues is Jan Ferris Koltun's "Eat and Run" calendar-diary including daily diets and a record of food, vitamins, exercise and weight. Taking the beauty prize is the Metropolitan Museum's "Treasures of Tutankhamen" desk calendar, illustrated in color with items from the traveling show from the Cairo museum.

Countryside art courses to begin week of Jan. 10

New classes will begin the week of Jan. 10 at Countryside Art Center, 408 N. Vail, Arlington Heights. Adult courses run 10 weeks at a cost of $37.50 for members, $45 for non-members. Children's courses run for a five-week period at $13.50.

Connie Pavich will offer the 6 to 10-year-olds a class Tuesdays from 4-6 p.m.; Meg McDonald will teach the 6 to 10-year-olds Wednesdays and Fridays 4-6 p.m.

Saturday classes will be taught by Nancy McClure for the 6 to 10-year-olds in two sessions: 9-11 a.m. and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. For the 11 to 14-year-olds, Audrey Westgor heads Saturday sessions 1 to 3 p.m.

A SPECIAL program for children ages 4-6 is offered, with Jill O'Connell teaching from 10-11 a.m. Fridays. Cost is $7.25.

For the adults, Barbara Houskeeper offers "Studio Critique" session, geared to help with individual problems through independent assignments and class discussion, Monday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Watercolor will be taught by William Weber Tuesdays from 7-10 p.m. This subject explores both traditional and contemporary techniques.

MEG McDONALD will again offer a printmaking course Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m. The lab fee will be $15, and there will be free studio time for the students.

For the beginner as well as experienced artist, Carol Haliday McQueen will give painting sessions Thursdays from 7-10 p.m.

When she wants...

brought to him or if an actress waited for a role to be given to her?

"Ellen Burstyn found Alice (the lead role in 'Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore'). She created the role for herself" said Ms. Cannon.

Yet, over-all, she admits, "Roles for women are so limiting. I just got tired of it. Don't get me wrong. I love being sexy. That's just an awareness of life and I tend to have that forever.

"AND IT'S NOT men's fault. Women have accepted the misconception of a woman's place. It's here or there. Well, I think it's wherever it feels best.

"Women are never shown full-bodied like a Butch Cassidy," she continued about female roles. "They're either a wife, a mother or a prostitute. But one at a time — never together. They never picture a woman as a mother, lover, wife, skier — everything that she is.

"I think it's time we showed some of the life in women — men, too.

"I'm tired of watching the macho men, too proud to cry or show their feelings. I want to see real men, not just the detectives chasing killers but the man who comes home to his family and holds a child on his lap," she continued, adding how she walked out of a screening of "Taxi Driver" because the violence made her sick.

She likes "Two for the Seesaw" because she plays the part of a woman trying to make it with a man — "What everyone still wants the most and what is still the hardest to attain.

"I used to think it was like an apple or an orange. Cut either one in half and put the halves together and you have a whole.

"But that's not so with people.

"It takes a whole here and a whole there. I talked about it for years. I never felt it until now."

Children offered acting classes

A few openings remain in both the teenage and children's sessions of Des Plaines Theatre Guild's Children's Theatre acting workshops beginning Jan. 8.

Registration will be held that date from 12:30 p.m. until the first class begins at 1:30. The workshops meet every Saturday for 12 weeks from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines, culminating with shows by both age groups March 26 and 27.

Children ages 6 thru 11 will be directed by Mackey Cohen of Niles, and those ages 12 through high school will meet with Joel Cohen. The fee is $10 per child, and $5 for each additional child from the same family.

Acting classes for adults also begin in January under the direction of Raoul Johnson and Ron Nicholas. Schedule for the 10-week session will be announced following a survey of those registering their interest by calling the Guild answering service, 296-1211, between noon and 8 p.m. daily.

Woodstock gets theater company

Woodstock Performing Company is opening its first season of productions as a professional resident performing company in historic Woodstock, Ill.

The opening play will take place in the renewed and renovated Old Courthouse, where amid lovely new shops and boutiques the original courtroom still exists. In this authentic setting the audience becomes part of a totally different theatrical experience.

The first production, "The Trial of a Judge," opens Feb. 22, 1977. Performances are Tuesday through Sunday, and prices begin at $4.50. A dinner-theater combination will be available. Information is available at 815/338-7484.

Paddy Chayefsky's 'Network'

Message comes across in laughs

Review

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Sometimes the best way to make a point is by treating it humorously, one comedian recently in town was quoted as saying.

That's why "Network" is so effective. The serious-comedy is by Paddy Chayefsky. The same guy who took potshots at the bureacracy and screwball tactics at hospitals in "The Hospital," has now exposed the inhumane and cutthroat dealings of the broadcasting industry.

His storyline turns into a preposterous nightmare. But he drives the important points home, not as a threat necessarily, but simply as a warning. And what he says is aimed as much to the people who sit duped in front of that little talk box every evening, as the people who operate and control the programming.

FOR ANYONE TO become unduly upset, as network personnel are purported to be doing, is silly. In this world it's necessary to laugh at ourselves just to keep a healthy perspective. If "Network" hits a nerve for some persons, it's not Paddy Chayefsky's fault. It's your own.

The behind-the-scenes look at the broadcasting industry centers on a once stolid, successful news anchorman, Ralph Beale (Robert Finch), who after many years of loyal and good service, is being dumped because his Nielson ratings are down.

Beale gets on television the next night, announces he's been fired and tells the audience to stay tuned because he plans to commit suicide on the air.

It's Beale's own way of bucking the system. While the network bosses at UBS are deciding what to do, the ratings come in. The public loved Beale.

WITH VISIONS of soaring ratings dancing in their heads, they reinstate Beale and let him say whatever he pleases in whatever language he chooses. Billed as the "Angry Prophet of the Airwaves," Beale borders on mental instability. It doesn't matter as long as his ratings keep going up.

The slick movie is not only noteworthy for its ideals, but also for the fine performances turned in by the quartet of Robert Finch; Faye Dunaway, an emotionless, conniving network programmer who thrives on Nielson Ratings for excitement; William Holden, head of the news department and the only one who retains his integrity; and Robert Duvall, the network hatchet man who has no scruples.

CHAYEFSKY DOES let us down by promoting an affair between Holden and Dunaway, who ultimately robs Holden of his news program and turns it into a show business, circus event. I can't buy it.

But after the hoopla of "Network" is gone and laughs have subsided — a planned assassination on TV for all the public to see is the climax — some statistics are thrown in by Chayefsky that won't even register with many people. It's hard to say how accurate he actually is, but I've heard them before. Only three per cent of the American people regularly pick up a book.

We need more movies like "Network" that combine an entertaining placebo with a doomsday message. Let's not worry unnecessarily over it — but leastways think about it.

PETER FINCH PLAYS "the mad prophet of the airwaves" and William Holden is his longtime buddy and boss in "Network," a new film that takes a swipe at the broadcasting industry.

THE DELUCA BROTHERS, Franck and Mathieu, go into the haircutting business. Their first customer is Richard Golfier in Francois Truffaut's "Small Change," a warm, touching movie about children, opening today in the Northwest suburbs.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"A Star Is Born" — The eternal show business classic, originally staring Janet Gaynor and Frederic March and later remade with Judy Garland and James Mason, surfaces for the third time, this time transposing Barbra Streisand and Kris Kristofferson into a Rock and Roll setting.

"Shaggy D.A." — In a sequel to the 1959 hit, a canine-inclined hero runs for District Attorney, but his campaign hits a snag when a magical ring that turns him into a sheep dog is found. Stars Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette, Tim Conway. (G).

"Silver Streak" — A comedy adventure set principally on a luxury train en route from Los Angeles to Chicago. Hostages are held aboard the train by racketeers engaged in an international art hoax. Stars Gene Wilder, Jill Clayburgh, Richard Pryor, Patrick McGoohan and Scatman Crothers. (PG).

"King Kong" — Multi-dollar remake of the 1933 "King Kong" classic, in which the giant ape commutes downtown from the Empire State Building to the twin towers of the World Trade Center. Stars Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin and Jessica Lange. (PG)

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cut throat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

"At the Earth's Core" — Peter Cushing and Doug McClure star as two Victorian gents who accidentally drill their way to the earth's core and battle fantastic creatures before they return home. As a straight-forward, old-fashioned adventure yarn, this film has its heart in the right place but its formula doses of fantasy, romance and action don't help the heavy dialogue and flimsy plotting. (PG).

"Pink Panther Strikes Again" — Sequal to the bumbling inspector Clouseau's escapades chasing the most highly wanted jewel thief in Europe. Stars Peter Sellers, Leonard Rossiter, Herbert Lom, Colin Blakely. (G).

Review

Sometimes the best way to make a point is by treating it humorously, one comedian recently in town was quoted as saying.

That's why "Network" is so effective. The serious-comedy is by Paddy Chayefsky. The same guy who took potshots at the bureacracy and screwball tactics at hospitals in "The Hospital," has now exposed the inhumane and cutthroat dealings of the broadcasting industry.

His storyline turns into a preposterous nightmare. But he drives the important points home, not as a threat necessarily, but simply as a warning. And what he says is aimed as much to the people who sit duped in front of that little talk box every evening, as the people who operate and control the programming.

FOR ANYONE TO become unduly upset, as network personnel are purported to be doing, is silly. In this world it's necessary to laugh at ourselves just to keep a healthy perspective. If "Network" hits a nerve for some persons, it's not Paddy Chayefsky's fault. It's your own.

The behind-the-scenes look at the broadcasting industry centers on a once stolid, successful news anchorman, Ralph Beale (Robert Finch), who after many years of loyal and good service, is being dumped because his Nielson ratings are down.

Beale gets on television the next night, announces he's been fired and tells the audience to stay tuned because he plans to commit suicide on the air.

It's Beale's own way of bucking the system. While the network bosses at UBS are deciding what to do, the ratings come in. The public loved Beale.

WITH VISIONS of soaring ratings dancing in their heads, they reinstate Beale and let him say whatever he pleases in whatever language he chooses. Billed as the "Angry Prophet of the Airwaves," Beale borders on mental instability. It doesn't matter as long as his ratings keep going up.

The slick movie is not only noteworthy for its ideals, but also for the fine performances turned in by the quartet of Robert Finch; Faye Dunaway, an emotionless, conniving network programmer who thrives on Nielson Ratings for excitement; William Holden, head of the news department and the only one who retains his integrity; and Robert Duvall, the network hatchet man who has no scruples.

CHAYEFSKY DOES let us down by promoting an affair between Holden and Dunaway, who ultimately robs Holden of his news program and turns it into a show business, circus event. I can't buy it.

But after the hoopla of "Network" is gone and laughs have subsided — a planned assassination on TV for all the public to see is the climax — some statistics are thrown in by Chayefsky that won't even register with many people. It's hard to say how accurate he actually is, but I've heard them before. Only three per cent of the American people regularly pick up a book.

We need more movies like "Network" that combine an entertaining placebo with a doomsday message. Let's not worry unnecessarily over it — but leastways think about it.

PETER FINCH PLAYS "the mad prophet of the airwaves" and William Holden is his longtime buddy and boss in "Network," a new film that takes a swipe at the broadcasting industry.

THE DELUCA BROTHERS, Franck and Mathieu, go into the haircutting business. Their first customer is Richard Golfier in Francois Truffaut's "Small Change," a warm, touching movie about children, opening today in the Northwest suburbs.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"A Star Is Born" — The eternal show business classic, originally staring Janet Gaynor and Frederic March and later remade with Judy Garland and James Mason, surfaces for the third time, this time transposing Barbra Streisand and Kris Kristofferson into a Rock and Roll setting.

"Shaggy D.A." — In a sequel to the 1959 hit, a canine-inclined hero runs for District Attorney, but his campaign hits a snag when a magical ring that turns him into a sheep dog is found. Stars Dean Jones, Suzanne Pleshette, Tim Conway. (G).

"Silver Streak" — A comedy adventure set principally on a luxury train en route from Los Angeles to Chicago. Hostages are held aboard the train by racketeers engaged in an international art hoax. Stars Gene Wilder, Jill Clayburgh, Richard Pryor, Patrick McGoohan and Scatman Crothers. (PG).

"King Kong" — Multi-dollar remake of the 1933 "King Kong" classic, in which the giant ape commutes downtown from the Empire State Building to the twin towers of the World Trade Center. Stars Jeff Bridges, Charles Grodin and Jessica Lange. (PG)

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cut throat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

"At the Earth's Core" — Peter Cushing and Doug McClure star as two Victorian gents who accidentally drill their way to the earth's core and battle fantastic creatures before they return home. As a straight-forward, old-fashioned adventure yarn, this film has its heart in the right place but its formula doses of fantasy, romance and action don't help the heavy dialogue and flimsy plotting. (PG).

"Pink Panther Strikes Again" — Sequal to the bumbling inspector Clouseau's escapades chasing the most highly wanted jewel thief in Europe. Stars Peter Sellers, Leonard Rossiter, Herbert Lom, Colin Blakely. (G).

If you just want a good steak . . .

While more and more people are going the fish route, and seafood restaurants are casting out new bait to tease appetites, it's nice to opt for the American tradition, a steakhouse that rejects fancy dishes and seven-page menus.

What you'll get is a good cut of meat and a baked potato. And even though the lighting is dim, you'll always know exactly what you're eating.

Featuring:
The Other Place

The place is The Other Place and it's called that on purpose. It's an offshoot of Hugo's in the Hyatt Regency O'Hare — a gourmet restaurant that does serve fancy dishes which at times might make you wonder what you're eating.

THE OTHER PLACE Restaurant & Debating Society (I'm not sure what that means, except quiet conversation is assured in the intimate, relaxed one-room setting), is a private club by noon and open to the public only for dinner. Reservations are not taken. If Hugo's turns you down, just walk out, pass the hotel pool and go into The Other Place.

Besides, the wine list is cheaper. House wine (Paul Masson) is $3.50 a half liter.

And that's how four of us began the evening, wine and a loaf of warm bread, the latter served much too soon but appreciated anyhow considering the late hour. Unfortunately it looked much better than it tasted (on the stale side).

It's best to move right along to the appetizers, which at The Other Place include black bean soup, $1, and shrimp cocktail, $3.75. When you see the size of the shrimp, you understand the price. The night we dined, minestrone soup, $1, was also on the menu. I picked that but would recommend any one of the three.

WHEN YOU visit a restaurant the first time, it's customary to sample the "house" entree if one is featured. So, of course, one in our party ordered The Other Steak. Hold your hats. It's a 22-ounce porterhouse cooked to desired pinkness on the inside and charred on the outside as most fine steakhouses do it. There was nothing left over for Fido because he ate it all.

In similar fashion, the other three of us cleaned our plates. When you don't eat steak often, you tend to appreciate it more.

Other choices at our table, all meeting our approval, included brochette of beef tenderloin, $9.25, served on herbed rice pilaf with green peppers and onions. The words that come to mind are lean and tender.

ALSO, NEW York strip sirloin, $10.50, subtitled "America's favorite."

The fourth member of our party indulged herself with surf and turf, $12.95. The lobster tail was nearly the size of the usual whole portion and the filet was decent, too. This is what surf and turf is all about.

Crisp onion rings, $1.50, and sauteed mushroom, $1.95, (fresh, I could tell), may be ordered.

Otherwise, with dinner you get a baked potato which the waitress will smother in sour cream. (Some restaurants spoon out the sour cream as if it were gold dust.)

She will also make up your tossed salad with bacon bits (that's real bacon, too) chopped egg, green pepper, diced tomato, onion and grated blue cheese. It's like a salad bar, only you may remain seated. The house dressing is a wise choice: creamy Caesar.

DESSERT IS hard to resist. It's cheesecake and if you're not already aware, the Hyatt's cheesecake is rated by one Chicago magazine as tops in the city. Or, you can try the profiteroles, $1.75. That one needs an explanation. It's like tiny cream puffs floating in a rum sauce with bittersweet fudge dripped on top. It's delicious and the only item on the menu that might not describe what you're eating.

"PETER PAN in Neverland" at Candlelight's Forum Children's Theater has become Chicago's longest running children's theater show, with performances extended through February '77. Reservations and information are available at Forum Children's Theater, Summit, 496-3000.

Great America sets auditions

More than 300 entertainers throughout the Midwest will soon have an opportunity to join the 1977 cast of show productions for Marriott's Great America, Gurnee, Ill.

Beginning the second weekend in January, the theme park will once again undertake an active talent search in several Midwest locations. For the Chicagoland area, auditions will be held Jan. 28, 29 and 30 at the Holiday Inn O'Hare-Kennedy, 5440 N. River Rd., Rosemont.

Singers, dancers, variety performers, jugglers, barbershop quartets and magicians are among those invited to try out.

Doug Whiteley, audition coordinator of show operations, requests that performers be 16 years of age and over. Further information may be obtained at 249-2000.

Courtroom drama next for DPTG

"The Night of January 16," an explosive courtroom drama in which the ending depends on the verdict handed down by a jury drawn from the audience, will be presented by Des Plaines Theatre Guild three weekends in January.

The unusual play by Ayn Rand will open Friday, Jan. 7, and continue Jan. 8, 14, 15, 16, 21, 22 and 23. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. for Friday and Saturday performances, and 7:30 for the two Sunday shows. Tickets may be reserved by calling 296-1211 between noon and 8 p.m. daily. The courtroom setting will be on stage at Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

AREA RESIDENTS in the cast are Adrienne Solid, Dean Weiss, Maribeth Ziemann and Bill Shadlinger, Des Plaines; Don Schroeder and Fran Pitchford, Arlington Heights; Betty Kandlbinder, Palatine; John Buckley, Hoffman Estates; Ralph Leon, Mount Prospect; and Denise A. Pedersen, Schaumburg.

Following the first weekend, open auditions will be held Jan. 9 at 2 p.m. and Jan. 10 at 8 p.m. for roles in DPTG's March production of "The Silver Whistle."

Craft contest for new talent

A national competition for 18 to 30-year-old craftspeople is being sponsored by the American Crafts Council to give recognition to new talent.

The contest is open to all in that age range who work in fiber, wood, plastic and leather. These four materials must make up at least 60 per cent of a composition that contains other materials. The works also must be original and executed by the entrant within the past two years.

Student work is eligible only if it was done without the help or supervision of an instructor. Each artist is allowed a total of three entries, submitted in slide form: one general view and one detail slide per object.

The closing date is Feb. 15. Requests for entry blanks go to Young Americans, American Crafts Council, 29 West 53rd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.
